HOOVER FACES TWO TESTS ON POWER VIEWS

Foes Depict President as Linked With Trust Upon Issues.

REFUSAL FOR SENATE SEEN ON RECALL PLAN

Muscle Shoals Compromise Also Viewed as White House Problem.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The great power issue, fashioned after these many months into a two-edged sword, is just about ready for wrapping and presentation to President Hoover, and the indications are that he is ready to deal with it.

If things move along on Capitol Hill as they have been, he will receive the Muscle Shoals bill and the Senate resolution calling for the return of the confirmations of Dr. George Otis Smith and two other members of the Federal Power Commission, about the same time, maybe by the same messenger.

It is known that he intends forthwith to refuse to return the papers on the power commissioners to the Senate. It is not known what he intends to do about the Muscle Shoals compromise. But if he vetoes it his opponents will have a political set-up to their asking.

See "Power Trust" Link.

They want to identify him with the "power trust." And, while he has been very firm heretofore in opposing Government operation of power projects in preference to private operation, that is still a wide gulf from being "tied up with the power trust." But if he vetoes the Muscle Shoals bill on the one hand and refuses to send back the papers on the power commissioners, his political foes will believe they have him right where they want him.

Indeed, Senator Wheeler, of Montana, speaking yesterday solely of his expected refusal to send the papers back, said it would justify the charge that the "great power interests are running his administration."

Wheeler declared that the dismissal by the power commission of Solicitor Charles A. Russell, and Chief Accountant William V. King, was because "the great power interests wanted them to be dismissed.

Automatic Dismissal.

"Russell and King could have got along on the commission, provided they had been subservient to the great power interests," he declared. "Two little clerks are to have their heads chopped off for running counter to the great octopus, the power trust, which runs from one end of the country to the other."

Senator Goff, of West Virginia, contends the employes were automatically dismissed by the new power act, and that the Senate is not within its constitutional right in recalling the papers on the three commissioners who dealt with them. The President, it is understood, plans to take the position that the Senate can not recall the confirmations after the appointees have embarked upon their duties.

Wheeler declared that if he stands "behind that technicality the charge will be made, and justified, in my opinion, that the great power interests not only contributed to his campaign but are running his administration."

Recall Vote Conceded.

Regardless of whether the Senate is within its right in recalling the nominations or not it intends to recall them just as soon as it gets to a vote on the matter. This is conceded even in administration quarters. Senator McNary, of Oregon, sought

Court Sentences Ousted President

Leguia Family Is Found to Owe Peru About $7,625,000.

Lima, Peru, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Augusto B. Leguia, deposed president of Peru, and his three sons must pay into the treasury 25,000,000 soles (approximately $7,625,000), as reimbursement for alleged improper transactions during the 11 years of the Leguia regime.

The national sanctions court today announced sentence on the former president and his three sons, Augusto, Juan and Jose, following a three-months' investigation. Two of the judges, in an additional opinion, estimated they owed $15,250,000.

Among the transactions charged to the Leguias is a national loan alleged to have been made by a New York banking house. The court declared the firm paid a high commission to Juan Leguia to avoid competition from other banks.

When the government headed by President Sanchez Cerro came into power, former President Leguia and his sons were prosecuted. The elder Leguia and Juan Leguia are in custody, but Augusto, jr., and Jose Leguia escaped.

Wood Takes Big Part As Geronimo Gives Up To Gen. Miles' Forces

By HERMANN HAGEDORN.

CHAPTER VI.

The Apache campaign was over. Nothing remained except the actual surrender to Miles. Every one was content, even the Indians. And then silently out of the wilderness, like a great worm, white and menacing, emerged a company of Mexican "irregulars." The hostiles spied them first, a long file, crossing the mountains a few miles below.

"A tremendous amount of excitement in the hostile camp and some in ours," Wood wrote, "as the packers piled the packs into breastworks and the scouts began to throw up small stone breastwork about us. Every one was on the move getting ready for whatever might turn up on the whole rather hoping that there would be a fight and thereby have a chance to even up with the Mexicans for poor Crawford's death.

"Lawton sent out word to Smith and myself to go down and meet the Mexicans as quickly as possible. I happened to be the nearest ready and started off at once on a mule; Smith and Horn followed immediately."

They met them coming on foot, in single file, through a dense canebrake, 117 of them, led by that same Prefect of Arispe, who had presumably drugged the wine for his American guests at Fronteras. He regarded Geronimo as his bird and was not in a mood to accept any interference from a tatterdemalion young man without visible evidences of authority.

"I had nothing on but a pair of canton flannel drawers, an old blue blouse, a pair of moccasins and a hat without any crown, and I do not blame the Mexican commander for not believing I was an officer. However, he evidently did not want a fight and finally they all halted, but in a very ugly mood.

"Had a long talk with them and told them if they came on there would be a fight, that the hostile Indians and ourselves were united and in a position to attack them as they came out of the canebrake. * * * I have no doubt we could have cleaned up the whole bunch without heavy loss."

In the camp, in fact, every rifle was cocked and sighted upon a Mexican; the scouts were stripped naked; and from Geronimo's camp came a mes-

AGREEMENT ON FOOD LOAN HELD DISTANT

NEW REMEDIES OFFERED

(Associated Press.)

For the third successive day, the House remained deadlocked yesterday over the Senate's $15,000,000 food loan amendment to the drought relief appropriation bill with little hope for an early break in sight.

Anxiety over the outcome became evident in both Republican and Democratic ranks as telegrams poured in to senators and representatives telling of the plight of the hungry and destitute in drought areas.

Administration followers, nevertheless, held their position against appropriating funds for food under the seed, feed and fertilizer loan act. The Democratic forces, joined by Representative LaGuardia (Republican) New York, demanded a vote on the Senate provision.

LaGuardia has successfully resisted efforts to send the measure to conference unless the Republican and Democratic forces agree that the food provision apply to both urban and rural districts.

He introduced a resolution yesterday to appropriate $30,000,000 to be turned over to the American Red Cross to feed the unemployed throughout the country.

Similarly, a measure to appropriate $15,000,000 was introduced by Representative Fish (Republican), New York, who also submitted a resolution to have the Farm Board turn wheat in its possession over to the Red Cross.

Objecting for the third time to a move by Chairman Wood, of the House appropriations committee, to send the drought measure to conference, LaGuardia said it would be "impossible to explain to the American people why food should be distributed to certain sections of the country, utterly disregarding the needs in other sections, particularly in the cities."

Wood said he was opposed to the

KELLOGG QUESTIONS SENATORS ON COURT

STANDS BY RESERVATION

Former Secretary of State Kellogg visited senators yesterday on what was construed as an administration mission to sound out sentiment on the World Court. He apparently went away persuaded that the court protocal could not be ratified if brought up at the present session.

The former Secretary, now a judge of the World Court, asked Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, whether some plan could not be worked out for prompt American adherence to the court, but was told by Mr. Borah, irreconcilable foe of the court, that the only plan was to get the nations who adhere to the court to accept reservation five, dealing with advisory opinions, in the form in which the Senate first adopted it. Mr. Borah resents the idea that the Senate should be asked to modify reservation five which the other nations found objectionable.

Mr. Borah told his caller there are 28 assured votes, and possibly as many as 32 or 33 against accepting Elihu Root's redraft of reservation five. Other Republicans gave Mr. Kellogg similar information. While he said that his visit was not to promote the court, senators with whom Mr. Kellogg talked were of the opinion that he wanted to sound out the situation. He visited President Hoover Wednesday.

Only 32 votes are necessary to defeat acceptance of the so-called Root formula and thus prevent American adherence to the court. The issue probably could not be brought to a vote in the present short session under any circumstances, since it would provoke prolonged debate at best and probably would be used to block appropriations and force an extra session.

Ostensibly for that reason administration forces in the foreign relations committee voted to postpone consideration until the next session. How-

Jury Information Papers Placed Under Court Lock

Judge Schuldt Issues Order Which Now Prevents Attorneys and Bondsmen From Having Free Access to Documents.

Possibility that information papers in jury trial cases in Police Court have disappeared was seen yesterday in a rule issued by Judge Gus A. Schuldt, presiding judge. Heretofore attorneys and bondsmen have had free access to the papers.

The order was addressed to Clerk Frank A. Sebring, and neither he nor Judge Schuldt would make any comment.

The rule specifies that all "jury informations" must be kept under lock and key and that if they are viewed by any other person they must be seen in the presence of a clerk of the court.

Judge Schuldt's action comes immediately after the Department of Justice had taken steps to safeguard liquor samples in the court. These samples, too, were disappearing, it was said.

Several months ago there was a charge that an "information" wanted in a trial had disappeared. This resulted in an order that the record be replaced.

Judge Schuldt's order follows:

"With reference to jury cases, you are hereby instructed that hereafter all jury informations must be kept under lock and key.

"That access to said separate file case shall only be had by the clerk,

G. O. P. CHIEFS STRIVE TO HOLD UP DRY REPORT

JONES ACT MODIFIED BY ACTION OF HOUSE

Offenses Involving Less Than Gallon to Bring Lighter Penalty.

(Associated Press.)

The prohibition report of President Hoover's law enforcement commission was awaited last night with more expectancy than ever in view of a fruitless effort by some Republican leaders to head it off.

Seeking to avoid an extra session, congressional chieftains went direct to commission headquarters in an effort to sidetrack the rush of oratory expected to follow submission of the report. They were informed, however, that the report was virtually ready for delivery to the President and would be sent as planned.

In the House meanwhile final approval was given to the Stobbs bill to modify the Jones "five-and-ten" law, a measure which grew out of commission suggestions. It now goes to the President.

At the same time, Attorney General Mitchell and Prohibition Director Woodcock were discounting the effect of the elimination from the deficiency appropriation of the $10,000 provision for prohibition education. The sum was stricken out Wednesday by the House.

The Prohibition Bureau still has left from its last appropriation $22,000 for this purpose and has spent only $18,000 to this end since last July. Woodcock said his force would continue work as usual on the five monographs on prohibition now being prepared.

Woodcock said he did "not know how effective these pamphlets are," but that he felt the idea of disseminating such information was a proper one.

The Attorney General would not give his views, but it was known he does not particularly favor this method. His attitude is that the Department of Justice should stick to enforcement of the law as its proper sphere and not attempt prohibition education.

Commission Members Busy.

The week's recess agreed upon by the Wickersham commission did not prevent eight of the members from appearing at their desks yesterday. A majority of them, however, were occupied more with other phases of the commission's investigation into crime than with prohibition. The forecast remained that the dry law report might be submitted to the President any time after Monday.

The Jones law modification, upon which the House acted yesterday, would define casual violators under the stringent five-and-ten statute. If approved by the President it would set up a category of offenses involving less than one gallon of liquor and provide a maximum penalty of $500 fine and six months in prison for a first offense, rather than the five year and $10,000 penalty.

Three Convicts Escape Over Moundsville Wall

Moundsville, W. Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Frank Morgan, 32, Marion County Negro serving life for murder, and John and James Boggess, brothers, serving 30 years each for armed robbery, scaled the walls of the West Virginia Penitentiary tonight, using a ladder, and escaped.

ANADALE READY TO ASSIST U.S. IN SMITH CASE

Convicted Official May Tell All He Knows of Dealings.

REDUCED SENTENCE IS SEEN AS REWARD

Will Disclaim Any Intent to Do Wrong, Friend Says; Pitts to Appeal.

C. Elbert Anadale, one of three former officers of the F. H. Smith Co., who were convicted of conspiring to embezzle funds and destroy certain records of the firm, is ready to turn Government evidence, it was made konwn yesterday.

He is under a prison sentence of nine years. G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board, is appealing from his fourteen-year sentence. John H. Edwards, jr., has begun serving a term of three years which was reduced from four when his counsel withdrew plans to appeal.

James C. Wilkes, an attorney, interceded in Anadale's behalf yesterday, saying that the company's erstwhile vice president, who is his personal friend, is prepared "to tell all he knows about the Smith Co. and the conduct of its affairs."

File Exceptions For Pitts.

Such action also was indicated when Attorneys Lambert & Yeatman and Frank G. Raichle filed a bill of exceptions in the Court of Appeals yesterday only on behalf of Pitts. This move was to perfect an appeal noted by Pitts, Anadale and Edwards when they were convicted several weeks ago in District Supreme Court.

"Anadale now realizes that he was nothing more than a dignified and glorified office boy in the employ of Pitts," Mr. Wilkes declared in making known his friend's present attitude. "All he did was to carry out the orders given by Pitts. Of his own knowledge, he did nothing criminal. Even now, he is not willing to 'squeal' on Pitts, but he is ready to tell the Government or any other responsible party anything they may wish to know concerning the Smith Co."

May Reduce His Term.

The Government may cut Anadale's term to three ears, at the discretion of the parole board, should the offer be accepted, Mr. Wilkes said.

Anadale soon will issue a statement showing how he and his two former colleagues prepared their defense to the conspiracy charges, the attorney asserted.

Mr. Wilkes disclosed that Nugent Dodds, newly nominated Assistant Attorney General, has been approached in regard to Anadale's willingness to divulge further information but has made no promises as yet to recommend leniency in return.

$120,000 Awarded In Alienation Suit

Former Candy Clerk Lays Estrangement to Her Foster Mother.

St. Louis, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Grace V. Howard, former candy clerk, late today was awarded $120,000 damages by a jury which heard her alienation suit against the wealthy Miss Sidney Emeline Boyle.

Mrs. Howard, who eloped with Lloyd Boyle Howard, Miss Boyle's foster son, in 1925, asked $200,000 on the ground that Miss Boyle was responsible for the estrangement of the couple. It was understood Miss Boyle, whose estate was estimated by agreement of counsel at between $400,000 and $500,000, would appeal.

Howard, father of a 3-year-old son, testified that he was "kind of half soused" the day he was married, and declared he was the target of various household objects thrown by his wife.

Calvin Coolidge Says:

Germany has been regaining her place in the world with remarkable rapidity. While her large national expenses need reduction, all but reparations and interest on foreign loans go to her own people. Taxes are less than in England. Her merchant fleet and exports have risen to a high place.

Perhaps the best explanation of the World War was an eagerness in Europe to hurry progress. It led to universal tragic disaster. Contentment with normal development would have changed entirely the present world aspect. Germany, especially, would now be in an enviable position.

There are no short cuts in national life. If Germany will heed the lessons of the past and be content to work out her destiny by doing her best to meet her obligations, she will continue to grow in the estimation of the world and such sympathy and help as she needs will be forthcoming. To adopt some other course could endanger all the good opinion so laboriously gained since 1919. The responsible elements of her government appear to recognize this and are successfully striving to discharge national obligations. Their efforts are gaining the good will of other people.

Pontiff's Enclyclical Upholds Sanctity of Christian Marriages

Full Power of Church Is Invoked Against Divorce Also.

POPE PIUS XI

Rome, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The full power and authority of the Catholic Church were invoked by the Pope today to uphold the sanctity of Christian marriage and to stamp out birth control, "companionate" marriage and divorce.

In the most sweeping exposition of the church's views on matrimony in many years he condemned the use of contraception or any other means to prevent the fruitfulness of wedlock.

His pronouncement came in the form of a long encyclical, the first of its kind in 50 years of ecclesiastical history, to spread the church's view that marriage is indissoluble except by death, and that the family, within the meaning of this Catholic sacrament, "is more sacred than the state."

Birth control is a deed "shameful and intrinsically vicious" and a "horrible crime," the pontiff enjoined the faithful.

"Any use whatsoever of matrimony exercised in such a way that the act is deliberately frustrated in its natural power," he said, "is an offense against the law of God and nature, and those who indulge in such are branded with the guilt of a grave sin."

"Companionate" marriage came in for an equally vigorous denunciation. Commenting that such marriages often are defneded as a necessity of "modern" culture, the Pope gave as the church's dictum that they did not partake of such culture, but were "simply hateful abominations which, beyond all question, simply reduce our truly cultured natures to the barbarous standards of savage people."

The modern wife, the Pope went on, must not carry the doctrine of obe-

UNEMPLOYED SLOW TO JOIN WITH REDS

BROOKLYN SEES FIGHT

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Recruits from breadlines and the municipal lodging house proved unenterprising today for a series of "hunger marches" planned by Communist leaders to dramatize the plight of the unemployed.

The heralded groups of meetings in various parts of each borough, culminating in a concerted march on City Hall, dwindled away to single meetings in Brooklyn, Manhattan and the Bronx. There were several hundred at the meetings in Brooklyn and the Bronx and cose to 2,000 at noon at the Manhattan meeting, but curiosity seekers and workers in nearby offices formed a large proportion of the crowds.

In Brooklyn the crowd was dispersed after an exchange of blows from which several men and women emerged with bruises. The encounter was precipitated by the crowd's efforts to enter the Brooklyn Salvation Army headquarters.

On their way to a Manhattan meeting 300 marchers attempted to break into a breadline in the Bowery without regard for those who had been waiting for an hour or more.

A patrolman who attempted to order the newcomers to move on was beaten down and kicked. He was not badly hurt. Other policemen who arrived restored order.

Petitions asked improved sanitary conditions and better food in the municipal lodging house, indoor places for feeding the needy instead of "putting us on exhibition" in breadlines, and payment of unemployment insurance from the city treasury were presented by committees to the borough presidents of Brooklyn and the Bronx and to Commissioner Frank J. Taylor, of the city department of public welfare.

TRAFFIC BILL MEETS STRONG OPPOSITION

Hearing, Prolonged Into Late Hours, Adjourned eBfore All Are Heard.

JOINT BOARD IS FOUGHT

District authorities and representatives of the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Bureau of Efficiency burned the midnight oil last night in a frantic effort to save the traffic bill sent to Congress recently by the District Commissioners.

Unexpected strength on the part of the opposition developed at a hearing on the measure before the traffic subcommittee of the House District committee, and the session was adjourned before all witnesses were heard in order to give the conflicting agencies an opportunity to reach an agreement. Representative Gale H. Stalker (Republican), New York, chairman, announced that the hearing would be resumed Tuesday morning.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride wast host yesterday afternoon and until late last night to Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, District Commissioner in charge of the Police Department; Edwin S. Hage, of the Citizens Federation; William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, and a representative of the Bureau of Efficiency.

Meeting in executive session the conferees took up the bill section by section and thrashed out their differences, but at a late hour last night Mr. Bride said that the measure was still in such an indefinite state that the revised bill would not be made public until today. Besides, the District Commissioners have to approve the amendments before they are sent to the congressional committee.

One of the chief points of contention, especially objected to by Mr. Hege, is the provision for the abolition of the office of director of traffic. While the commissioners have repeatedly explained that this was intended merely to place the control of traffic directly in their hands and will not necessarily mean that the

Carpentier Afraid? But No! Merely Cautious, He Chides

"Orchid Man" Says He Would Have Been "Crazy" to Resist Bandits, Who Covered Him and Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin With Guns During Holdup.

New York, Jan. 8.—Georges Carpentier awakened today to find himself in the full glare of the spotlight of publicity for the first time since back in 1921, when under the refined fighting sobriquet of "the orchid man" he was knocked out in the fourth round by Jack Dempsey at Boyles Thirty Acres.

Around the bewildered "Gorgeous Georges," as the sports writers used to call him, in the Hotel Lombardy, there flocked reporters. They wanted to know why the man whom Bernard Shaw once picked to whip Dempsey did not fight back when four bandits kidnaped him, his chauffeur and Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin, whom he was escorting, and robbed her of her cash and jewels.

At the same time, from across the seas, a London newspaper called by telephone to inquire, entirely without humor, if the gunmen wore tuxedos and top hats. It also wanted to know just why Georges did not offer to battle the bold bandits and if he did not carry a gun while in that barbarous America.

To all of which queries the "orchid man" had the same answer.

"Why didn't I fight?" he exclaimed with the slight suggestion of a French accent. "Do you think I'm crazy? They had guns pointed at my heart. Who could fight with a gun pointed at his heart?"

London's question about the tuxedos and the top hats had Georges stopped for a minute.

NEW SENSATION SEEN IN QUIZ ON SLAYING TODAY

DRY COUNT NOT FILED AGAINST POLICEMAN

Startling and hitherto unpublished facts in connection with the mysterious murder of 19-year-old Beulah Limerick on New Year's Eve were expected to be brought out at the coroner's inquest today, as detectives last night sorted out for the last time the mass of evidence they have gathered. The inquest will begin at 11:30 o'clock at the District Morgue and may last several days if all of the 52 witnesses called are heard.

Meanwhile, an effort to press charges of prohibition law violation against Policeman Robert F. Langdon, of the Fifth Precinct, was halted yesterday by United States Attorney David A. Hart because the legality of the entry of the searchers was questioned.

During a search of the Langdon home by detectives Wednesday a still, two barrels of mash, and a quantity of whisky were found in the basement, along with dismantled parts of another still. Although police contended that Langdon's wife had given them permission to search the place where the contraband was found, Hart declined to take action until he had time to look further into the matter.

Visited Mortuary.

It was also revealed yesterday that Langdon, on the afternoon of January 1, the day after it was discovered that the girl had been shot, visited the undertaking establishment where her body had been taken and asked about the position in which she had been lying when the undertakers visited the squalid room at 18 Nineteenth street southeast in which she died. He represented himself as being on an official tour of investigation, although police officials said that he did not go on duty that night until 12 o'clock, and that his connection with the case was only that of guard at the house.

Last night Vernon Limerick, brother of the slain girl; Richard Reed, a roomer at the Nineteenth street house, and William Paddy, who are being held at separate precinct stations in connection with the case, were brought to headquarters. There, together with Julia Bywaters, 116 North Carolina avenue, and Mrs. Dora Limerick, mother of the girl, they were questioned, together and separately, for several hours by Capt. Edward J. Kelly and members of the homicide squad.

No New Facts.

Capt. Kelly said last night that nothing new developed from the grilling, and that the story of each was essentially the same told when first questioned. It was Miss Bywaters who told police of the murdered girl's "fear" of Langdon, and of her desire to leave the neighborhood on that account.

It was learned that during the interview at headquarters, Mrs. Limerick described in considerable detail the condition of the coffee cups in the kitchen next to the room in which Beulah slept. Langdon reported he found a .25 caliber shell in one of the cups during the his vigil at the house. This was the caliber of the bullet which crashed through the back of the girl's skull sometime early in the morning of December 31.

Mrs. Limerick said that when she arrived at the house, on learning that her daughter was either very ill or dead, she found that one cup had been used, presumably by Reed when he got his breakfast before going to work the morning of the killing. The other cups, she said, were all clean and turned upside down on the table.

Washed All Cups.

She made some coffee, she said, and then washed all the cups, including the one presumably used by Reed, and several which she found in a basket under the table. There was no shell in any of them, she declared.

Langdon, who is being held at the Twelfth Precinct Station, has not been questioned since he refused to answer questions Wednesday afternoon, on the ground that his attorney, Harry T. Whelan, had advised him not to talk further.

The witnesses who have been called for the inquest today are:

Dr. A. Magruder McDonald, deputy coroner.

Dr. Lyman Greene, of aCsualty Hospital.

Lieut. R. H. Mansfield, Sergt. Robert Pierce, and Privates R. L. Eubanks, J. D. Bennett, B. R. White, Walter S. Beck, Paul W. Nicholson, Francis T. Pilkerton, Joseph M. Bell, David R. Thompson, and Roy V. Wolfe, of the Fifth Precinct.

Relatives to Appear.

Lieut. Alben C. Kefauver and Private Sherwood B. Perry, of the Fire Rescue Squad.

Detective Sergt. John Flaherty and Sergts. Joseph F. Waldron, Thomas F. Sweeney, and Carlton Talley, of the homicide squad.

Mrs. Dora Limerick, mother of the girl; Mrs. Julia Bywaters, Beulah's sister, and Earl Reed, brother of Richard Reed, 116 North Carolina avenue southeast.

Marion Ashford, 327 Allison street northwest, who drove Mrs. Limerick to the Nineteenth street house when the girl's death was discovered.

Ethel Annadale, 2412 Fourth street northeast.

Martha Bargfrede, 447 Luray place northwest.

Mrs. Pearl Posten, 1836 A street southeast.

Discovered Bullet.

David Limerick, 116 North Carolina avenue southeast.

William Limerick, 1108 Dwens place northeast.

Robert Lee Merchant, 804 Cameron street, Alexandria, Va.

Lieut. John Fowler, of the Tenth Precinct.

Elmer R. Donaldson, who fired test shots from a .25-caliber pistol through the mattress on which the girl's body was found.

Policeman's Wife Called.

Sergt. Thomas McNamara, of the Traffic Bureau.

Mrs. Robert F. Langdon, 1282 Oates street northeast, wife of the policeman who is being held.

Privates Paul Berger and Thomas Carter, of the Eleventh Precinct.

Vernon Limerick, William Paddy, Richard Reed and Langdon, who are being held in connection with the case, will also be called.

Testimony of the three witnesses from the undertaking establishment is expected to yield details of the mystery which have not yet been made public. What occurred from the time they were called until they notified police the girl had been shot, and what they found, and how they found it, will probably be revealed in their testimony.

Attempt to Get Pictures.

Efforts of news photographers to photograph Mrs. Limerick and Mrs. Bywaters last night as they were leaving headquarters for their home provided a lighter touch to the rapidly unfolding drama. The two women, accompanied by two male escorts, dodged through the corridors of the building, finally secreting themselves in a basement room.

There they remained, while one of their escorts drove their automobile through alleys near the building, in an effort to throw photographers off the track. When they finally left, through the front basement door, they were greeted by the usual boom of flashlights, which revealed their heads swathed in white cloth.

At that point Representative Parks (Democrat), Arkansas, leaped to his feet and shouted that the people participating in the Arkansas incident "never heard of a radical organization in their lives."

He declared the action was "not any preconceived movement, but was a movement of starving people."

Parks read a telegram from Gov. Parnell, of Arkansas, and more than a score others from prominent Arkansas people urging relief and telling of pitiful conditions in the drought areas.

Potomac Man Injured By Truck in Maryland

Emnick C. Creamer, 65 years old, of Potomac, Md., was seriously injured yesterday when he was run over by a Maryland State highway truck on the road near Potomac. Both legs were crushed. He was taken to Georgetown Hospital by Albert Gardner, of Rockville, Md.

HOOVER DEFENDED ON RAIL MERGERS

President Has Not Influenced Commerce Commission, Parker Tells House.

RAPPED BY BROOKHART

(Associated Press.)

The House yesterday heard a vigorous defense of President Hoover's activities in connection with the agreement of Eastern railroad officials for consolidation into four great trunk line systems.

Replying to those who have criticized the Chief Executive, Chairman Parker, of the interstate commerce committee, asserted Mr. Hoover knew nothing of the details of the unification plans, had given none of them his approval and in no way had influenced the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Meanwhile, Senator Brookhart, independent Republican, Iowa, criticized the proposed consolidation as "a gigantic stock jobbing merger" and introduced legislation to prevent all rail mergers except Coast to Coast systems.

Couzens Receives Protests.

Chairman Couzens of the Senate interstate commerce committee, who is opposed to the Eastern plan, said he had received several protests from coal operators who contended the proposed unification would reduce competition.

Plans for the consolidation were announced last week by President Hoover after an agreement had been reached by the heads of the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio and New York Central Railroads, which are to form the backbone of the unification.

Danger in Further Delay.

Parker said Mr. Hoover had seen danger in further delaying consolidation and that through his good offices an understanding had been reached. He succeeded in obtaining action, the House member added, where further delay might have meant impaired railroad service.

There is "not one scintilla of evidence," he added, that the President was attempting to dictate to the commission.

Parker foresaw, with the proposed mergers, the expenditure of vast sums for railroad construction and expansion, providing employment for thousands.

HOUSE LEADERS PUT SHOALS IN JEOPARDY

(Associated Press.)

New barriers which may shut Muscle Shoals legislation out of the green pastures of legal statutes were visualized by advocates yesterday as they linked past utterances of President Hoover with the reaffirmed opposition of House administration leaders to the compromise proposal.

Parliametnary procedure was said to have been discussed at a conference in the afternoon of Speaker Longworth, Walter Newton, secretary to the President; Chairman Snell of the rules committee and Representatives Ransley, of Pennsylvania, and Reece, Tennesse, Republican conferees, who refused to accept the tentative agreement of a conference majority.

President's Attitude.

House leaders said no word had been received to indicate the President had altered his opposition to the Norris Government operation bill. The main points of the Norris measure, including Government operation of the power plants and construction of transmission lines, have been agreed on in conference.

After a visit to the White House in the morning, Majority Leader Tilson said the reported agreement "ought not pass the House."

"I am opposed to the Government going into the power business," he said. "That is the crux of the matter involved."

Tilson tried to correct impressions that he had predicted the House would reject a Government operation bill.

To Vote Against It.

Snell reaffirmed his personal opposition to the compromise and said: "I have understood the President is opposed to Government operation."

Snell said that while he would vote against the compromise he would "not predict its rejection by the House." The conference report probably will come up next week.

Meanwhile, the House conferees continued to work on details of the section of the bill on nitrate plants, their leasing and the production of fertilizer. Work along this line was uncompleted and will be continued tomorrow.

'Perpetual' Cuban Students Are Blamed for Uprisings

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The students who started all the shooting in Cuba recently are not of the same type as the rosy-cheeked youngsters at Georgetown, George Washington or Catholic University; rather, they are comparatively old old men, trouble-making intellectuals, who continue to attend Cuba's national university long after the traditional four-year period is past.

This is the explanation of the "student uprising" in Cuba that was brought back from the island yesterday by Representative Fred Britten (Republican), of Illinois, globe-trotting chairman of the House naval affairs committee. Mr. Britten spent the congressional recess in Cuba.

"They are intellectual bums," Mr. Britten said. "They continue going to the national university merely by paying $20 a year. Some of them are as old as I am. Not only do they dominate the students, but they dominate the professors. It is they who incite the younger men to staging demonstrations against the government."

Mr. Britten said he got this explanation about the rebellious students from President Machado himself, and he quoted the Cuban executive as saying that a law soon will be enacted that will oust the "intellectual bums." Then, he said, they probably will be arrested as vagabonds.

"In dealing firmly with opponents of organized government composed almost entirely of defeated radicals, communists and unrestrained students," Representative Britten said, "President Machado is but doing for Cuba what has repeatedly been done to successfully protect several of the present day European governments against costly internal disorders and possible revolution.

"The four or five separate elements opposing everything that Gen. Machado does, are without leadership and without program or policy. They blame the present government for all the economic distress and unemployment in the island. Machado is held responsible for the low price of sugar and tobacco which constitutes 90 per cent of the wealth and prosperity of Cuba.

"I happened to be lunching at the Havana Yacht Club the very moment it was closed by government decree and I, with others, was politely informed that the place was padlocked and we must leave the premises. The club was a meeting place for former President Menocal and others who are trying to destroy the government. When I asked an officer of the club who the opposition might center upon to succeed President Machado, he smilingly said, 'That is the trouble; we have no one.'

"We motored far into the country and everywhere found the people in apparent peace and healthful surroundings. There was much less poverty than in many, many sections of the United States today. Children appeared to be well fed and every one was looking forward to January 15, when the cutting of the sugar cane starts. This is expected to signalize the return of better times."

Mr. Britten praised President Machado, and also the American Ambassador, Harry Guggenheim, and declared that there was no basis for suggestions that the United States intervene in the political affairs of the island.

NYE GROUP TO PROBE FURTHER INTO FUNDS

G. O. P. Officials of Kentucky and Maryland Are Called as Witnesses.

OTHER INQUIRIES LOOM

(Associated Press.)

The Senate campaign funds committee decided yesterday to drill still further into the $50,000 special account of the Republican national committee, $32,000 of which was sent into eight States for use in behalf of House candidates in the November elections.

J. Matt Chilton, Republican national committeeman for Kentucky, and Galen L. Tait, Republican State chairman for Maryland, were summoned to appear before the investigators next Tuesday for questioning as to the use made of funds turned over to them from the account. Chairman Nye said he expected they would have some "interesting stories" to tell.

Committee officials have testified $6,500 was sent to Chilton and $4,000 to Tait.

Unreported by Candidates.

Nye said it also had been developed that while Chilton's report to the House showed allotment of his fund to House candidates, no report of receiving this money was made by the candidates to the Kentucky secretary of state as, he said, was required by law.

Tait, in a report filed with the clerk of the House Wednesday, showed expenditures of $3,600 on election day—all for automobile hire. The special allotments to county committeemen averaged about $400 for this purpose.

Senator Nye has called the special account of the national committee a "slush fund." Joseph R. Nutt, committee treasurer, demanded an apology from Nye, saying a detailed report of the expenditures was on file in the House when Nye made his charge and all of the money went for legitimate campaign purposes.

Fund Pledged by Lucas.

It was this fund which Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the national committee, pledged as security for a $4,000 loan to pay for campaign documents, some of which were used against the reelection of Senator Norris (Republican Independent), Nebraska. Nutt expressed emphatic disapproval Wednesday of Lucas' action, saying he had no right to use the account for collateral for any purpose.

Mr. Nye has not finished with the Nebraska investigation but had not decided yesterday what his next step would be.

Meanwhile, the campaign funds group is expected to continue work on its Pennsylvania report and decide whether investigations will be made in Alabama and Montana.

Charter Night Banquet Is Planned by New Club

The Reciprocity Club, one of Washington's newest civic organizations, heard thre speakers and made plans for its charter night banquet, to be held on Lincoln's Birthday, February 12, at a dinner meeting last night at the Hotel Mayflower.

The session, in the nature of an organization meeting, was addressed by Dr. John W. Lowe, on "Reciprocity," and by the Rev. George Farnham, pastor of the Cleveland Park Congregational Church. Ernest W. Woodson, of Baltimore, also spoke. Arthur C. Smith, acting president of the club, acted as toastmaster.

One young and rash reported asked the question that the older and wiser ones had been turning over in their minds while measuring with their eyes the distance between themselves, the slim young fighter and the door.

"Weren't you afraid, Mr. Carpentier?" he said.

"Afraid?" Georges's eyes flashed Gallic fire. Then he straightened up with dignity. "Of course I was not afraid," he replied. "But they had guns. And I am not used to your funny American ways."

Four Killed on Air Lines In Six-Month Period

(Associated Press.)

Only two passengers and two pilots were reported yesterday by Assistant Secretary Young, of the Commerce Department, to have been killed in airplane accidents on scheduled air lines during the last six months of 1930. There were 22 passengers and 6 pilots killed during the first six months of the year.

Final reports as to the number of miles flown in scheduled transport services in the last six months of 1930 have not been received, Mr. Young said, but he estimated the total to be about 20,000,000 miles.

POLLARD PROMISES HELP FOR PARKWAY

Governor of Virginia Assures Planning Commission of His Cooperation.

ADVANTAGES ARE CITED

Meeting with representatives of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday, Gov. John Pollard of Virginia assured them of his interest and cooperation in the development of the George Washington Memorial Parkway, as provided in the Capper-Cramton bill, passed at the last session of Congress.

W. E. Carson, chairman of the conservation and development commission of Virginia, who has been largely responsible for the development of Shenandoah National Park, was designated by the governor to assist in working out the details to obtain the cooperation of every county in the State in support of the parkway.

Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, assured Gov. Pollard that the Federal Government is ready to proceed with its part in the fulfillment of the Capper-Cramton act and brought to the attention of the governor the many advantages which will accrue to the State of Virginia by reason of the parkway.

Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer to the commission, stressed the developments which are already under operation on the Virginia side of the Potomac River. He stated that the opening of the new Memorial Bridge will greatly add to the development of northern Virginia and also be the gateway to the South through which millions of tourists will visit the many historical points of interest in the State.

Senate Hearing Today.

Ashton C. Jones, president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, with Hugh L. Kirby, member of the board of directors, assured the governor that the citizens of northern Virginia are in accord with the Capper-Cramton bill, which provides for the construction of the George Washington Memorial Parkway, and appealed for hi asupport and cooperation.

Those attending the conference were Hugh Lee Kirby, member of the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce; Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission; Frederic A Delano, chairman of the commission; Ashton C. Jones, of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce.

University Group Raps Militarism

Johns Hopkins Club Seeks to Abolish Training in American Colleges.

Baltimore, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A student petition urging the abolition by Congress of compulsory military training in American colleges and universities is being circulated at Johns Hopkins University here by members of Liberal Club, it became known today. The club has had 25 members who hope to secure 2,000 signatures to the document.

At the university, it was pointed out, military training is not compulsory, but most of the freshmen and sophomores enroll in the course for credits. Some, it was explained, study the course because the university lacks a gymnasium.

Included in the petition is the following paragraph: "We consider that our military drill courses are not only inconsistent with the Kellogg pact, repudiating war as a means of settling international disputes, but constitute a grave danger to world peace."

OPPOSITION IS STRONG TO NEW TRAFFIC BILL

Bill Written in Haste.

Under the present system the District Commissioners can not institute any traffic regulations except through recommendation of the traffic director.

Another moot point has been the proposal for establishing a joint board of the Commissioners and the Publi cUtilities Commission to settle points of dispute regarding the regulation of interstate busses and the movement of taxicabs. These two bodies clashed heatedly on this division of authority after the bill reached Congress, but later settled their differences.

The bill under fire admittedly was under fire by the corporation counsel's office and was twice revised. It embodied some of the recommendations of the traffic advisory council, which made an elaborate survey of the traffic needs of Washington, and discarded others.

Criticism was voiced in a number of civic bodies that the measure was drafted and sent to the Capitol without any civic agencies outside the District Building being consulted.

This morning Senator Hamilton F. Kean (Republican), of New Jersey, chairman of the traffic subcommittee of the Senate District committee will hold a public hearing on the bill. The hearing is to begin at 10 o'clock and will be held in the Senate District committee room in the Capitol.

The outcome of this hearing will depend somewhat on what are the fruits of the series of conferences held yesterday.

Sheriff W. E. Donivan said the younger Stalford admitted there had been trouble in the family. The son is held in jail at Springfield, Colo., awaiting a preliminary hearing.

HEARING DATE SET ON REZONING PLANS

Afternoon Meeting Arranged for Arlington Draws Civic Body's Protest.

CHANGE IN HOUR HOPED

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 569. Clarendon, Va.

According to an announcement made yesterday by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, the County Board of Supervisors will consider any proposals for changes in the county zoning law at its meeting on January 13, at 2 o'clock. This hearing is being held at the suggestion of Robert H. Forman, zoning administrator.

If the board decides that the zoning ordinance should be amended, the intention to amend, together with proposed changes, will be published.

Commenting on the announcement of the meeting, Harry A. Fellows, president of the Arlington County Civic Federation, last night said:

"I endorse the recent action of the federation in opposing holding any meetings of the county board of supervisors on the question of proposed amendments to the county zoning ordinance in the afternoon and wish at this time to enter my protest.

"The board of supervisors should follow the policy of the zoning commission, which for months held meetings in the evening, when those most interested in the subject could attend and voice their views on the subject.

"The holding of afternoon meetings, in many instances, works a great hardship on the citizens who wish to attend, but who would lose time from their offices and in some cases lose a part of their salary, if they did."

Mr. Fellows expressed the hope that the board will consider the wishes of the citizens and arrange to hold this meeting in the evening.

Clarence R. Ahalt was elected president of the Virginia Title Insurance Co., Inc., at its annual meeting of stockholders held yesterday in the offices of the company opposite the Arlington County Courthouse. Other officers are: John G. Graham, first vice president; Walter M. Bastian, second vice president; A. L. Kelley, treasurer; H. Bruce Green, secretary. Members of the board of directors are: Frank G. Campbell, Clarence R. Ahalt, John G. Graham, Fred A. Gosnell, Thomas A. Lee and David N. Rust, jr.

The Arlington County Monarch Club at its meeting yesterday voted to support the Boy Scout movement in the county by appropriating $50. The action followed the motion made by Dr. B. H. Sawin, who stated that the club could do no better thing than get behind the movement.

Determined to build up the club during the year, President Albert H. Cohen announced that during the year two $5 gold pieces will be offered as prizes. The first will go to the member having the best attendance. Bringing a guest who later becomes a member will also be counted. The second is to go to the team bringing in the largest number of members. The prizes are to be awarded in the fall. Walter U. Varney was appointed captain of the Purple Team and Joseph C. Anderson, captain of the Gold Team. The captains are to choose their assistants.

President Cohen announces that the following have been chosen as members of the board of governors: Dexter Hussey, Albert H. Cohen, Dr. Ernest R. Hagan, Joseph C. Anderson, Walter U. Varney, the Rev. Henry J. Miller and Dr. C. R. Boyland.

Entertainment committee—Mr. Miller, chairman; Mr. Anderson and Mr. Varney. Other committees will be appointed at the next meeting.

That Arlington County is on the threshold of better business conditions is indicated by the statement of William W. Rucker, president of the Rucker Lumber Co., Inc., who said: "In my nineteen years in business in Arlington County I have not seen a time when indications were so favorable at as early a time in the year. I feel confident the tide is turning and that we are about to see better times in Arlington County than we have seen for many years."

Work was started yesterday by Frank Davis, contractor, on additions to the plant of the Arlington County Dairy in Clarendon. The additions represent an expenditure of approximately $10,000 and are to include a 14-ton ice machine and building a cooler room.

The annual meeting of the Virginia Ice & Fuel Co. will be held at the offices of the concern in Clarendon on January 13.

The county board of supervisors is expected to hold a special meeting tomorrow morning, to consider presentation of the county's side at the hearing on gas rates for Arlington County, to be held before the Virginia State corporation commission at Richmond on January 20.

When plans of the Federal Government for development of the area from the new memorial bridge, between the cemetery and the river, are definitely known, along with the State's plan for the Lee boulevard, the county will begin construction of the section of the road leading from the Government road along the Arlington National Cemetery to Rosslyn, passing the oil plants, according to County Engineer C. L. Kinnier. The money for building the road is available, Engineer Kinnier stated.

Efforts have been made for a number of years to have the county improve this piece of road, but it has been delayed through lack of funds. Now the county wishes to perfect its plans so they will harmonize with State and Government projects.

Members of the official board of the Ballston Christian Church have elected S. F. Shrout, chairman; Arthur R. Gooding, vice chairman; Guy O. Hill, secretary; I. I. Bollinger, treasurer and S. Franklin Shrout, financial secretary.

Members of the finance committee are S. F. Shrout, jr., Judson Reamey, I. L. Bollinger, O. P. Crickenberger, Guy O. Hill and A. R. Gooding. The Missionary Society will hold its monthly meeting at the church tonight.

The members of the Sunday school of Mount Olivet Methodist Protestant Church have elected the following officers for the year: Jesse Cheney, superintendent; Miss Elizabeth Clough, assistant superintendent; E. Wade Ball, secretary; Gordon Ball, assistant secretary; Mrs. Oladys Hull, treasurer; Waldo Goode, librarian; E. B. Croson, musical director; Miss Elizabeth Cheney, organist, and Miss Elizabeth Sealock, assistant organist.

The United Baptist Church of Cherrydale will hold its annual congregational meeting at the church tonight, at which time officers will be elected.

The county health department has announced that the Schick test, to ascertain whether a child is subject to diphtheria, will be given at the places mentioned on the following dates to any children over 6 years of age, and to all children under that age who had the preventive treatment 6 months or more prior to the dates: Clarendon Health Center, January 13; Virginia Highlands Health Center, January 14, and Cherrydale Health Center, January 15. At each of the health centers tests will start at 10 o'clock in the morning.

AUTHORITIES SILENT ON LINGLE EVIDENCE

Reason for Slaying of Chicago Crime Reporter Now Being Sought.

POLICE ARE CONFIDENT

Chicago, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Lingle murder was pinned on a St. Louis gunman today, the law's answer to the 7-month-old question: "Who killed Jake Lingle?" "Deo V. Brothers," the prosecutors said, and held him without charge, their evidence a secret, their next move hidden.

Tonight they poked about in still perplexing darkness for the answer to a more significant question: "Why was he killed?"

To the public, at least, the source of the underworld order for the execution of the Tribune crime reporter was as much a mystery as ever, and the investigators who staked their reputations on their arrest of Brothers as the assassin kept their counsel.

Identified by Nine Witnesses.

Nine witnesses, they said, have definitely pointed to Brothers as the man who crept up to Lingle in a downtown boulevard tunnel last June 9 and shot him dead. Who were the witnesses?

"We can't give you that yet," replied John A. Swanson, State's attorney. The investigators were reminded that witnesses had identified other "killers"—Ted Gelaking, of the Indiana Traum gang, afterward exonerated of implication and sent to jail in Indiana; Frankie Foster, identified by a policeman as the fugitive he saw running from the scene of Lingle's death. Foster is under indictment for the murder, accused of once owning the weapon found by Lingle's body.

"If Brothers is not the killer," said Pat Roche, chief investigator, "then Lingle is still alive." Roche and his staff engineered the coup that brought Brothers' arrest in an apartment December 21.

Faces Another Murder Charge.

He has been held incommunicado since, the prosecutors have made no move to seek his indictment and if he should win freedom by habeas corpus writ he faces probable removal to St. Louis for the murder August 2, 1929, of John de Blasi, 18-year-old service car driver.

None of the investigators has indicated Brothers, or Bader, as he was registered in his apartment and known in Belleville, Ills., was acquainted with Lingle. Nor have his gang connections been made known. It is assumed he was a hireling killer, brought here to do the "job" because he was a stranger here, cool with the trigger and unknown to Chicago police, although he had a record of 60 arrests, but not one conviction in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Miss Margaret Walsh, said by police to be a former sweetheart of Leo Brothers, alleged slayer of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, was arrested here late today and taken to police headquarters, where she was questioned by Chief of Detectives Robert Kaiser.

Miss Walsh, also known as Margaret McDonald, said she had not seen Brohters or heard from him during the last two years. She said she was in Chicago to attend a football game about six weeks ago, but insisted she did not see the alleged slayer at that time. She also denied she was in Springfield, Ill., in August, 1929, when Brothers was said to have been living at Beardstown, Ill. Brothers' flight from St. Louis followed the slaying of John De Blasi, a service car driver.

Suitcase Stolen From Auto.

William G. Maudley, of Maplewood, N. J., told police that a suitcase containing clothing worth $250 was stolen from his car which was parked on Pennsylvania avenue near Sixth street northwest early yesterday morning.

SILBERMANN NAMED IN MAGISTRATE QUIZ

MINORS HELD ILLEGALLY

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The parade of pointing fingers moved again today among the magistrates and paused before Magistrate Jesse Silbermann. A witness in Referee Seabury's public inquiry into the magistrates' courts was Samuel Klein, a retailer. He told of a girl, arrested on his complaint for stealing dresses, who was dismissed after Magistrate Silbermann had heard the case.

The attorney who prosecuted, Klein testified, was John C. Weston, who has admitted taking $20,000 in bribes to "lay down" on cases he prosecuted. The witness said that he "thought there was something funny about the case," but that persistent effort to push the prosecution of the girl was discouraged by the magistrate.

Pursuing another phase of the inquiry, Isadore J. Kresel, special counsel, offered evidence to show that more than half a hundred girls were held illegally at Bedford Reformatory as wayward minors.

All the cases cited by Kresel were of minors who were committed to the reformatory upon their "pleas of guilty." A minor, he said, can not be committed to a reformatory on her plea of guilty, this fact making the commitments invalid on their face. The commitments were made by various magistrates. Altogether 76 girls were thus committed, but only 51 are in the reformatory at present.

As an outgrowth of the present appellate division hearing, "Chile" Acuna testified today at the trial of five policemen on charges of "framing" women. Acuna repeated much of the testimony he had given in the public hearing.

Long Not to Take Seat In Senate Before 1932

(Associated Press.)

Definite word has been received at the Capitol from Gov. Huey P. Long of Louisiana that he will serve out his term as governor and will not take the seat in the Senate he won last November until early in 1932.

The decision of Long makes less likely the prospect of Democrats organizing the next Senate. The election gave the Democrats 47 members, Republicans, 48, and Farmer-Labor, 1.

FALLS CHURCH GETS READY FOR ELECTION

Names of Nine Dead Persons Stricken From List for Vote on Bonds.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Falls Church town council has appointed Dr. Julius Parmelee, Frank L. Birch and Town Clerk J. C. Parrottas judges at the special water bond issue election next Tuesday.

At a recent meeting of the council the list of resident freehold property owners of the town of Falls Church entitled to participate in this special election was reduced. Names of nine dead persons, whose property never had been transferred on the taxbooks, and names of 37 persons who own property in the town but are non-residents were removed from the list.

The lists of resident free-hold property owners have been posted for more than two weeks and may be consulted in the postoffices of Falls Church, East Falls Church and West Falls Church; in the Falls Church Bank and the East Falls Church branch of the bank, in the police station, in Wares Drug Store at East Falls Church, in Brown's store in Falls Church and in the office of J. V. Turner.

To Meet Again Monday.

Another special meeting of the council will be held Monday night in the town hall when taxpayers whose names were stricken from the list will get opportunity to protest.

According to the list there are about 650 freehold property owners in the corporate limits of the town, which lies in Fairfax and Arlington Counties. A special provision in the town charter allows all resident freeholders above 21 years of age to vote in the first bond issue election. Therefore more can participate in this election than in the second election, which is limited to qualified voters whose capitation taxes were paid six months prior to the regular town election on June 2.

There are only a few more than 500 registered voters in the town of Falls Church.

The joint committee of the councilmen and citizens, which is composed of Charles Gage, chairman; J. V. Turner, Frank L. Birch, Harry M. Keyser, Carroll V. Shreve, E. H. Rosengarten, Herbert Coward, John T. Bowen, with Mayor L. P. Daniel as ex-officia member, requests every freeholder in the town to become familiar with the plans drafted by the committee, the situation confronting the town and the benefits to be derived from a municipal water system.

They say that the citizens are facing one of the most important decisions in the town's history. They also say that while the recent rains may relieve the water shortage, they feel that the citizens never can place reliance in wells alone. In fact, they say that as the months go by, with less than normal snow or rain fall, the possibility is summer will find the wells as low as they were last year. They emphasize that the immediate danger, especially in the more thickly populated sections of the town, lies in the fact that germs of typhoid and other contagious diseases accumulate in the soil during a drought, and that when rani finally fills the wells there is an unusual amount of pollution in most of the water used for drinking and household purposes.

Plan Summarized.

Summary of the plan evolved by the committee calls for the purchase from Arlington County of all mains, fire hydrants and other equipment already installed within the corporate limits; refund to the citizens of all cash payments of frontage charges and the taking over of all notes given to Arlington County for frontage charges, the cost of such refunds to be computed as a portion of the purchase price, to be agreed upon with Arlington County; extension of the water mains over the rest of the town; purchase of water from Arlington County at the corporation line, and arrangement, if possible, with Arlington County water departmnet to read the town meters and render the bills.

The committee has estimated at $100,000 the cost of purchasing the mains in East Falls Church and in extending them throughout the rest of the town. As no definite figure can be given until after bids have been obtained, the committee believes an additional $25,000 should be voted to allow a margin of safety and to provide a reserve fund, although it may not be necessary to expend the full amount. Their plan calls for the sale of municipal bonds at par value plus accrued interest, the bonds to be retired during a period of 30 years.

The most important question confronting those entitled to vote in this and succeeding elections is a method of paying interest charges, retiring the bonds as they come due, and the cost of the citizens. According to the plan of the committee, increase in taxes is not believed necessary, except a special town tax for fire protection, to provide hydrants, &c.

This should relieve the citizens of paying a similar fire protection tax to Fairfax and Arlington Counties.

They point out that all the people would benefit from fire protection, whether they use town water or not, and if the expense is met by increasing the water rents the users will be unfairly assessed for the protection of nonusers.

Indebtedness Permitted.

The committee states that the law recognizes two general classes of bonded indebtedness, which may be incurred by incorporated towns. The first is those for revenue producing purposes, and those for nonrevenue producing purposes. If the bonds are for a revenue producing purpose, no increase in taxes is required by law, as it is assumed the revenue will cover the cost of operation, interest and bond payments. In the second class, a special tax must be levied annually to take care of these items.

It is said that if the bond issue is favorably voted, the water users will only have two items of expense—a connection charge for installing a meter and the tapping of the main, and a monthly charge. The present connection charge in Arlington County is $40, with a monthly rate of $2 for 40,000 gallons of water, rates decreasing per gallon over that quantity.

The committee has used Arlington County charges as a basis for making estimates in Falls Church, and there will be no frontage charge on property in the town, as made in Arlington County.

The committee points out that there is approximately 15 miles of accepted streets and some unaccepted streets in the town. The tentative plan calls for an initial installation of about 12 miles of mains and about 100 hydrants. No attempt has been made to include all the streets, but no street has been eliminated because it is not fully built up. The committee plans to cover Falls Church completely with mains, to afford fire protection to every resident and it believes that wherever there is a group of houses there will be demand for water connections.

MUNICIP AL GROUP DISCUSSES POLICE

NEW ROAD IS SOUGHT

Police protection in the Metropolitan area formed the chief subject of discussion at last night's meeting of the Prince Georges County Municipal Officers Association, which was held in the fire house at Riverdale. Charges were made that policemen paid by the towns were used in enforcing State laws and that fines imposed for violations of State laws went to the State.

It was suggested that fines imposed on State charges should be devided between the State and town when town officers made the arrest. It was also charged that the policeman stationed now in the vicinity of Hyattsville was not sufficient to take care of traffic violations on the new Baltimore boulevard. Additions to the State force will not benefit this section as most of the men are expected to be stationed in the vicinity of Baltimore.

Preliminary steps looking to the opening of the Lanham-Severn road were taken upon the opening of the State Legislature, as Jacob Berlin, president of the association working for the road, went into conference with the Prince Georges delegation. Construction of the road seems certain, though it is doubtful how it will be financed.

Even though such a bill is thought to have slight chance of passage, the county delegation will attempt to have the road financed by a general bond issue. This was the method used to finance the building of the Crain highway. If the bond issue is turned down by the two houses, it is expected that the county commissioners of Anne Arundel and Prince Georges Counties will start the project as a lateral road.

Prompt action will have to be taken on the bond issue after the Legislature reconvenes next Tuesday, for the counties' lateral road recommendations must be filed with the State Roads Commission by February 1. The road will be about 17 miles long. The bond issue bill is being drawn up by the Lanham-Severn Road Association.

Changing a sentence he pronounced in Hyattsville Police Court Wednesday, Judge J. Chew Sheriff yesterday recalled Leo Leckliter into Capitol Heights court. Leckliter had been fined $10 for being drunk and disorderly and remanded to jail in default of the fine.

The judge suspended the sentence yesterday so that Leckliter's wife and children would not suffer from his imprisonment. It is understood that friends of the man appealed for him Wednesday night.

A motion picture film showing graphically methods of preventing diphtheria will be projected next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Arcade Theater in Hyattsville. The affair is under the direction of Dr. A. B. Hooton, county health officer.

Two deaths resulted from the four cases of the disease reported in that section during December. Free antitoxin treatments, started in the county schools last Tuesday, will be continued on the next two Tuesdays.

Filing suit for damages of $500, the William E. Miller Furniture Co. claims that William F. Rock, of T. B., has "wrongfully deprived them of the use of 97 yards of battleship linoleum."

Claiming that Charles E. Warpham, of Virginia, was at fault in an accident between his car and a truck belonging to the Riverdale Park Co., the latter party has sued for damages of $250.

Although the drought cost Maryland at least $40,000,000, according to Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the extension service of the University of Maryland, the State is not in as dire straits as other territories. Active cooperative associations among the dairying and tobacco industries have tended to reduce hardships suffered by producers of these commodities.

Dr. Symons sees it as possible that improved marketing systems may come from the disorganized conditions obtaining during last summer. The annual conference of extension workers, which will be held in January, will be devoted to discussions of problems raised during the drought period.

Only small-grain crops were unaffected by the long, dry spell, canning, truck, fruit and feed crops all showing a falling off. Pastures provided almost no food for live stock and hay was also a failure, making the importation of feed necessary. Activities of State agencies in getting lower freight rates for these products was cited as one of the aids provided for the farmers by the administration.

"Not only were the farmers confronted with decreased production such as they had never before experienced, and with products of poor quality because of insufficient moisture to make normal growth, but prices for nearly all kinds of farm products have been extremely low," Dr. Symons said. Crop rotation systems have also been upset, he said, and will not return to normal for some time.

WOODCOCK SPEAKS TO ALEXANDRIA CLUB

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, national prohibition director, in his address before the local Kiwanis Club luncheon in the George Mason Hotel yesterday, touched lightly on the prohibition question, but urged his hearers, in order to get the facts, to take for their slogan, "The Truth Will Maye You Free."

Col. Woodcock said the country is going slowly about the business of enforcing the eighteenth amendment, and he hopes before other steps are taken regarding the liquor situation, that the facts will be obtained. He declared that he did not come to Alexandria to speak on prohibition, which, he asserted, is just another phrase for a better government. Prohibition, he said, will yield to a careful and scientific study after the facts have been obtained. The only feeling he has in the matter, he said, is to administer his office in Washington in accordance with the facts.

Col. Woodcock was introduced by the Rev. E. R. Spencer, pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church, who was in charge of the entertainment program.

Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, introduced Herman Pfaff, chief mechanic of the Graf Zeppelin, who was given an ovation. Mr. Pfaff does not speak English, and Mr. Hollenga, who is an accomplished linguist, acted as interpreter. Mr. Hollenga stated that Dr. Eckener's chief mechanic came to Alexandria to inspect the site at Hybla Valley, which is being considered as a terminal for the Zeppelin Transport Co.

F. Clinton Knight, for the last eight years postmaster of Alexandria, has been reappointed for another term of four years from December 22, 1930. His appointment, sent to the Senate by President Hoover, was confirmed yesterday. Postmaster Knight succeeded the late Dr. William M. Smith.

James W. Jackson Council, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, has installed these officers to serve for the ensuing year: C. M. Robey, councilor; S. A. Forest, recording secretary; Emory E. Brown, vice councilor; W. A. Gaumer, financial secretary; J. F. Pettey, treasurer; Moody Berry, conductor; Edward Brown, warden; George Crump, inside sentinel; Louis Penn, outside sentinel; George Crump, trustee for eighteen months; F. S. Travers, chaplain, and R. B. Pettit, jr., captain of the degree team.

D. Curtis Gano, past president of the New York State Elks Association and of the good of the order committee of the grand lodge, will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given by Robert S. Barrett, past exalted ruler of the Alexandria lodge and chairman of the good of the order committee of the grand lodge, at the George Mason Hotel. Officers of Alexandria Lodge of Elks have been invited to meet Mr. Gano.

The degree team of Alexandria Post, American Legion, in charge of H. B. Lemon, journeyed to Quantico Wednesday night and initiated eight members of the Buck Eyes Post of Quantico, the second degree being conferred.

The meeting was presided over by Commander Arthur W. McArthur, of the Quantico Post, and talks were made by Col. Clarence Deems, of Alexandria, and Maj. Charles D. Barrett, of Quantico, both members of the Alexandria Post.

Cadet T. Smith, of the Alexandria High School, haing made the highest score in the rifle match for cadets who joined the corps after January 1, 1930, has been awarded a special medal by the professor of military science and tactics. Cadet Smith's score was 43—45, total 88. The medal will be awarded at a ceremony to be held later.

Receivers Asked For Gas Concern

West Virginia Company Has Defaulted on Coupons, Says Complaint.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Receivers for the Midland Natural Gas Co. of Charleston, W. Va., were requested in applications filed today in Federal Court here and at Clarksburg, W. Va. The concern has gas and oil properties in Kentucky, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Fall River, Mass., stockholders, the F. L. Andrews Investment Trust and Harold C. Bowen said the company had defaulted on redemption coupons after issuing $2,500,000 in 6 per cent bonds.

Midland is closely allied with the Twin State Gas Co. in southern West Virginia and with the Inland Utilities of Delaware. The date for the hearing on the application was set for January 28.

U. S. May Appeal "Black Tom" Case

Reopening of Claim Decided in Favor of Germany Is Considered.

(Associated Press.)

American representatives before the German-American Mixed Claims Commission are considering a request to the commission to reopen the famous "Black Tom" case decided recently in favor of Germany.

Announcement was made November 14 of a decision dismissing the claims for lack of sufficient evidence to show the German government was liable for damages by fires allegedly caused by German spies during the World War.

The "Black Tom" case involved a fire on the night of July 29-30, 1916, at the terminal yards of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at New York.

The cases were argued for the United States by Robert W. Bonynge, who was absent from the Capital tonight. The grounds on which Bonyng is considering an appeal for a rehearing were not disclosed.

Policeman's Wife Called.

Sergt. Thomas McNamara, of the Traffic Bureau.

Marie Griffith, 235 Fourteenth street northeast, Paddy's sister.

Mrs. Robert F. Langdon, 1282 Oates street northeast, wife of the policeman who is being held.

Privates Paul Berger and Thomas Carter, of the Eleventh Precinct.

Vernon Limerick, William Paddy, Richard Reed and Langdon, who are being held in connection with the case, will also be called.

Testimony of the three witnesses from the undertaking establishment is expected to yield details of the mystery which have not yet been made public. What occurred from the time they were called until they notified police the girl had been shot, and what they found, and how they found it, will probably be revealed in their testimony.

Attempt to Get Pictures.

Efforts of news photographers to photograph Mrs. Limerick and Mrs. Bywaters last night as they were having headquarters for their home provided a lighter touch to the rapidly unfolding drama. The two women, accompanied by two male escorts, dodged through the corridors of the building, finally secreting themselves in a basement room.

There they remained, while one of their escorts drove their automobile through alleys near the building, in an effort to throw photographers off the track. When they finally left, through the front basement door, they were greeted by the usual boom of flashlights, which revealed their heads swathed in white cloth.

food provision for any section of the country as a matter of principle. He added the England, Ark., food disturbance was staged "for the purpose of creating consternation and confusion and trouble all over the country," and declared the Arkansas governor had repudiated the whole thing.

At that point Representative Parks (Democrat), Arkansas, leaped to his feet and shouted that the people participating in the Arkansas incident "never heard of a radical organization in their lives."

He declared the action was "not any preconceived movement, but was a movement of starving people."

Parks read a telegram from Gov. Parnell, of Arkansas, and more than a score others from prominent Arkansas people urging relief and telling of pitiful conditions in the drought areas.

Parnell to correct any impression that Arkansas does not need assistance, regardless of what the Eastern papers may say," Parnell's telegram read. "Am strong for the Caraway amendment and hope that it will pass by big majority."

Similar telegrams were read in the Senate by Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, who proposed the $15,000,000 amendment.

HOOVER DEFENDED ON RAIL MERGERS

RAPPED BY BROOKHART

(Associated Press.)

The House yesterday heard a vigorous defense of President Hoover's activities in connection with the agreement of Eastern railroad officials for consolidation into four great trunk line systems.

Replying to those who have criticized the Chief Executive, Chairman Parker, of the interstate commerce committee, asserted Mr. Hoover knew nothing of the details of the unification plans, had given none of them his approval and in no way had influenced the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Meanwhile, Senator Brookhart, independent Republican, Iowa, criticized the proposed consolidation as "a gigantic stock jobbing merger" and introduced legislation to prevent all rail mergers except Coast to Coast systems.

Couzens Receives Protests.

Chairman Couzens of the Senate interstate commerce committee, who is opposed to the Eastern plan, said he had received several protests from coal operators who contended the proposed unification would reduce competition.

Plans for the consolidation were announced last week by President Hoover after an agreement had been reached by the heads of the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio and New York Central Railroads, which are to form the backbone of the unification.

Danger in Further Delay.

Parker said Mr. Hoover had seen danger in further delaying consolidation and that through his good offices an understanding had been reached. He succeeded in obtaining action, the House member added, where further delay might have meant impaired railroad service.

There is "not one scintilla of evidence," he added, that the President was attempting to dictate to the commission.

Parker foresaw, with the proposed mergers, the expenditure of vast sums for railroad construction and expansion, providing employment for thousands.

HOUSE LEADERS PUT SHOALS IN JEOPARDY

(Associated Press.)

New barriers which may shut Muscle Shoals legislation out of the green pastures of legal statutes were visualized by advocates yesterday as they linked past utterances of President Hoover with the reaffirmed opposition of House administration leaders to the compromise proposal.

Parliametnary procedure was said to have been discussed at a conference in the afternoon of Speaker Longworth, Walter Newton, secretary to the President; Chairman Snell of the rules committee and Representatives Ransley, of Pennsylvania, and Reece, Tennesse, Republican conferees, who refused to accept the tentative agreement of a conference majority.

President's Attitude.

House leaders said no word had been received to indicate the President had altered his opposition to the Norris Government operation bill. The main points of the Norris measure, including Government operation of the power plants and construction of transmission lines, have been agreed on in conference.

After a visit to the White House in the morning, Majority Leader Tilson said the reported agreement "ought not pass the House."

"I am opposed to the Government going into the power business," he said. "That is the crux of the matter involved."

Tilson tried to correct impressions that he had predicted the House would reject a Government operation bill.

To Vote Against It.

Snell reaffirmed his personal opposition to the compromise and said: "I have understood the President is opposed to Government operation."

Snell said that while he would vote against the compromise he would "not predict its rejection by the House." The conference report probably will come up next week.

Meanwhile, the House conferees continued to work on details of the section of the bill on nitrate plants, their leasing and the production of fertilizer. Work along this line was uncompleted and will be continued tomorrow.

'Perpetual' Cuban Students Are Blamed for Uprisings

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

The students who started all the shooting in Cuba recently are not of the same type as the rosy-cheeked youngsters at Georgetown, George Washington or Catholic University; rather, they are comparatively old old men, trouble-making intellectuals, who continue to attend Cuba's national university long after the traditional four-year period is past.

This is the explanation of the "student uprising" in Cuba that was brought back from the island yesterday by Representative Fred Britten (Republican), of Illinois, globe-trotting chairman of the House naval affairs committee. Mr. Britten spent the congressional recess in Cuba.

"They are intellectual bums," Mr. Britten said. "They continue going to the national university merely by paying $20 a year. Some of them are as old as I am. Not only do they dominate the students, but they dominate the professors. It is they who incite the younger men to staging demonstrations against the government."

Mr. Britten said he got this explanation about the rebellious students from President Machado himself, and he quoted the Cuban executive as saying that a law soon will be enacted that will oust the "intellectual bums." Then, he said, they probably will be arrested as vagabonds.

"In dealing firmly with opponents of organized government composed almost entirely of defeated radicals, communists and unrestrained students," Representative Britten said, "President Machado is but doing for Cuba what has repeatedly been done to successfully protect several of the present day European governments against costly internal disorders and possible revolution.

"The four or five separate elements opposing everything that Gen. Machado does, are without leadership and without program or policy. They blame the present government for all the economic distress and unemployment in the island. Machado is held responsible for the low price of sugar and tobacco which constitutes 90 per cent of the wealth and prosperity of Cuba.

"I happened to be lunching at the Havana Yacht Club the very moment it was closed by government decree and I, with others, was politely informed that the place was padlocked and we must leave the premises. The club was a meeting place for former President Menocal and others who are trying to destroy the government. When I asked an officer of the club who the opposition might center upon to succeed President Machado, he smilingly said, 'That is the trouble; we have no one.'

"We motored far into the country and everywhere found the people in apparent peace and healthful surroundings. There was much less poverty than in many, many sections of the United States today. Children appeared to be well fed and every one was looking forward to January 15, when the cutting of the sugar cane starts. This is expected to signalize the return of better times."

Mr. Britten praised President Machado, and also the American Ambassador, Harry Guggenheim, and declared that there was no basis for suggestions that the United States intervene in the political affairs of the island.

NYE GROUP TO PROBE FURTHER INTO FUNDS

G. O. P. Officials of Kentucky and Maryland Are Called as Witnesses.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate campaign funds committee decided yesterday to drill still further into the $50,000 special account of the Republican national committee, $32,000 of which was sent into eight States for use in behalf of House candidates in the November elections.

J. Matt Chilton, Republican national committeeman for Kentucky, and Galen L. Tait, Republican State chairman for Maryland, were summoned to appear before the investigators next Tuesday for questioning as to the use made of funds turned over to them from the account. Chairman Nye said he expected they would have some "interesting stories" to tell.

Committee officials have testified $6,500 was sent to Chilton and $4,000 to Tait.

Unreported by Candidates.

Nye said it also had been developed that while Chilton's report to the House showed allotment of his fund to House candidates, no report of receiving this money was made by the candidates to the Kentucky secretary of state as, he said, was required by law.

Tait, in a report filed with the clerk of the House Wednesday, showed expenditures of $3,600 on election day—all for automobile hire. The special allotments to county committeemen averaged about $400 for this purpose.

Senator Nye has called the special account of the national committee a "slush fund." Joseph R. Nutt, committee treasurer, demanded an apology from Nye, saying a detailed report of the expenditures was on file in the House when Nye made his charge and all of the money went for legitimate campaign purposes.

Fund Pledged by Lucas.

It was this fund which Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the national committee, pledged as security for a $4,000 loan to pay for campaign documents, some of which were used against the reelection of Senator Norris (Republican Independent), Nebraska. Nutt expressed emphatic disapproval Wednesday of Lucas' action, saying he had no right to use the account for collateral for any purpose.

Mr. Nye has not finished with the Nebraska investigation but had not decided yesterday what his next step would be.

Meanwhile, the campaign funds group is expected to continue work on its Pennsylvania report and decide whether investigations will be made in Alabama and Montana.

The session, in the nature of an organization meeting, was addressed by Dr. John W. Lowe, on "Reciprocity," and by the Rev. George Farnham, pastor of the Cleveland Park Congregational Church. Ernest W. Woodson, of Baltimore, also spoke. Arthur C. Smith, acting president of the club, acted as toastmaster.

One young and rash reported asked the question that the older and wiser ones had been turning over in their minds while measuring with their eyes the distance between themselves, the slim young fighter and the door.

"Weren't you afraid, Mr. Carpentier?" he said.

"Afraid?" Georges's eyes flashed Gallic fire. Then he straightened up with dignity. "Of course I was not afraid," he replied. "But they had guns. And I am not used to your funny American ways."

Four Killed on Air Lines In Six-Month Period

(Associated Press.)

Only two passengers and two pilots were reported yesterday by Assistant Secretary Young, of the Commerce Department, to have been killed in airplane accidents on scheduled air lines during the last six months of 1930. There were 22 passengers and 6 pilots killed during the first six months of the year.

Final reports as to the number of miles flown in scheduled transport services in the last six months of 1930 have not been received, Mr. Young said, but he estimated the total to be about 20,000,000 miles.

POLLARD PROMISES HELP FOR PARKWAY

Governor of Virginia Assures Planning Commission of His Cooperation.

ADVANTAGES ARE CITED

Meeting with representatives of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday, Gov. John Pollard of Virginia assured them of his interest and cooperation in the development of the George Washington Memorial Parkway, as provided in the Capper-Cramton bill, passed at the last session of Congress.

W. E. Carson, chairman of the conservation and development commission of Virginia, who has been largely responsible for the development of Shenandoah National Park, was designated by the governor to assist in working out the details to obtain the cooperation of every county in the State in support of the parkway.

Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, assured Gov. Pollard that the Federal Government is ready to proceed with its part in the fulfillment of the Capper-Cramton act and brought to the attention of the governor the many advantages which will accrue to the State of Virginia by reason of the parkway.

Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer to the commission, stressed the developments which are already under operation on the Virginia side of the Potomac River. He stated that the opening of the new Memorial Bridge will greatly add to the development of northern Virginia and also be the gateway to the South through which millions of tourists will visit the many historical points of interest in the State.

Senate Hearing Today.

Ashton C. Jones, president of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, with Hugh L. Kirby, member of the board of directors, assured the governor that the citizens of northern Virginia are in accord with the Capper-Cramton bill, which provides for the construction of the George Washington Memorial Parkway, and appealed for hi ssupport and cooperation.

Those attending the conference were Hugh Lee Kirby, member of the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce; Col. U. S. Grant 3d, executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission; Frederic A Delano, chairman of the commission; Ashton C. Jones, of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce.

University Group Raps Militarism

Johns Hopkins Club Seeks to Abolish Training in American Colleges.

Baltimore, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A student petition urging the abolition by Congress of compulsory military training in American colleges and universities is being circulated at Johns Hopkins University here by members of Liberal Club, it became known today. The club has had 25 members who hope to secure 2,000 signatures to the document.

At the university, it was pointed out, military training is not compulsory, but most of the freshmen and sophomores enroll in the course for credits. Some, it was explained, study the course because the university lacks a gymnasium.

Included in the petition is the following paragraph: "We consider that our military drill courses are not only inconsistent with the Kellogg pact, repudiating war as a means of settling international disputes, but constitute a grave danger to world peace."

director will lose his job, objections have continued.

Bill Written in Haste.

Under the present system the District Commissioners can not institute any traffic regulations except through recommendation of the traffic director.

Another moot point has been the proposal for establishing a joint board of the Commissioners and the Publi cUtilities Commission to settle points of dispute regarding the regulation of interstate busses and the movement of taxicabs. These two bodies clashed heatedly on this division of authority after the bill reached Congress, but later settled their differences.

The bill under fire admittedly was under fire by the corporation counsel's office and was twice revised. It embodied some of the recommendations of the traffic advisory council, which made an elaborate survey of the traffic needs of Washington, and discarded others.

Criticism was voiced in a number of civic bodies that the measure was drafted and sent to the Capitol without any civic agencies outside the District Building being consulted.

This morning Senator Hamilton F. Kean (Republican), of New Jersey, chairman of the traffic subcommittee of the Senate District committee will hold a public hearing on the bill. The hearing is to begin at 10 o'clock and will be held in the Senate District committee room in the Capitol.

The outcome of this hearing will depend somewhat on what are the fruits of the series of conferences held yesterday.

HEARING DATE SET ON REZONING PLANS

Afternoon Meeting Arranged for Arlington Draws Civic Body's Protest.

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

According to an announcement made yesterday by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, the County Board of Supervisors will consider any proposals for changes in the county zoning law at its meeting on January 16, at 2 o'clock. This hearing is being held at the suggestion of Robert H. Forman, zoning administrator.

If the board decides that the zoning ordinance should be amended, the intention to amend, together with proposed changes, will be published.

Commenting on the announcement of the meeting, Harry A. Fellows, president of the Arlington County Civic Federation, last night said:

"I endorse the recent action of the federation in opposing holding any meetings of the county board of supervisors on the question of proposed amendments to the county zoning ordinance in the afternoon and wish at this time to enter my protest.

"The board of supervisors should follow the policy of the zoning commission, which for months held meetings in the evening, when those most interested in the subject could attend and voice their views on the subject.

"The holding of afternoon meetings, in many instances, works a great hardship on the citizens who wish to attend, but who would lose time from their offices and in some cases lose a part of their salary, if they did."

Mr. Fellows expressed the hope that the board will consider the wishes of the citizens and arrange to hold this meeting in the evening.

Clarence R. Ahalt was elected president of the Virginia Title Insurance Co., Inc., at its annual meeting of stockholders held yesterday in the offices of the company opposite the Arlington County Courthouse. Other officers are: John G. Graham, first vice president; Walter M. Bastian, second vice president; A. L. Kelley, treasurer; H. Bruce Green, secretary. Members of the board of directors are: Frank G. Campbell, Clarence R. Ahalt, John G. Graham, Fred A. Gosnell, Thomas A. Lee and David N. Rust, jr.

The Arlington County Monarch Club at its meeting yesterday voted to support the Boy Scout movement in the county by appropriating $50. The action followed the motion made by Dr. B. H. Sawin, who stated that the club could do no better thing than get behind the movement.

Determined to build up the club during the year, President Albert H. Cohen announced that during the year two $5 gold pieces will be offered as prizes. The first will go to the member having the best attendance, Bringing a guest who later becomes a member will also be counted. The second is to go to the team bringing in the largest number of members. The prizes are to be awarded in the fall. Walter U. Varney was appointed captain of the Purple Team and Joseph C. Anderson, captain of the Gold Team. The captains are to choose their assistants.

President Cohen announces that the following have been chosen as members of the board of governors: Dexter Hussey, Albert H. Cohen, Dr. Ernest R. Hagan, Joseph C. Anderson, Walter U. Varney, the Rev. Henry J. Miller and Dr. C. R. Boyland.

Entertainment committee—Mr. Miller, chairman; Mr. Anderson and Mr. Varney. Other committees will be appointed at the next meeting.

That Arlington County is on the threshold of better business conditions is indicated by the statement of William W. Rucker, president of the Rucker Lumber Co., Inc., who said: "In my nineteen years in business in Arlington County I have not seen a time when indications were so favorable at as early a time in the year. I feel confident the tide is turning and that we are about to see better times in Arlington County than we have seen for many years."

Work was started yesterday by Frank Davis, contractor, on additions to the plant of the Arlington County Dairy in Clarendon. The additions represent an expenditure of approximately $10,000 and are to include a 14-ton ice machine and building a cooler room.

The annual meeting of the Virginia Ice & Fuel Co. will be held at the offices of the concern in Clarendon on January 13.

The county board of supervisors is expected to hold a special meeting tomorrow morning, to consider presentation of the county's side at the hearing on gas rates for Arlington County, to be held before the Virginia State corporation commission at Richmond on January 20.

When plans of the Federal Government for development of the area from the new memorial bridge, between the cemetery and the river, are definitely known, along with the State's plan for the Lee boulevard, the county will begin construction of the section of the road leading from the Government road along the Arlington National Cemetery to Rosslyn, passing the oil plants, according to County Engineer C. L. Kinnier. The money for building the road is available, Engineer Kinnier stated.

Efforts have been made for a number of years to have the county improve this piece of road, but it has been delayed through lack of funds. Now the county wishes to perfect its plans so they will harmonize with State and Government projects.

Members of the official board of the Ballston Christian Church have elected S. F. Shrout, chairman; Arthur R. Gooding, vice chairman; Guy O. Hill, secretary; I. I. Bollinger, treasurer and S. Franklin Shrout, financial secretary.

Members of the finance committee are S. F. Shrout, jr., Judson Reamey, I. L. Bollinger, O. P. Crickenberger, Guy O. Hill and A. R. Gooding. The Missionary Society will hold its monthly meeting at the church tonight.

The members of the Sunday school of Mount Olivet Methodist Protestant Church have elected the following officers for the year: Jesse Cheney, superintendent; Miss Elizabeth Clough, assistant superintendent; E. Wade Ball, secretary; Gordon Ball, assistant secretary; Mrs. Gladys Hull, treasurer; Waldo Goode, librarian; E. E. Croson, musical director; Miss Elizabeth Cheney, organist, and Miss Elizabeth Sealock, assistant organist.

The United Baptist Church of Cherrydale will hold its annual congregational meeting at the church tonight, at which time officers will be elected.

The county health department has announced that the Schick test, to ascertain whether a child is subject to diphtheria, will be given at the places mentioned on the following dates to any children over 6 years of age, and to all children under that age who had the preventive treatment 6 months or more prior to the dates:

Clarendon Health Center, January 13; Virginia Highlands Health Center, January 14, and Cherrydale Health Center, January 15. At each of the health centers tests will start at 10 o'clock in the morning.

AUTHORITIES SILENT ON LINGLE EVIDENCE

Reason for Slaying of Chicago Crime Reporter Now Being Sought.

POLICE ARE CONFIDENT

Chicago, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Lingle murder was pinned on a St. Louis gunman today, the law's answer to the 7-month-old question: "Who killed Jake Lingle?" "Leo V. Brothers," the prosecutors said, and held him without charge, their evidence a secret, their next move hidden.

Tonight they poked about in still perplexing darkness for the answer to a more significant question: "Why was he killed?"

To the public, at least, the source of the underworld order for the execution of the Tribune crime reporter was as much a mystery as ever, and the investigators who staked their reputations on their arrest of Brothers as the assassin kept their counsel.

Identified by Nine Witnesses.

Nine witnesses, they said, have definitely pointed to Brothers as the man who crept up to Lingle in a downtown boulevard tunnel last June 9 and shot him dead. Who were the witnesses?

"We can't give you that yet," replied John A. Swanson, State's attorney. The investigators were reminded that witnesses had identified other "killers"—Ted Gelsking, of the Indiana Traum gang, afterward exonerated of implication and sent to jail in Indiana; Frankie Foster, identified by a policeman as the fugitive he saw running from the scene of Lingle's death. Foster is under indictment for the murder, accused of once owning the weapon found by Lingle's body.

"If Brothers is not the killer," said Pat Roche, chief investigator, "then Lingle is still alive." Roche and his staff engineered the coup that brought Brothers' arrest in an apartment December 21.

Faces Another Murder Charge.

He has been held incommunicado since, the prosecutors have made no move to seek his indictment and if he should win freedom by habeas corpus writ he faces probable removal to St. Louis for the murder August 2, 1929, of John de Blasi, 18-year-old service car driver.

None of the investigators has indicated Brothers, or Bader, as he was registered in his apartment and known in Belleville, Ills., was acquainted with Lingle. Nor have his gang connections been made known. It is assumed he was a hireling killer, brought here to do the 'job' because he was a stranger here, cool with the trigger and unknown to Chicago police, although he had a record of 60 arrests, but not one conviction in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Miss Margaret Walsh, said by police to be a former sweetheart of Leo Brothers, alleged slayer of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, was arrested here late today and taken to police headquarters, where she was questioned by Chief of Detectives Robert Kaiser.

Miss Walsh, also known as Margaret McDonald, said she had not seen Brohters or heard from him during the last two years. She said she was in Chicago to attend a football game about six weeks ago, but insisted she did not see the alleged slayer at that time. She also denied she was in Springfield, Ill., in August, 1929, when Brothers was said to have been living at Beardstown, Ill. Brothers' flight from St. Louis followed the slaying of John De Blasi, a service car driver.

Suitcase Stolen From Auto.

William G. Maudley, of Maplewood, N. J., told police that a suitcase containing clothing worth $250 was stolen from his car which was parked on Pennsylvania avenue near Sixth street northwest early yesterday morning.

SILBERMANN NAMED IN MAGISTRATE QUIZ

MINORS HELD ILLEGALLY

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The parade of pointing fingers moved again today among the magistrates and paused before Magistrate Jesse Silbermann. A witness in Referee Seabury's public inquiry into the magistrates' courts was Samuel Klein, a retailer. He told of a girl, arrested on his complaint for stealing dresses, who was dismissed after Magistrate Silbermann had heard the case.

The attorney who prosecuted, Klein testified, was John C. Weston, who has admitted taking $20,000 in bribes to "lay down" on cases he prosecuted. The witness said that he "thought there was something funny about the case," but that persistent effort to push the prosecution of the girl was discouraged by the magistrate.

Pursuing another phase of the inquiry, Isadore J. Kresel, special counsel, offered evidence to show that more than half a hundred girls were held illegally at Bedford Reformatory as wayward minors.

All the cases cited by Kresel were of minors who were committed to the reformatory upon their "pleas of guilty." A minor, he said, can not be commited to a reformatory on her plea of guilty, this fact making the commitments invalid on their face. The commitments were made by various magistrates. Altogether 76 girls were thus committed, but only 51 are in the reformatory at present.

As an outgrowth of the present appellate division hearing, "Chile" Acuna testified today at the trial of five policemen on charges of "framing" women. Acuna repeated much of the testimony he had given in the public hearing.

Long Not to Take Seat In Senate Before 1932

(Associated Press.)

Definite word has been received at the Capitol from Gov. Huey P. Long of Louisiana that he will serve out his term as governor and will not take the seat in the Senate he won last November until early in 1932.

The decision of Long makes less likely the prospect of Democrats organizing the next Senate. The election gave the Democrats 47 members, Republicans, 48, and Farmer-Labor, 1.

FALLS CHURCH GETS READY FOR ELECTION

Names of Nine Dead Persons Stricken From List for Vote on Bonds.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Falls Church town council has appointed Dr. Julius Parmelee, Frank L. Birch and Town Clerk J. C. Parrottas judges at the special water bond issue election next Tuesday.

At a recent meeting of the council the list of resident freehold property owners of the town of Falls Church entitled to participate in this special election was reduced. Names of nine dead persons, whose property never had been transferred on the taxbooks, and names of 37 persons who own property in the town but are non-residents were removed from the list.

The lists of resident free-hold property owners have been posted for more than two weeks and may be consulted in the postoffices of Falls Church, East Falls Church and West Falls Church; in the Falls Church Bank and the East Falls Church branch of the bank, in the police station, in Wares Drug Store at East Falls Church, in Brown's store in Falls Church and in the office of J. V. Turner.

To Meet Again Monday.

Another special meeting of the council will be held Monday night in the town hall when taxpayers whose names were stricken from the list will get opportunity to protest.

According to the list there are about 650 freehold property owners in the corporate limits of the town, which lies in Fairfax and Arlington Counties. A special provision in the town charter allows all resident freeholders above 21 years of age to vote in the first bond issue election. Therefore more can participate in this election than in the second election, which is limited to qualified voters whose capitation taxes were paid six months prior to the regular town election on June 2.

There are only a few more than 500 registered voters in the town of Falls Church.

The joint committee of the councilmen and citizens, which is composed of Charles Gage, chairman; J. V. Turner, Frank L. Birch, Harry M. Keyser, Carroll V. Shreve, E. H. Rosengarten, Herbert Coward, John T. Bowen, with Mayor L. P. Daniel as ex-officia member, requests every freeholder in the town to become familiar with the plans drafted by the committee, the situation confronting the town and the benefits to be derived from a municipal water system.

They say that the citizens are facing one of the most important decisions in the town's history. They also say that while the recent rains may relieve the water shortage, they feel that the citizens never can place reliance in wells alone. In fact, they say that as the months go by, with less than normal snow or rain fall, the possibility is summer will find the wells as low as they were last year. They emphasize that the immediate danger, especially in the more thickly populated sections of the town, lies in the fact that germs of typhoid and other contagious diseases accumulate in the soil during a drought, and that when rani finally fills the wells there is an unusual amount of pollution in most of the water used for drinking and household purposes.

Plan Summarized.

Summary of the plan evolved by the committee calls for the purchase from Arlington County of all mains, fire hydrants and other equipment already installed within the corporate limits; refund to the citizens of all cash payments of frontage charges and the taking over of all notes given to Arlington County for frontage charges, the cost of such refunds to be computed as a portion of the purchase price, to be agreed upon with Arlington County; extension of the water mains over the rest of the town; purchase of water from Arlington County at the corporation line, and arrangement, if possible, with Arlington County water departmnet to read the town meters and render the bills.

The committee has estimated at $100,000 the cost of purchasing the mains in East Falls Church and in extending them throughout the rest of the town. As no definite figure can be given until after bids have been obtained, the committee believes an additional $25,000 should be voted to allow a margin of safety and to provide a reserve fund, although it may not be necessary to expend the full amount. Their plan calls for the sale of municipal bonds at par value plus accrued interest, the bonds to be retired during a period of 30 years.

The most important question confronting those entitled to vote in this and succeeding elections is a method of paying interest charges, retiring the bonds as they come due, and the cost of the citizens. According to the plan of the committee, increase in taxes is not believed necessary, except a special town tax for fire protection, to provide hydrants, &c.

This should relieve the citizens of paying a similar fire protection tax to Fairfax and Arlington Counties.

They point out that all the people would benefit from fire protection, whether they use town water or not, and if the expense is met by increasing the water rents the users will be unfairly assessed for the protection of nonusers.

Indebtedness Permitted.

The committee states that the law recognizes two general classes of bonded indebtedness, which may be incurred by incorporated towns. The first is those for revenue producing purposes, and those for nonrevenue producing purposes. If the bonds are for a revenue producing purpose, no increase in taxes is required by law, as it is assumed the revenue will cover the cost of operation, interest and bond payments. In the second class, a special tax must be levied annually to take care of these items.

It is said that if the bond issue is favorably voted, the water users will only have two items of expense—a connection charge for installing a meter and the tapping of the main, and a monthly charge. The present connection charge in Arlington County is $40, with a monthly rate of $2 for 40,000 gallons of water, rates decreasing per gallon over that quantity.

The committee has used Arlington County charges as a basis for making estimates in Falls Church, and there will be no frontage charge on property in the town, as made in Arlington County.

The committee points out that there is approximately 15 miles of accepted streets and some unaccepted streets in the town. The tentative plan calls for an initial installation of about 12 miles of mains and about 100 hydrants. No attempt has been made to include all the streets, but no street has been eliminated because it is not fully built up. The committee plans to cover Falls Church completely with mains, to afford fire protection to every resident and it believes that wherever there is a group of houses there will be demand for water connections.

WOODCOCK SPEAKS TO ALEXANDRIA CLUB

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, national prohibition director, in his address before the local Kiwanis Club luncheon in the George Mason Hotel yesterday, touched lightly on the prohibition question, but urged his hearers, in order to get the facts, to take for their slogan, "The Truth Will Maye You Free."

Col. Woodcock said the country is going slowly about the business of enforcing the eighteenth amendment, and he hopes before other steps are taken regarding the liquor situation, that the facts will be obtained. He declared that he did not come to Alexandria to speak on prohibition, which, he asserted, is just another phrase for a better government. Prohibition, he said, will yield to a careful and scientific study after the facts have been obtained. The only feeling he has in the matter, he said, is to administer his office in Washington in accordance with the facts.

Col. Woodcock was introduced by the Rev. E. R. Spencer, pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church, who was in charge of the entertainment program.

Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, introduced Herman Pfaff, chief mechanic of the Graf Zeppelin, who was given an ovation. Mr. Pfaff does not speak English, and Mr. Hollenga, who is an accomplished linguist, acted as interpreter. Mr. Hollenga stated that Dr. Eckener's chief mechanic came to Alexandria to inspect the site at Hybla Valley, which is being considered as a terminal for the Zeppelin Transport Co.

F. Clinton Knight, for the last eight years postmaster of Alexandria, has been reappointed for another term of four years from December 22, 1930. His appointment, sent to the Senate by President Hoover, was confirmed yesterday. Postmaster Knight succeeded the late Dr. William M. Smith.

James W. Jackson Council, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, has installed these officers to serve for the ensuing year: C. M. Robey, councilor; S. A. Forest, recording secretary; Emory E. Brown, vice councilor; W. A. Gaumer, financial secretary; J. F. Pettey, treasurer; Moody Berry, conductor; Edward Brown, warden; George Crump, inside sentinel; Louis Penn, outside sentinel; George Crump, trustee for eighteen months; F. S. Travers, chaplain, and R. B. Pettit, jr., captain of the degree team.

D. Curtis Gano, past president of the New York State Elks Association and of the good of the order committee of the grand lodge, will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given by Robert S. Barrett, past exalted ruler of the Alexandria lodge and chairman of the good of the order committee of the grand lodge, at the George Mason Hotel. Officers of Alexandria Lodge of Elks have been invited to meet Mr. Gano.

The degree team of Alexandria Post, American Legion, in charge of H. B. Lemon, journeyed to Quantico Wednesday night and initiated eight members of the Buck Eyes Post of Quantico, the second degree being conferred.

The meeting was presided over by Commander Arthur W. McArthur, of the Quantico Post, and talks were made by Col. Clarence Deems, of Alexandria, and Maj. Charles D. Barrett, of Quantico, both members of the Alexandria Post.

Cadet T. Smith, of the Alexandria High School, haing made the highest score in the rifle match for cadets who joined the corps after January 1, 1930, has been awarded a special medal by the professor of military science and tactics. Cadet Smith's score was 43—45, total 88. The medal will be awarded at a ceremony to be held later.

MUNICIP AL GROUP DISCUSSES POLICE

NEW ROAD IS SOUGHT

Police protection in the Metropolitan area formed the chief subject of discussion at last night's meeting of the Prince Georges County Municipal Officers Association, which was held in the fire house at Riverdale. Charges were made that policemen paid by the towns were used in enforcing State laws and that fines imposed for violations of State laws went to the State.

It was suggested that fines imposed on State charges should be devided between the State and town when town officers made the arrest. It was also charged that the policeman stationed now in the vicinity of Hyattaville was not sufficient to take care of traffic violations on the new Baltimore boulevard. Additions to the State force will not benefit this section as most of the men are expected to be stationed in the vicinity of Baltimore.

Preliminary steps looking to the opening of the Lanham-Severn road were taken upon the opening of the State Legislature, as Jacob Berlin, president of the association working for the road, went into conference with the Prince Georges delegation. Construction of the road seems certain, though it is doubtful how it will be financed.

Even though such a bill is thought to have slight chance of passage, the county delegation will attempt to have the road financed by a general bond issue. This was the method used to finance the building of the Crain highway. If the bond issue is turned down by the two houses, it is expected that the county commissioners of Anne Arundel and Prince Georges Counties will start the project as a lateral road.

Prompt action will have to be taken on the bond issue after the Legislature reconvenes next Tuesday, for the counties' lateral road recommendations must be filed with the State Roads Commission by February 1. The road will be about 17 miles long. The bond issue bill is being drawn up by the Lanham-Severn Road Association.

Changing a sentence he pronounced in Hyattsville Police Court Wednesday, Judge J. Chew Sheriff yesterday recalled Leo Leckliter into Capitol Heights court. Leckliter had been fined $10 for being drunk and disorderly and remanded to jail in default of the fine.

The judge suspended the sentence yesterday so that Leckliter's wife and children would not suffer from his imprisonment. It is understood that friends of the man appealed for him Wednesday night.

A motion picture film showing graphically methods of preventing diphtheria will be projected next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Arcade Theater in Hyattsville. The affair is under the direction of Dr. A. B. Hooton, county health officer.

Two deaths resulted from the four cases of the disease reported in that section during December. Free antitoxin treatments, started in the county schools last Tuesday, will be continued on the next two Tuesdays.

Filing suit for damages of $500, the William E. Miller Furniture Co. claims that William F. Rock, of T. B., has "wrongfully deprived them of the use of 97 yards of battleship linoleum."

Claiming that Charles E. Warpham, of Virginia, was at fault in an accident between his car and a truck belonging to the Riverdale Park Co., the latter party has sued for damages of $250.

Although the drought cost Maryland at least $40,000,000, according to Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the extension service of the University of Maryland, the State is not in as dire straits as other territories. Active cooperative associations among the dairying and tobacco industries have tended to reduce hardships suffered by producers of these commodities.

Dr. Symons sees it as possible that improved marketing systems may come from the disorganized conditions obtaining during last summer. The annual conference of extension workers, which will be held in January, will be devoted to discussions of problems raised during the drought period.

Only small-grain crops were unaffected by the long, dry spell, canning, truck, fruit and feed crops all showing a falling off. Pastures provided almost no food for live stock and hay was also a failure, making the importation of feed necessary. Activities of State agencies in getting lower freight rates for these products was cited as one of the aids provided for the farmers by the administration.

"Not only were the farmers confronted with decreased production such as they had never before experienced, and with products of poor quality because of insufficient moisture to make normal growth, but prices for nearly all kinds of farm products have been extremely low," Dr. Symons said. Crop rotation systems have also been upset, he said, and will not return to normal for some time.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Norfolk police announced today William Harper, 22, a Negro, had confessed attacking a young Portsmouth woman here Tuesday night. Judge William H. Sergeant has ordered a grand jury summoned immediately to take up the case tomorrow.

Harper was arrested yesterday. Eighteen women have reported holdups, robberies and annoyances in the last month.

Receivers Asked For Gas Concern

West Virginia Company Has Defaulted on Coupons, Says Complaint.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Receivers for the Midland Natural Gas Co. of Charleston, W. Va., were requested in applications filed today in Federal Court here and at Clarksburg, W. Va. The concern has gas and oil properties in Kentucky, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Fall River, Mass., stockholders, the F. L. Andrews Investment Trust and Harold C. Bowen said the company had defaulted on redemption coupons after issuing $2,500,000 in 6 per cent bonds.

Midland is closely allied with the Twin State Gas Co. in southern West Virginia and with the Inland Utilities of Delaware. The date for the hearing on the application was set for January 28.

U. S. May Appeal "Black Tom" Case

Reopening of Claim Decided in Favor of Germany Is Considered.

(Associated Press.)

American representatives before the German-American Mixed Claims Commission are considering a request to the commission to reopen the famous "Black Tom" case decided recently in favor of Germany.

Announcement was made November 14 of a decision dismissing the claims for lack of sufficient evidence to show the German government was liable for damages by fires allegedly caused by German spies during the World War.

The "Black Tom" case involved a fire on the night of July 29-30, 1916, at the terminal yards of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at New York.

The cases were argued for the United States by Robert W. Bonynge, who was absent from the Capital tonight. The grounds on which Bonyng is considering an appeal for a rehearing were not disclosed.

Mannequins Show Attire of Cotton

Wide Variety of Wearing Apparel Is Displayed at Convention.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Diversified uses of cotton from the finest lace to beach pajamas were demonstrated before the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation convention here last night under the direction of Miss Susan Bates, exploitation expert of the Cotton Textile Institute.

Fourteen mannequins were paraded attired in garments ranging in nature from sheer velvet evening gowns to sports wear, and all made from cotton. Velveteen, an imitation silk and a sleazy pajama material were displayed by the models. Every material the models wore, from head to feet, was manufactured from cotton.

Miss Bates said the materials were not made specially for the occasion, but were taken from regular stock to demonstrate the possibilities of clothing made from the largest farm product in the world.

Years ago she had financial losses through failure of a local bank and formed a habit of sewing all her surplus cash in pockets of her underclothing.

Another says, "MOUNTAIN VALLEY MINERAL WATER without a doubt banished rheumatism for me." And another, "The pains of rheumatism are gone. Five weeks of MOUNTAIN VALLEY MINERAL WATER brought me relief." Take hope, rheumatic sufferer—this famous mineral water from Hot Springs, Ark., should do for you what it has done for thousands of others. GERONIMO SURRENDERS TO WILL OF "WHITE FATHER" senger saying that the hostiles, too, were ready and would attack the Mexicans in the rear as soon as the fight began.

WOOD TAKES LARGE PART AS GERONIMO SURRENDERS

But there was to be no fight if Wood and Smith and Horn could prevent it by tall talk of countless men in readiness roundabout. Wood recognized the possibility of some heedless finger slipping upon a Mexican trigger. He knew of the tension between Mexico and the United States and he was not sure that war had not been declared. For twenty minutes the peace of two nations hung by the thin thread of three young men's parleying. Public opinion in the United States, exasperated to the fighting point by the Cutting incident, would look on a battle in that place not merely as an "unfortunate incident," but as the first skirmish of a war.

Lawton proceeded to the point of conflict. His costume was scarcely more impressive than Wood's; it consisted of a pair of overalls, an undershirt and the rim of a felt hat. The prefect was stubborn, but agreed to go his way if he could receive assurances from Geronimo himself that he intended definitely to surrender to the Americans. That afternoon, in Lawton's camp, the meeting took place. The Prefect of Arispe had an escort of seven armed men, but Geronimo and his braves came through the bushes, ready to shoot at a pinch, the Mexican went white and slowly pushed his revolver forward on his belt. Instantly Geronimo drew his. A fiendish expression came over his face.

Americans Spring in Between.

Lawton, Gatewood and Clay Wood sprang between the two men with hands lifted. The Prefect prudently put his hands behind him and Geronimo left his revolver slide back into its holster.

"Why did you not surrender to me at Fronteras?" the Mexican asked harshly.

"Because I did not want to be murdered." The Indian was trembling, almost unable to speak.

"Are you going to surrender to the Americans?"

"I am, for I can trust them not to murder me and my people."

"Then I shall go along and see that you do surrender."

"No!" shouted Geronimo. "You are going south, and I am going north."

So it proved.

The situation remained delicate in the extreme. The Apaches had not surrendered and were in no sense prisoners. They retained their arms, marched independently in a great skirmish line a mile wide, and camped at night always in some spot impossible to approach suddenly or surround. At any hour they might have vanished up any one of a hundred burning valleys.

Once, for twenty-four hours, the Indians had their fate completely in their own hands. Lawton's troops, a few miles in the rear, lost their way, and Lawton rode to find them, leaving Gatewood and Clay and Wood in the Indian camp. If ever there was an occasion for meditation and prayer, here surely it was. On the one side, for the Apaches, was deportation and exile—even if the whites kept their word and did not kill them; on the other, at the end of a brief flight to some mountain fastness, with the three Americans as hostages, was a parley and a peace which they would dominate. They had given their word; the word of a savage, an outlaw and an assassin. How much would the word of a white outlaw and murderer be worth in a similar situation?

Geronimo Wants to See Rifle.

Geronimo came up to Wood and asked to see his rifle.

"It was a Hotchkiss and he had never seen its mechanism," Wood wrote, years afterward. "When he asked for the gun and some ammunition, I must confess I felt a little nervous, for I thought it might be a device to get hold of one of our weapons.

"I made no objection, however, but let him have it, showed him how to use it, and he fired at a mark, just missing one of his own men, which he regarded as a great joke, rolling on the ground, laughing heartily and saying, "Good gun."'

The hours passed. The Indians made no hostile move. At dusk, Periquo, brother-in-law of Geronimo, finding the three, as meal time approached, regarding somewhat wistfully the one small can of condensed milk which was all the food they had in their possession, invited them to dinner. Late into the night, through the crisp and starry darkness the three Americans marched with their whilom enemies — still free, still armed, bound only by the pledged word of a savage—and slept with them as carefree and secure as in their own beds. "You are in our camp," said Natchez to Wood, "but our camp is your camp, and you can be here just as at home."

Miles meanwhile made no move to meet Geronimo for the conference Lawton had arranged. Back and forth from mountain to mountain the heliographs flashed their dispatches. Miles was obdurate, and Lawton became frantic. The Indians were becoming restless.

Smith Prepares for Trouble.

Lieut. Smith, Lawton's second in command, prepared for the worst. There were hints that there might be a worse solution to the problem of what to do with Geronimo than a pitched battle then and there. After all, the Indians were armed and on the watch and the risks would be equally divided. There was talk of surrounding the hostiles. In any event, Smith was determined that the Apaches should not again slip away as they had slipped away after their final conference with Crook.

Geronimo, smelling a rat, sought out Smith, and demanded three days' rations. He wanted, it seemed, to go on to Skeleton Canyon, just across the border. "We'll all go," said Smith.

"You stay where you are," exclaimed Geronimo. "There is not room there for both our people and the soldiers."

"We will go together," said Smith.

As Geronimo withdrew, a friendly Indian approached Smith. "Shall I kill him?" Smith told him to "hold your horses."

The next night both forces camped in Guadalupe Canyon. In that place, fifteen months previous, Geronimo's band had killed four men of B Troop. Passions suddenly flared up. It seemed too incongruous, too contrary to human nature to be escorting these assassins, in honor, as it were, with banners flying, to a conference of equals.

The Apaches sensed the disturbance before it had time to take shape in action, and began to mount their ponies and leave camp, the women and children in the lead. Gatewood hurried after them, quieted their apprehensions and, returning to camp, sought out Smith, who, in Lawton's absence, was still in command.

Lawton Rejoins Camp.

"Smith ranked Gatewood," Wood wrote in his diary, August 31, "and rather sharp friction developed between them. * * * The Indians knew Gatewood and did not know Smith. * * * I sent my orderly for Lawton with word that the situation was bad and to get into camp as soon as he could.

"Lawton came in, having used up his horse in making the trip. He was much excited, as he feared the Indians had left us. As a matter of fact, the Indians had moved out some distance. Lawton and I * * * followed them and went into their camp, which we reached about 8 p. m. We reassured them and told them everything was all right. * * * Indians greatly excited and it would have taken very little to have sent them out as wild as ever."

At Skeleton Canyon, just over the border, Lawton determined to wait until Miles saw the light and came for the conference Lawton and Gatewood had promised Geronimo. From Gen. Miles, frightened possibly over reports of the restlessness of the hostiles, came an order to take possession of the bodies of Geronimo and Natchez and to hold them beyond the possibility of escape. Lawton found himself in a fine quandary.

"We knew that Natchez, Geronimo and the other principal Indians were coming in to talk with us, and Lawton was at a loss whether to carry out his orders and arrest the Indian leaders, which meant that the rest of them would take to the hills and that we should have to kill them one by one, which would take years."

One of the officers pointed out that any attempt to arrest the leaders would mean resistance, and that resistance meant that the Apaches would all have to be killed. It was a fine dilemma. The only way out, if worst came to worst, seemed to lie in a kind of hari-kari.

Arrange to Kill Indians.

"It was arranged, in case of any ugly spirit breaking out during the conference, or the Indians refusing to be reasonable, that each man should kill the Indian next to him; not a very pleasant prospect for either the Indians or ourselves, as there would naturally have been a general mix-up with casualties on both sides. * * * It would have been rather difficult to have had the Indians arrested, but I do not believe that Capt. Lawton, in view of the fact that the Indians were in camp for a conference, would have given the order."

Like the reprieve in the melodrama, Miles came at the eleventh hour and saved the situation he himself had bedeviled.

Geronimo came from his camp to meet him. The interpreter said, "Gen. Miles is your friend."

"I never saw him," the old Indian answered dryly, "but I have been in need of friends. Why has he not been with me?" Everybody laughed and the ice was broken.

Miles told Geronimo that if he surrendered he would be sent to Florida with the rest of his tribe, and his life would be spared.

"You will have a separate reservation with your tribe. Do not fear any one. No one will harm you. We are all brothers." Miles was a romanticist and such talk was honey on his tongue.

Geronimo said to himself that it was like God talking, and had his doubts. Miles reassured him. "I will quit the warpath," said Geronimo, "and live at peace hereafter."

Prisoners Enter Fort Bowie.

Miles, entering Fort Bowie with his prisoners late next day, held up one hand, marking lines across it with a finger of the other. "This represents the past," he said to Geronimo. "It is all covered with the hollows and ridges." He rubbed his other palm over it. "That represents the wiping out of the past, which will be considered smooth and forgotten."

Very poetic indeed. But Grover Cleveland, at Saranac, was not in a sentimental mood. The word he received from Miles through the adjutant general was to the effect that the hostiles had surrendered unconditionally. That pleased him. The hostiles, he directed, were to be "very safely kept as prisoners until they can be tried for their crimes or otherwise disposed of."

Miles, by his lack of candor, caught between two loyalists, chose the better part, and risked his official neck in order to keep his word with an Indian. He ignored the President's orders and telegraphed Sheridan that Geronimo and his band would be starting for Florida the following day.

"As the disposition of Geronimo and his hostile band is yet to be decided by the President," Sheridan replied hot-foot, "and as they are prisoners without conditions, you are hereby directed to hold them in close confinement at Fort Bowie until the decision of the President is communicated to you."

The acting adjutant general on Miles' staff, a clear-headed individual named Thompson, received the telegram as the troops were preparing to take the Indians to the railroad, read it, tucked it in his pocket and fortified his soul with several long drinks. Wood, arriving with Lawton and the balance of the hostiles, with orders to go with them as far as San Antonio, had time only to refresh his tattered wardrobe before the escort wagons drew up.

Band Speeds Them on Way.

On the parade, the Fourth Cavalry Band struck up. For twenty years the United States Army had been chasing Apaches; officers and enlisted men had run themselves ragged in the pursuit. And now it was over; the last of the Apaches were taking the train for parts East. The Indians were puzzled, as the wagons carried them off in the dust, at the roar of laughter that followed them. It was only that the band leader was a humorist, and his band, with gusto, was playing:

"Should auld acquaintance be-e forgot
And ne-ver brought to mi-i-nd?"

Capt. Thompson, riding down to the railroad at Wood's side, very mellow and friendly, patted his pocket. "I've got something here which would stop this movement. But I am not going to let the old man see it until you are gone."

It was a court-martial offense. But the Army had kept its plighted word with the Apaches.

Continued tomorrow.

PEACE PLAN FAILURE IN STRIKE IS STUDIED

NO DISORDERS REPORTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Jan. 8.—With Gov. Pollard's second effort to pave the way toward a reconciliation in the strike admitted by union spokesmen to have been a failure, interest today turned to the causes.

At the home of H. R. Fitzgerald, mill president, where the governor saw the mill official, the atmosphere was warm and cordial, but each clung tenaciously to a point of view which could not be reconciled with that of the other. There is also a belief that Fitzgerald arranged to see the governor on the understanding that nothing be said about the interview later.

Interest today turned to the annual stockholders meeting to be held on January 22, when shareholders will be brought together for the first time since the strike began, to hear reports of the year's work, and to elect a board of directors. The financial report, it is learned, will be better than most of the stockholders expect. There is speculation as to whether the whole story of the strike will be told to the shareholders.

Last night was without any reported disorders in the strike zone.

POWER VIEW TESTS TO FACE PRESIDENT

a vote yesterday but Senator Walsh, of Montana, objected on the ground that a number of senators were not present.

A vote may come today, but it would not be surprising if it were not so delayed as to reach the President about the time the Muscle Shoals bill gets there. Only a few Democrats are expected to vote against recall. All of them, with the exception of about five, in fact, are expected to line up behind Walsh and Leader Joe Robinson.

The impression is that Robinson went into the fight reluctantly, but because of the situation in his party he could not afford to vote against Walsh. Walsh and Senator Norris, his Progressive colleague, have developed an unexpected strength in the fight. A week ago there did not seem to be so much Senate concern over the dismissal of the two commission employes. And it goes without saying that Walsh and Norris have put their very soul into the struggle because of the fight which the administration made on them last November, and which they both are convinced was inspired by the power trust.

Outcome in Doubt.

The outcome of the struggle, if the President refuses to return the papers, remains to be seen. A fight undoubtedly will be made to stop appropriations for the salaries of the three commissioners involved and eventually the matter is expected to find its way into the courts.

It may be that the administration leaders in the House will try to prevent the Muscle Shoals bill from going to the President, if he disapproves it. But even in that event the President's opponents are satisfied they are just about to get him in the position they have wanted him for a long time.

And if Muscle Shoals does fail of passage it is believed an extra session is assured.

A fact you should not overlook

MORE red-cells in the blood! Good health and resistance to infection and disease, depend on that. If a lowered red-cell count is allowed to continue, ANEMIA often results.

S.S.S. should be your safeguard. A hundred years of experience has proved its usefulness in building red-cells in the blood. Take it before meals. Millions of people have found it the easiest and surest way to restore their red-blood-cells. The appetite picks up, the whole body is strengthened, invigorated! Get S.S.S.—take it and possess a wonderful power of new life and vitality. Ask for the large size. At all drug stores. © S.S.S. Co.

How to recognize a low blood count

Blood is Life! You cannot count your own red-blood-cells—that is technical! But you should know that they are the "ships" that sail in the blood and carry nourishment to all parts of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

You can recognize a lowered count by the way you look and feel—such as body weakness, lack of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples. They may indicate that you need S.S.S.

S.S.S.—the great blood tonic—stimulates the blood-building organs to supply the necessary red-cells. If your vitality and clear skin are slipping away from you, try S.S.S.

Builds Sturdy Health

(Right) Anemic red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh.

Fire Is Discovered By Dog's Barking

Garage, Chicken House and Playhouse Destroyed in Takoma Park.

The frantic barking of a pet dog next door probably saved the residence of Frederick L. Newton, 113 Chestnut street, Takoma Park, D. C., from destruction by fire yesterday.

Awakened by the barking shortly after 3 a. m., Miss Rhoda Lewton and Miss Norma Lewton looked out of a window and saw the garage in the rear of their home in flames. They called the Takoma Park, Md., and the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Departments.

The garage, a two-car frame structure, which contained one automobile, was destroyed. The flames spread to a chicken house and to a playhouse in which furniture and trunks were stored. The property destroyed was valued at $400. The fire was believed to have been caused by a short circuit.

KELLOGG SOUNDS OUT SENATORS ON COURT

ever, most of those who so voted are court opponents. Most of the court advocates believe that the best hope for ratification, in view of this committee decision, in which the administration has acquiesced, is to have the court taken up in a special session of the Senate after March 4.

Feeling the President would agree to that plan, the court foes have been trying to exact a promise from Mr. Hoover, to let the issue go over until a year from now. The opposition knows that this would probably insure its side-tracking for two years, since there would be little disposition to act on the issue next winter with the nominating conventions just ahead.

Court opponents have even threatened to help force an extra session of both branches of Congress unless Mr. Hoover promises to drop the court issue. They have said, in effect, to Mr. Hoover that he will get an extra session of both Senate and House, which he does not want, if he tried to call only the Senate to take up the court.

Mr. Kellogg, who served in the Senate, and later as Secretary of State supported the court project, apparently wished to learn at first-hand how real the present opposition is, and what would be the best course for firends of the court to pursue. The reported 28 sure votes against the Root formula are hard to count, for many Republicans are noncommital or dodging the question of their attitude by saying they want to study the matter or listen to debate on it before deciding how they will vote. Some of these, however, have given private assurances of readiness to vote against the Root formula.

Semiofficially, the White House has said that Mr. Hoover does not intend to press for action on the court and does not intend to call a special Senate session to take it up. Court foes are satisfied that if this really represents Mr. Hoover's attitude, the court issue is as good as dead for the next two years.

CHARGE MIX STOLE HORSE TOLD IN SUIT

SHOWMAN SUING ACTOR

Natchez, Miss., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The claim that Tom Mix was charged with stealing a 20-year-old horse named Bologny before Mix entered the movies was made by counsel for Col. Zach T. Miller, owner of the 101 Ranch Shows at trial today of a $50,000 breach of contract suit brought by the showman against the actor.

The testimony was presented over the vigorous objection of Mix's lawyers, but counsel for Miller said it would establish that Mix harbored malice against Miller, whom he believed responsible for the charge Mix had stolen the horse.

Mix's divorced wife was on the stand when the charges were made. She said her maiden name was Olive Stokes and that she was married to Mix in 1909. She did not know when they were divorced, she said, and thought the decree was granted in California.

Calls Divorce Trivial.

"Is the matter of divorce so trivial a thing you can't remember anything about it?" asked Mix's lawyer.

"It was in my case," replied the witness.

She testified to knowledge of the Miller-Mix agreement by which Miller claims the cowboy actor agreed to join his circus and backed out after Miller had advertised the attraction.

Col. Miller contended he suffered a loss of $50,000 in gate receipts and damage to his reputation by being unable to put on the advertised act.

Telegrams purporting to have passed between the showman and the actor were introduced in which Mix said he would consider a salary of $10,000 weekly, but would require a private railroad car sufficient to accommodate "two horses, a Rolls-Royce automobile and an entourage of seven people."

Mix Smiles at Message.

Sitting in the courtroom in doeskin riding habit, with high-heeled patent leather shoes and the diamond-studded Mix monogram belt, Mix smiled broadly when he was quoted as saying in a telegram:

"I am not afraid of work, but I must have my comforts."

Libel also was charged by Miller on the basis of an interview in which Mix was quoted as saying:

"I never considered going with the 101 shows. That was just a nightmare of Zach's."

They carried banners demanding "Free Rent," "Free Gas and Light," for the unemployed and "Free Food" for the children of unemployed workers to the meeting place in front of the city's free employment agency, opposite Tombs Prison.

While speakers harangued the crowd, declaring that "this is the richest country in the world—but they let us starve," a committee of ewelve called on Commissioner Taylor. He pointed out hecould take no action on their demands, which required legislative action. Their complaints about conditions in the municpal lodgng house were beng invstigated, he said.

Alabaman Accused In Doctor's Death

Realty Man Quoted as Confessing Luring Victim to Vacant House.

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 8. (A.P.).—Police announced today E. J. Burns, Birmingham real estate dealer, had confessed he had part in the assassination of Dr. W. H. Godwin, resident physician for the Republic Steel Corporation, in a vacant house in a Negro quarter Tuesday night.

Burns was quoted as saying he had the physician summoned to the house, ostensibly to minister to a sick person, to force him to settle negotiations for a land deal pending between them. He said he anticipated no violence. He said Dr. Godwin shot at him as soon as he entered the house, and that, in self-defense, he returned the fire.

Clifford Ogletree, a Negro, had told authorities he was hired to rent the house temporarily and to summon Dr. Godwin there, under pretense that his wife was ill and needed medical attention. He said Burns accompanied him to the house.

Dickensian Scene Figures in Killing

New York Police Baffled by Murder in Dingy Cubbyhole Office.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—In a shabby old office, deep below the sidewalk level, on dingy Allen street, an office that might have figured in a tale by Dickens, detectives poked about today, trying to find out who murdered Herman Moench.

Until last Saturday two mild and half-forgotten old men worked together in that dark cubbyhole—Edward A. Ridley, once a department store owner, and Moench, who had been in his employ 50 years.

When Ridley entered the place Saturday he noticed Moench's coat in its usual place and the morning mail. An hour later he noticed Moench's body in the shadows of the other side of the desk. He had been shot three times. Whoever shot him had not even bothered to rob him.

Fairmont, W. Va.—"Two years ago I was overworked, run down and weak. Mother got a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for me. After taking the first bottle I was myself again, but I continued with the second bottle and haven't needed anything since. It certainly is great medicine and does just what it is supposed to do—it made me feel great. I gladly tell others about it."—Miss Hannah Michael, 1302 Morgantown Ave.

Morgantown, W. Va.—"Several years ago I was suffering from woman's weakness and knew I needed something to bring my strength back. CONGRESS REFUSES RELIEF.

Owing to the stubbornness of legislators who insist upon placing certain American citizens upon the dole, emergency relief for drought sufferers is delayed in Congress.

Congress could have provided drought relief before adjourning for the holidays. Politicians in both houses who are seeking personal or party advantage prevented prompt action. In the truthful words of President Hoover, they "played politics at the expense of human misery."

Some of these politicians are still playing politics, while human misery becomes more acute and remains unrelieved.

A bill appropriating $45,000,000 with which to make loans to farmers in the drought regions is hung up because certain legislators insist that additional millions shall be appropriated with which to distribute food to drought sufferers through a Government agency, and because other legislators insist that if drought sufferers are to be fed, the unemployed in cities shall also be fed.

Against the hysterical and exaggerated statements of legislators in regard to human suffering, the chairman of the American Red Cross officially states that his organization is in the field, fully equipped to relieve suffering, and that if the Red Cross funds should prove inadequate he will ask the public for contributions.

Everybody will concede that an appeal from President Hoover in behalf of the Red Cross would bring forth public contributions amounting to more than the sum that legislators demand in the shape of a Treasury dole.

The public has faith in the Red Cross. That organization has won public confidence by meeting every great emergency that has arisen. When legislators challenge the competency of the Red Cross the burden of proof of their allegations is upon them; but the relief work should not stop while the allegations are being subjected to proof.

Congress can pass the drought relief bill within an hour if it chooses to do so. Why should it not provide this much relief, and then resume its political squabbling, if it must squabble?

There can be no question of the urgency or propriety of the measure that provides for loans to farmers with which to obtain seed, feed, fertilizer, &c. Since this measure is indisputably necessary, and since its propriety is not disputed, why not pass it?

The question whether the United States Government shall adopt the policy of feeding hungry citizens is distinct from the question of providing loans to farmers with which to carry on their farming. The two questions should not be made interdependent, thereby penalizing tens of thousands of farmers in twenty States, and rendering them liable to the very suffering which certain legislators pretend to be anxious to relieve.

If legislators are really opposed to extending loans to farmers for farming purposes, let them say so. They should not cloak their opposition under the guise of agonizing solicitude for the hungry. By blocking the farm loan measure the legislators in question are increasing the number of hungry farm families and helping to kill off farm and food animals.

It is an appalling situation when legislators responsible for the national welfare permit themselves to become embroiled in a fruitless squabble in the face of an emergency that threatens death to thousands.

The people will not condone obstructive tactics that are put forth on the plea that the hungry must be fed. The situation is very clear and can not be confused. Congress can help the drought-stricken farmers if it will. Unless it does so without delay the blame will fall upon Congress as a body.

GOOD AUTOMOBILE PROSPECTS.

Increasing activity in the automotive industry leads to the hope that the pit of the depression may have been passed. As President Hoover pointed out in an address transmitted by telephone to the annual dinner of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, one of every ten Americans is dependent directly or indirectly upon the automotive industry for his livelihood, which means that the prosperity of the industry is of general interest. "The despondency of some people over the future," said the President, "is not borne out by the statistical evidence or prospects in respect to the industry." During 1930, he pointed out, more than 3,500,000 new automobiles were manufactured and sold; the huge inventories of a year ago were disposed of; hundreds of miles of new roads were constructed, and the consumption of gasoline showed a 5 per cent increase over the consumption of 1929. That the automotive industry was able to fare so well in a period of great depression testifies to its fundamental soundness, and suggests that it will play a prominent part in leading the march back to normalcy.

The 3,500,000 automobiles manufactured in 1930 had a wholesale value of $2,159,600,000. In 1929 more than 5,600,000 units were turned out of the automobile factories, having an aggregate wholesale value of $3,576,600,000. The output of 1930 shrank some 40 per cent beneath that of the preceding year, while the net earnings of the leading companies fell off some 54 per cent from 1929. Nevertheless, last year the automotive industry consumed 15 per cent of the entire output of the country's steel mills, 82 per cent of the production of the rubber factories, 55 per cent of all plate glass manufactured, 57 per cent of the upholstery leather, and 30 per cent of the aluminum, together with large quantities of lead, copper, nickel and lumber. Approximately 80 per cent of all the gasoline used was consumed in automobiles.

An industry that accounts for such consumption of raw and manufactured materials obviously is of the greatest basic importance. The inability or the refusal of the American people in 1930 to buy new automobiles has reflected itself throughout all industry. But the time is ripe for a resumption of motor car buying. When orders begin again to flow into the factories it will be the signal of a country-wide movement back to prosperity.

NO COMPROMISE ON BILLBOARDS.

In refusing an invitation to participate in a conference for the purpose of "formulating policies for the promotion of harmony between commerce and beauty in rural areas and the drafting of model legislation for recommendation to the several States," extended by the Outdoor Advertising Association of America and the National Association of Real Estate Boards, the American Civic Association points out that it is most unlikely that the organizations sponsoring the meeting are genuinely and honestly interested in the purpose for which the conference is called. The billboard interests, says the Civic Association, no doubt propose to seek compromises that will permit them to continue their desecration of the landscape. It is too much to hope that they will voluntarily agree to refrain from further destroying the beauty of the countryside.

The billboard advertisers have had ample warning that the public wrath against their hideous, polychromatic broadsides is rising. As far back as 1915 they were told that unless they discontinued their practice of seizing upon every beauty spot as a location for a poster board they would destroy the goodwill, without which an advertising campaign constitutes a detriment rather than a benefit. The attitude of the billboard advertiser to the public is exemplified by the action taken by an Indianapolis billboard company with respect to an ordinance prohibiting the erection or maintenance of advertising billboards within 500 feet of any park, parkway or boulevard and directing that all existing structures within this distance of parkways be removed. The company, instead of cooperating to put the restrictions into effect, brought suit against the city to prevent the enforcement of the ordinance.

There may be a place for billboard advertising. There may be a legitimate use for posters and outdoor advertising displays. The public, however, will not compromise with the advertisers in such a way that further desecration of the countryside and the architectural beauty of cities will be possible. There is no need of a conference "to promote harmony between commerce and beauty in rural areas." The billboard companies alone can take the steps needed to bring their kind of advertising back into the good graces of the public.

TO REHABILITATE CHINA.

An international agreement to finance the rehabilitation of China seems to be in prospect. A subcommittee under the chairmanship of Senator Pittman has conducted an extensive inquiry into the subject, and its report is expected shortly. The senator has already made known the essentials of the plan, and the final report will doubtless favor participation of the United States in an international undertaking to advance silver to the Nationalist government, to attempt to bring back the purchasing value of silver to a normal standard and to develop a comprehensive plan of public improvements in Chinese territory under international supervision.

Trade with China has declined sharply in recent months, much to the disadvantage of China and all other nations which trade with that country. China has just emerged from a disastrous civil war. The government recently revised its tariffs in an effort to provide additional funds for reconstruction, but revenue from this source will not be adequate to the need. China is eager to develop into a modern and prosperous nation and the rest of the world, excepting Russia, is anxious to have her so develop. A plan which would enable China to construct roads, to establish industries, to rebuild cities and to raise the standards of living would be of universal benefit.

The first result of such a program would be an increased demand for American wheat and other products which are now produced in surplus. Money expended for roads and other improvements would give to the indigent millions of China means to purchase food. Highways would make it possible to carry food to them. A new market for American automobiles and other manufactured products, as well as foodstuffs, would be opened up. Bankers and commercial men told the committee that if the plan were carried out commerce with China would be increased tenfold within two years. The effects upon economic conditions throughout the world would be far-reaching and recovery from the depression would be hastened.

China is the greatest potential market of the world. At present this country is engaged in commerce with Russia that threatens disaster to American industry. This commerce continues chiefly because a few idealists believe that Russia is a great potential market. China offers a far greater undeveloped market without the menace of communism.

The ramifications of an international agreement to set China on the road to modernization should be considered carefully before the United States is committed definitely to the undertaking. If safeguards against embarrassing entanglements can be established, however, such an undertaking probably would be of great and general benefit.

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The following comment on Sir Herbert Russell's article, which appeared on the editorial page of The Washington Post on January 5, is submitted for such use as you may see fit to make of it.

His "primary presumption that America will be neutral in sea warfare" appears to be an acceptance of American claims to peaceful intentions. It also appears to foresee future wars among other powers.

He resents America's demands for the freedom of the seas—that is, in this case, for her right to carry on commerce with Great Britain's enemy when Great Britain is at war.

He feels that it is Great Britan's just right to rule the waves in order that her future wars may be brought to a successful conclusion more promptly, cheaply and surely.

The right of any country to interfere with United States sea-borne trade, except as provided for by international agreement, has never been admitted by the United States Government or people, and all their foreign wars, except the one with Mexico, have been brought about by such interference.

Sir Herbert's presenting the American demands for the freedom of the seas in the light of "America first and the rest nowhere"—which is equivalent to saying "American greed and British starvation" has no justification in fact or in theory.

Prior to the beginning of the World War the maritime powers had agreed to certain rules for the conduct of neutral trade. These rules were designed to favor the belligerent which was stronger in sea power by giving him the right to capture and confiscate certain neutral ships and goods which were bound, directly or indirectly, for the enemy's country, and were of such a nature as to be of direct assistance in the execution of the war—that is, munitions of war or raw materials from which munitions could be manufactured. Foodstuffs and certain other articles which are normally required by the civil population were exempted from capture or restrictions.

If the rules in these international agreements had been observed by the belligerents on both sides the war would have taken on an entirely different color, the United States would probably have not been drawn into it, and it is also not improbable that the outcome in Europe would have been about the same. If the allies had not conducted an illegal interference with neutral shipping, it is true that more food would have reached the central powers and would have been a source of strength to them. On the other hand, if the central powers had not resorted to the illegal use of submarines against allied and neutral shipping the saving to the allies in fighting power would have been tremendous and, although no one can say definitely what the outcome would have been, an opinion can be reasonably supported that they could have brought the war to a favorable conclusion in less time and at less expense.

But regardless of consequences, the fact that the international agreements regarding neutral trade were not observed was due to the failure of the neutral powers to force their observance. As the strongest neutral power it was the duty of the United States to take the initiative in the enforcement of these agreements.

At the beginning of the war the belligerents did conform to their international agreements regarding its conduct. As the war progressed both sides repeatedly found themselves in critical situations, which naturally induced them to strain a point of international law here and there. When one belligerent did this it brought forth from the other side a reply which took the form of a little greater infraction of the law. The failure of the neutral powers to emphatically call a halt naturally encouraged the desperately driven warring nations to step farther out of bounds the next time.

The United States did complain for three years with the feeble, wailing complaints of pacifists, and by the end of that time the belligerents had developed such a complete disregard for international law and neutral rights that the United States was finally drawn into the war—which cost her 126,000 men killed, 234,000 men wounded, a war debt of about $26,000,000, the sum (up to 1929) of $4,773,858,879 for compensation, term insurance, vocational training and medical and hospital services to veterans, and the hatred of a large part of the world, including the allies with whom we fought.

Sir Herbert Russell does not approve of the United States having a fleet which can demand enough respect to protect our neutral rights whenever Europe stages its next war.

Utica Press: A Baltimore man has found a way to dispose of his Christmas cards. Being of frugal nature he has kept all the cards he had received for the past ten years and he had about 1,000 of these Christmas offerings. He was told by a friend that missionaries in China could use the cards in familiarizing native children with American customs and languages. The Baltimorean at once packed up his cards and mailed them to a Chinese address. When some little Chinese girl or boy sees a card with a picture of three wise men, mounted on camels, she or he will know how Americans travel. Perhaps the picture will show a stagecoach pulling up at the door of an inn and that will also familiarize the Chinese youth with American customs.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

IN A HOSPITAL.

The lady in the hospital was very fair to see,
She seemed to all the broken wrecks as gracious as could be.
But one there was who turned away and hid his face from view—
A strange and solitary man whose name nobody knew.

That he had fallen to the depths to every one was plain,
They'd found him moaning in the streets with cheeks and temples hot

With little gifts to cheer the poor she hurried to and fro.
With kindly speech she walked about, as thoughtful people do
Who still remember human souls require a tonic, too.

He heard her voice and turned away, asleep he feigned to be,
He would not let the visitor his tortured features see.
And this is what he told the nurse who later asked him why:
"Alone I've lived for twenty years; alone I choose to die!

There's nothing left in me today that charity can reach.
Time was a kindly word perhaps had meant a different life,
But that was twenty years ago—and then she was my wife!"

If Rabbits Had Enough Intelligence, They Would Fear Germs as Men Do.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

"LET not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off."

No one among us knows how he would react to a given set of circumstances.

It is easy, in the quiet and security of home to say: "I would have slapped his face if he had talked to me that way;" or, "I would have stayed on the ship until all the women and children were safe;" or, "I wouldn't have taken the money;" or, "I would starve before I would steal;" but that is the childish boasting of the inexperienced.

If you would boast of your honesty, wait until you have stood unwatched near another man's food your middle griped with hunger, and come away empty.

The other man's cowardice in the presence of a lion may seem unmanly as you sit by your fireplace, but have you ever faced a charging lion?

The truth is that our condemnation of other people usually is prompted by our ignorance.

The most severe judge of the thief who makes off with a ham is the man who never was hungry.

A good man is not one whose sheltered existence has enabled him to avoid evil without a struggle, but one who in the midst of temptation has found strength to keep himself clean.

The self-righteous whose chief delight is to point out the sins of their fellows, in order to make their own virtue seem more remarkable by contrast, are in almost every instance cold and spiritless creatures who have no capacity for pleasure—forbidden or otherwise. Their virtue is negative. They do not overcome temptation; they simply aren't tempted. A temptation that sets another man's blood afire affects them no more than the sight of a beef roast affects hungry sheep.

The good man whose goodness is proof of character does not call attention to his own righteousness by condemning others. He knows by how narrow a margin the strongest of men escape pitfalls, and he credits much of his own virtue to good fortune. He says with Emerson: "There, but for the grace of God, go I." He pities more than he condemns.

When you condemn without mercy, you make more of a confession than you realize. You say, in effect: "I have been sheltered from similar temptation;" or, "Such matters do not tempt a nature such as mine."

Sneering at the mention of "cowardice" is merely an evidence that you weren't in the trenches.

PRO AND CON

No Communism!

Chicago Tribune.

Representative La Guardia, of New York, says it is "the duty of the Federal Government to take such action as to eliminate suffering, hunger and want in the future."

That is an assertion that would be heartily applauded in Moscow. It represents a fallacy which has a good deal of popularity at this time as in past times of stress. If it is not intelligently and strongly resisted it will produce results lastingly injurious to the Nation's economic and political welfare.

Happily for the American people no such fallacy was tolerated by the founders of the American Nation. We have progressed and prospered beyond any other people because our forbears had a wholesome distrust of the domination of the central government and of all government and a sound perception of the truth that a free people will work out their own salvation through their own intelligence and character, if interfered with as little as possible by politicians and job holders.

There is likely to be small complaint in this country with the proposal of Congress to suspend all immigration for two years as another move to relieve the employment situation. In two years it is reasonable to believe that conditions will be back to normal, and the country will again be in a position to absorb alien labor, but in the interim, even with the return of prosperity, there will be more work available than can be comfortably done by available workers.

Too Much Oratory.

It would appear that some legislators will use up a good portion of the present session discussing whether there should be another after March 4. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sidewalks and Bypaths a Necessity in Parks and Along Country Roads—Terrible Present Dangers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A humanitarian movement recently organized is that of the American Society of Municipal Engineers, having for one of its purposes the protection of pedestrians who, owing to the increasing amount and speed of motor travel, are in constant danger of sudden death and permanent injury on arterial highways and country roads.

This part of the society's activities is in charge of a highway sidewalk committee, under the general chairmanship of George C. Warren, of Boston, Mass., and its "present immediate goal is much needed legislation in practically every State of the Union and every province in Canada."

All those who live, either permanently or at times, in country houses should take a live interest in the promotion of pedestrian safety. Certainly, in many cases much of the enjoyment of suburban or country life may be lost if the roadways are unsafe for walking. And sensative and careful motorists should also feel as much concerned in the laying down of safety paths as the pedestrians themselves. To such the ever-present possibility of literally "bumping off" some absent-minded or reckless wayfarer is most unpleasant.

In our city parks there are places where provision for the convenience and safety of those who sometimes walk is lacking along the driveways, and conditions are at least as bad as elsewhere on the outlying highways and cross-roads of the District, Maryland and Virginia.

In the setting of a good municipal example to the rest of the country, it strikes me that furnishing adequate footpaths is quite as important and would prove as popular as the erection of fine office buildings, the planting of trees and the planning of spacious parks and splendid boulevards. I beg leave to suggest that our Commissioners, our National Capital planners, our traffic directors and other municipal specialists seriously consider the advisability of joining the highway sidewalks movement. Would Use Electric Current to Trap Bank Robbers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having seen accounts of so many bank robberies, I would like to make a suggestion that might ultimately put a stop to this form of theft. Why is it not possible to use electricity to stop robbers? An electric current could be brought underground through the bank floor to a connecting point in the windows of the tellers and cashiers. The current could be so arranged that when the teller or cashier pushed a button the doors of the bank would close from within and at the same time give an alarm at the police station. Also have it arranged that a touch of the button would charge the cashier's cage so that the thief would be unable to enter it. The vault doors, the door to the safe and doors to other vital points in which money is stored might also be charged when the button is pushed.

When the police arrived at the scene of the robbery they would step on a button outside the bank that would cause the doors to open and thus trap the robbers. If the wires were brought up from a connection directly beneath the bank, the robbers would be unable to sever the connection and thwart the alarm. Though this plan may seem a bit crude, I think something could be developed to stop all these bank robberies. EDWARD H. CLARK.

Material Wanted by Biographer of Chester A. Arthur.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am desirous of obtaining information concerning the authenticity of a letter supposed to have been written by President Chester A. Arthur to James G. Blaine after the latter's defeat in the presidential election of 1884. The letter, according to my present knowledge, is believed to have been couched in terms of friendship, and it would thus present a new chapter in the Arthur biography, which I have been engaged in writing for some time. I have the Arthur testimony describing his efforts to conciliate Roscoe Conkling after the break with the latter, and, if the Arthur-Blaine correspondence can be located, it would indicate a healing of the breach between them.

Any information bearing on this matter, or on any phase of President Arthur's life, will be appreciated. I trust some obscure source may be unearthed by some one which will help in making more adequate the story of the life of this too-little-known Chief Executive. Any one having letters, books, diaries of contemporaries, reminiscences, anecdotes, will perform a service in making them available to me.

I have been ably assisted so far in my research by friends and relatives of the former President, and take this means of enlisting still wider aid.

Italian Warplane Voyage Suggests Need of Defenses Against Air Bombing.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: So many wonders of human accomplishment have become commonplaces in the last generation that we don't get the "kick" it deserves out of the flight of the Italian war-plane squadron to Brazil.

That the war plane is to cause great changes in military methods is something of which everybody is now aware.

But considering that, as the war sharps tell us, defense never lags far behind offense, let us hope that means to prevent the bombing of Washington may be invented in time. Perhaps the day may come when armor-plate roofs will be provided for the protection of public buildings against air bombardment.

PLANES OF MARINES THRILL MIAMI MEET

Group of Six From Quantico Startles Spectators With Rapid Maneuvers.

HESITANT HOPS NOVELTY

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Airplanes darting across a Southern sky today launched Miami's third all-American air meet on its three-day series of races and stunting by famous civilian and service fliers.

Dignitaries of the United States and foreign countries viewed the spectacle as fleet-winged planes swooped about pylons of the course, or zoomed and rolled about the 7,500 spectators.

A group of six Marine Corps pursuit planes from Quantico, Va., thrilled spectators with the rapid darting over the field in series of formation maneuvers with snap and slow barrel rolls, loops and dives.

A novelty of the program were the hesitant hops and jumps of a low-winged Doodlebug plane piloted by E. S. McDonnell, jr., Chicago. The craft darted or slowed almost to a stop at will and landed almost vertically to display its ease of handling.

Flights by Monocoupes.

John Livingston, Aurora, Ills., flying a Monocoupe, set up the highest speed of the afternoon for cabin planes with his negotiation of the 15-mile course from a standing start in 8 minutes 21.40 seconds, an average speed of 141.56 miles an hour. Pilots of Monocoupe planes took the next three places, J. W. Smith, Philadelphia, was second; Henry A. Little, jr., Philadelphia, third, and Vernon C. Omlie, Memphis, Tenn., fourth.

Lowell R. Bayles, Springfield, Mass., put his plane, with motor halted, 5 feet 1¾ inches from a mark on the field to win the dead stick landing contest.

Barton Stevenson, Kansas City, in a Monocoupe, flew 106.58 miles an hour to win the 15-mile race for 275 cubic inch displacement planes. J. W. Smith, Philadelphia, in a monocoupe, was second at 107.16 miles an hour.

Art Chester, Joliet, Ill., in a Davis, was third at 107.03 miles an hour, and Hakon Christensen, Jackson, Mich., in a Lambert, fourth at 104.12 miles an hour.

Wins Bomb Dropping Contest.

Harold E. Newman, Genesee, Ill., won the bomb dropping contest, placing his bomb 71 feet from the mark. Clarence E. Gray, Lakeland, Fla., was second; Lowell R. Bayles, Springfield, Mass., third, and Delbert W. Koerner, Kankakee, Ill., fourth.

V. L. Leak, Miami, burst a free balloon in 30 seconds after it was released to win the event. Art Davis, East Lansing, Mich., was second; Wes Raymond, Lakeland, Fla., third, and Freddy Lund, Troy, Ohio, fourth.

The free for all race for planes of 500 to 1,000 cubic inches displacement went to Art Davis, East Lansing, Mich., flying his Waco at 142.191 miles an hour. His time for the 30-mile race was 12 minutes 39.54 seconds. The pace was from a standing start. Arthur W. Killits, Lyons, Ill., was second, at 134.485 miles an hour, in a Waco taper wing. B. C. Skinner, Dunedin, Fla., in a Stinson, was third at 130.09 miles an hour, and Lowell R. Bayles, Springfield, Mass., in a Waco, was fourth, at 126.825 miles an hour.

INDIAN ROUND TABLE PARLEY NEARS END

PARTY AGREEMENT SEEN

London, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Indian round table conference is approaching the end of its labors and Lord Chancellor Sankey told the delegates today that the parley probably would end on January 30 after nearly two months of negotiations.

Before it closes, he said, Ramsay Macdonald will announce the Labor government's policy toward India at a formal plenary session which probably will be called next week.

The British policy has been shaping toward dominion status for India with a period of transition lasting ten years or longer, during which there would be definite limitations and safeguards on such matters as national defense and finance.

Liberal Party Backing Plan.

Lord Sankey today gave a strong indication that this would be the line of the Labor government's policy, which already has the full support of the British Liberals, with the Conservatives still on the fence.

The Conservatives, however, are not likely to oppose the final settlement of the Indian issue, but Lord Peel, speaking for the party today, indicated that they would insist on preparation of all the details of any constitutional scheme before the party will give its approval.

Plans Have Been Submitted.

India's future as the prime minister probably will outline it will follow in the main plans submitted at the round table conference this week, observers believe.

There would be a national congress of two houses, full autonomous self-government in the Indian provinces, and a cabinet of nine ministers with collective responsibility to the viceroy, who nominally would retain sovereignty in the name of the British monarch.

Much has depended on the attitude of the Indian states to the new scheme and today the Maharaja Bikaner pledged 75 per cent of the states would participate immediately.

Trimdon, Durham, England, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The aim of the Indian round table conference was defined here tonight by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald as "giving India the power of self-government that will make it feel that the burdens of its government rest now upon its own shoulders and not upon the shoulders of any outside body."

Speaking to members of his constituency, the prime minister said he could not see the least danger to Britain or the associated dominions in giving India this authority "with all the qualifications for certain kinds of security that are required."

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

DRAMATIC values assert themselves even in the business of theatricals. Here, for instance, is a case of keen rivalry between two producing houses, one fostering "Philip Goes Forth," at the National, and ther other standing sponsor for "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," at the Belasco. Both new plays, by important playwrights, they are scheduled to hit Broadway on the same night—next Tuesday, January 13—an occasion in itself that will strike dismay in the breasts of the reviewers.

• • • •

On the opening night of George Kelly's play, "Philip Goes Forth," all hands who could shake loose from the Belasco went down to the National to look over "the opposition." In that assemblage were such personages as Gilbert Miller, head of the house of Frohman; Philip Barry, the playwright; Stoddard Taylor, representative of the Shuberts, and other men with intense intuition in things theatrical. They all admitted they had seen a play.

• • • •

Sunday night the Belasco Theater goes back to its old love—the mystery play. On those boards "The Gorilla" got its start. So it'll be like old-home week when "The Blue Ghost" stalks before the footlights. This play, by Bernard J. McOwen, and John P. Riewerts, comes with a central character labeled "the arch-fiend of all times," which, if true, is some recommendation.

To set up some more rivalry between the two theaters, the management of the National points with pride to the offering that starts in the E street playhouse on Monday night—Francine Larrimore in "Storm King." It happens that Miss Larrimore has won plenty laurels for herself in the American theater, mostly for the type parts she plays. Her last success was in Maurine Watkins' hectic drama, "Chicago." The new play is by Sidney Buchman, who is said to have written it with Jeanne Eagels in mind. Philadelphia saw the tryout.

• • • •

When Poli's was torn down, destruction work started, the Shuberts shifted most of their big musical comedies to other cities, sending in only one—Ed Wynn, in "Simple Simon." This was the first and last musical comedy to make its appearance in the Belasco Theater this season. Now comes word that another one is on the way, but it will not get here until the latter part of next month, or around the first week of March. It is "One Wonderful Night," the American version of Strauss' "Die Fledermaus." Since a revolving stage is used for the production, a construction gang will come to town with the advance agent.

• • • •

Just to give the boys a little more elbow room in the box office of the National, Mr. Harry Rapley has torn down part of the retaining wall and installed an alcove. Thus Mr. Russell Thomas, the head man, and his assistants, are given some 500 cubic feet of breathing space while handing out the pasteboards.

Talk to Describe Changes in Turkey

Dr. Maynard Owen Williams to Lecture Tonight at Auditorium.

Dr. Maynard Owen Williams foreign representative of the National Geographic Society, will describe and picture the rapidity with which the people of New Turkey are adopting modern methods in a lecture this evening at the Washington Auditorium.

Dr. Maynard who recently returned from New Turkey where he has spent the past few years has witnessed many changes in the customs of this people such as the substitution of the Latin alphabet for the old Arabic characters and the passage of the veil which Turkish women formerly wore.

Photographs made by the lecturer during a motor tour of Anatolia, the heart of New Turkey, will be used in illustrating the talk.

Rescuer of Arctic Survivors Dies

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Acton P. Joehinsen, rescuer of the Karluk survivors in the Arctic in 1914, died today in the Naval Hospital at Brooklyn.

He was a native of Denmark. As captain of the King and Winge, a fur-bearing ship of the Olaf Swenson Co. of Seattle, he came to be known as the most skillful ice pilot in the Arctic. During the war he was a lieutenant commander in the United States Merchant Marine.

Out-of-Town Motorists Spared on 1930 Tags

Captains of police precincts were notified last night by William Shelby, acting chief of police, that out-of-town motorists operating 1930 tags after the expiration of time permitted by their States should not be arrested until the expiration of time for the use of 1930 District of Columbia tags.

This order was occasioned by the decision of Police Court Judge Isaac Hitt, who dismissed cases against three out-of-town drivers charged with operating cars on dead tags yesterday. Last year's District tags are valid until January 17.

PONTIFF EMPHASIZES MARRIAGE SANCTITY

dience to her husband to the point of sacrificing her wifely dignity. He deplored, however, the doctrines of "false teachers who try to dim the luster of conjugal faith and purity" and hold that the woman is to be freed from the responsibilities of home and family.

"This is not," he said, "true emancipation of woman. It is rather the debasing of the womanly character and the dignity of motherhood."

Divorce the pontiff utterly condemned and called on the pronouncements of the saints and the Bible to show that, once entered into, conjugal fidelity and union must persist until death separates the partners.

Would Educate for Marriage.

The laws of marriage are of God, he emphasized. "These laws can not be subject to any human decrees or to any contrary pact, even of the spouses themselves," the encyclical enjoined.

The pontiff urged the education of youth for marriage, but condemned too much "physiological" education.

The encyclical took on the nature of a sociological doctrine in its reference to the duty of the State to assist married couples in straitened circumstances.

"Their necessities must be relieved as far as possible," the Pope said.

Family and Wages.

Then, adopting the principles of Pope Leo XIII's "Rerum Novarum" encyclical as his own, he laid down this doctrine:

"In the state such social and economic methods should be set up as will enable the head of a family to earn as much as, according to his station in life, is necessary for himself, his wife and for rearing his children.

"To deny this or to make light of what is equitable is a grave injustice and is placed among the greatest sins by Holy Writ. Nor is it lawfull to fix such a scanty wage as will be insufficient for the upkeep of the family in the circumstances in which it is placed."

Persons contemplating matrimony, the Pope said, should, of course, strive to dispose of, or at least to diminish, the material obstacles in their way, but "provision must be made also, in the case of those who are not self-supporting, for joint aid by public or private guilds."

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Former Judge Ben Lindsey, of Denver, said tonight in a statement prompted by the Pope's encyclical on marriage, the protest of the Pontiff was powerless to affect shifting codes of morals.

"His holiness the Pope," said the exponent of companionate marriage, "has a right to be concerned about our changing morals. In some respects he can no more stop the change than the course of the comets by protesting against it."

THE chiefs of missions of 47 countries were guests last night of the President and Mrs. Hoover, who entertained at the White House at the third state dinner of the season. The Chief Executive and First Lady had previously entertained the members of the Cabinet and at the second state dinner on December 18 the Vice President was the guest of honor.

With the dean of the Diplomatic Corps, the Ambassador of Mexico, and Senora de Tellez heading the list of guests, the honor was, for the first time, accorded the republic to the south of the Rio Grande. Only nine guests represented the United States. They included the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson, Senator William E. Although in Washington for the state reception for the Diplomatic Corps early in December, last night marked the first appearance at a state dinner of the Ambassador of Peru, Senor Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander and also the new Minister of Denmark and Mme. Wadsted, who only arrived in Washington in time for the New Year's reception at the White House. For the first time in many years was recorded the absence of Mr. Constantin Brun at a diplomatic dinner. A genial dinner partner through several administrations the retirement of the former Minister of Denmark occasioned last night a revival of expressions of regret mingled with a welcome to the interesting new Minister and Mme. Wadsted.

With the presence of Senor Dr. Don Ricardo J. Alfaro at the dinner there was definitely settled the status quo of the new president-designate of Panama. Apparently the popular Dr. Alfaro still is Minister of Panama, while "holding under his hat" the office of chief of his republic.

Present plans include the departure of the Minister and Senora de Alfaro and their daughters tomorrow as they will sail on the S. S. Aconcagua for their native land, where, dispatches announce, the question of recognizing Dr. Alfaro as president of the supreme court of Panama, following the recent revolution, still is under study.

For the first time in several years the Belgian Embassy was represented by the charge d'affaires. Prince de Ligne, retiring Belgian Ambassador, and Princess de Ligne and their two daughters sailed for Europe yesterday. That Prince de Ligne will be named Ambassador to Rome is thought probable, although his final statement yesterday before sailing was to the effect that he is without a diplomatic post. If offered the post at the Quirinal he probably will accept it, he said.

Another absentee was the Ambassador of Great Britain, Sir Ronald Lindsay, and Lady Lindsay, who were not present as the embassy has decreed a period of 30 days' mourning for the princess royal, sister of King George V, whose death occurred several days ago.

Following the dinner last night, Mme. Claire Dux, soprano, and Mr. Vladimir Horowitz, pianist, were presented in concert in the east room. At the piano for Mme. Dux was Mr. Frederick Schauwecker.

Among their guests will be Mrs. Hadley and Mrs. Charles Elmore Copley. On January 24 Mrs. Lyman and Mrs. Alger will give a tea at the latter's home. Mrs. Lyman also will be a hostess at the dinner on January 13 of the League of Republican Women, which will be held at the Young Women's Christian Association.

Miss Hamilton Is Married to New Yorker

Wedding Takes Place in Bride's Home in Bethesda.

Miss Mary Emily Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hamilton, became the bride yesterday afternoon of Mr. Nelson Alexander, of New York and Harriman, N. Y., son of Mrs. Thomas Alexander and the late Mr. Alexander. The ceremony, which took place at the home of the brides' parents, Stone Ridge, near Bethesda, Md., was performed by the Rev. Arthur O'Leary, of Georgetown University. The house was decorated with palms, ferns and cut flowers. A stringed orchestra played during the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin, made with a V neckline and long, fitted sleeves. A star-shaped train fell from the waist, and the veil was of rose point lace, which had been worn by the bride's maternal grandmother. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The matron of honor was Mrs. William P. Tompkins, sister of the bride, and the maid of honor was Miss Suzanne Veedor. They wore gowns of bois de rose chiffon, trimmed with bands of mink, with brown velvet hats, and carried arm-bouquets of talisman roses. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Alfred F. Benziger and Mrs. George E. Hamilton, jr., sister and sister-in-law of the bride, who were gowned like the other attendants, in a deeper shade of bois de rose. They also carried talisman roses. The ring bearers were George E. Hamilton 3d and Peter H. Benziger.

Mr. Alfred F. Benziger, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Frederick Hamilton, Mr. Anthony Adrian, of New York; Mr. Carl H. Donner, of Summit, N. J., and Mr. Edward R. Bartlett, of Bronxville, N. Y.

Following the ceremony there was a large reception, after which Mr. and Mrs. Alexander left for a wedding trip, the bride wearing a suit of dark green trimmed with fur. On their return they will be at home at 23 East Seventy-fourth street, in New York.

Among the out-of-town guests were Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Meding and their two daughters, Ann and Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. John Perry, Mr. and Mrs. William Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Roselle, Miss Natalie Thibault, Mrs. George Andrews, Mrs. Edward Bartlett, Mrs. John F. McGovern and Mr. George Jonas and Mr. and Mrs. Anthony L. Adrian, all of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Bartlett have issued cards for a tea on Thursday in their apartment at Wardman Park Hotel.

M. and Mme. Stefan Poradzewski have issued cards for an at home on Sunday, January 18, from 4:30 until 7 o'clock at Woodley Place Towers.

Mrs. S. Wallace Dempsey, who has been in Atlantic City for several weeks, returned home Thursday and is with Representative Dempsey at the Mayflower.

Senator Cameron Morrison has been joined at the Mayflower Hotel by Mrs. Morrison, who has recently come from their home in Charlotte, N. C.

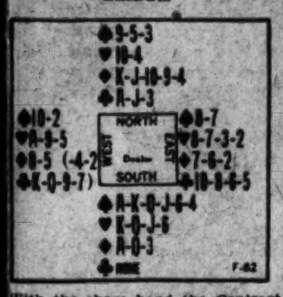
BRIDGE.



With the above hand the Contract ding would be very interesting. If uth ventured five Spades as a slam vitation, North would accept it by ding six. North might bid six ades, or he might bid six Clubs if believed in showing Aces under ch circumstances. In either event final declaration would be six ades. There would be some risk endant upon an original five-Spade : North might not produce a trick d South be able to take only nine tricks, losing two Diamonds and two Hearts, but such outcome was unlikely.

If playing the "forcing system," South would bid two Spades, North three Diamonds, South three Spades, North four Spades and South six.

If playing with two Clubs as an artificial forcing bid, South would bid two Clubs, North two No Trumps, South three Spades, North four Diamonds and South then would have received enough information to bid six Spades.

When the hand was played at six Spades, the King of Clubs was led to the first trick. North won with the ace, South discarding the Trey of Diamonds (a bluff discard). Declarer then exhausted the adverse Spades in two rounds and led the Six of Hearts from the South hand. West passed one Heart trick, thinking East might have an honor and not conceiving that his Ace might die; but as soon as Declarer won a Heart trick he discarded his remaining hearts on dummy's Diamonds and consequently made an extra trick over the small slam for which he had bid. It is obvious that if South had bid for the grand slam he would not have made it.

DARE INTERPRETS the MODE

Paris, Jan. 8.

RAINY days used to be the bane of every lovely lady's existence, and meant necessarily the wearing of practical and not-so-becoming-to-her-loveliness clothes! Because good things always spoiled.

This state of affairs just couldn't go on—so some clever little persons got together and evolved the idea of having a rainy-day ensemble—one that is pretty enough for the brightest day, but that will be of great assistance in a sudden shower! One of the loveliest sets I have seen consists of a bag and umbrella, the silk of both matching, and the square crystal handle of the bag of the same design as the umbrella handle. The silk can be had in any number of colors, so sets can harmonize or contrast with your street costume. And the unusual thing about it is that the silk of the purse is waterproof as well as the umbrella!

Umbrella handles have become things of joy and beauty in this time of lovely practicality—of carved wood, combinations of two kinds of wood, or polished wood and crystal, and very lovely handles of carved jade.

And to protect our dainty shoes from wetness, there is a new half-rubber on the market, much smaller to carry about than any kind I have ever seen before. These come in black, browns, tans and bluish-gray. And they fold into a two and a half inch case!

• • • •

A few balls of yarn in your favorite color, a crochet hook an hour or so—and a copy of this week's illustrated leaflet, which you may have by sending your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, and what have you? Three guesses! Wrong! Wrong—wrong! You have a chic and, oh, so attractive Agnes hat. Not the original Agnes hat, of course, but an identical copy of the one I bought for so much money, and which everybody who has seen it just loves. And don't hesitate to send for the leaflet even if you can't crochet, because I have used clear, technical terms that you can follow in an instruction book that you can buy anywhere for 10 cents. The materials cost very little, and you need very little time to make the hat—which is adorable and won't spoil no matter how hard it is rained on!

• • • • •

It started out with incrustations and ended up in petaled elegance—and how lovely it really was! That was my New Year's Eve party frock, my deahs, and I just knew you would want to see it! Yes, I designed it—and the French-maid-who-is-Spanish made it, so there!

• • • • •

Twins with twining hair and flowery headdresses could be used for a design on some little intimate thing, don't you think? Especially such sun-tanned demoiselles!

• • • •

Au Revoir!

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Recommends Our Column.

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: I read with wonder that letter from Betty, who has attracted an intelligent young man, longs to marry him yet hopes she will not "have to read" in order to do so.

Poor Betty. A human being with a beautiful body but an empty mind. How is it possible for a girl to pass through the schools in this twentieth century and have sufficient knowledge to pronounce the names in any book on the French revolution? Here is Betty, looking forward to marriage and possible motherhood utterly lacking in the fundamental elements of healthy mentality. Grandfather has lived a long time, has been about the world a bit, has eyes in his head and good powers of observation, and Grandfather did not suppose any such phenomenon as Betty existed in this world. How can one grow physically to nineteen years and be content to remain a child of ten intellectually?

Grandfather can add little to the excellent advice you have given Betty. What she needs before she can hope to win any intelligent man is development mentally. Possibly the book on the French revolution and the young man as a tutor would be a good beginning, supposing, of course, that the intellectually-bent young man is intent on anything more than a study of reactions of a frivolous girl to a little solid reading matter in something other than trashy magazine. Betty should make no mistake about that young man. He will never marry her—that is not unless some sex infatuation unbalances his better judgment. Betty says she is "crazy" about him, whatever that silly and overworked expression means. I take it he is not more than feebly concerned about Betty, and that he will drop her pretty soon for something more interesting and profitable.

Grandfather sees one hope for Betty. She evidently reads your column, and if she reads it regularly and long enough she will acquire much practical wisdom therefrom.

Abandoning Betty and her fear of losing her young man, I am going to tell your readers of what happened some years ago in a newspaper office. It was 2 o'clock in the morning, and the news editor came upstairs and remarked to his associates that the country was safe because he had found room for the Frances McDonald column. You know, editors who sit around after "dead line" have little to do but ridicule everything on earth, in the sea and the heavens. In that office we used to call your column "Mary Garden Stuff," meaning, well, "slush." On this particular morning the cub reporter remarked that it would be better to leave out everything else, for it was the most interesting thing in the whole paper. Some of the veterans grinned but turned to the column. Grandfather was one and has been reading it ever since, and he generally reads it now after scanning the weather report and looking at the headlines of what is doing in the Senate.

GRANDFATHER.

Thank you, Grandfather. When experts read our stuff voluntarily we begin to take heart. And when they write to our column we just simply purr out loud. Can you hear us? And if Betty could see the name that is signed under that pen name she would be doubly sure to follow instructions—and get her man.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

A GARDEN DIARY.

WHY not at this time decide to keep a garden diary? It can be as sketchy or as comprehensive as you care to make it. If it is to be a book where you note down your own impressions and real experiences, it will be well worth all the effort you put into it.

Let me suggest that you divide the book into three parts. The first part to be used for recording the history of your successes and failures among your flowers. The second part to be compiled in the form of an account book, and the third, and probably the largest portion of the book, to be used as a scrapbook.

The pages devoted to accounts may give an itemized statement of the money you xpend on your garden, house plants, party decorations, and on the flowers you send to friends throughout the year. These pages should include cost of labor, expenditures for seed, bulbous stock, garden tools, garden furniture, soils, fertilizers and insecticides—in fact, any expense in the remotest way attached to your flowers.

The last portion of the diary, if made into a scrapbook, would have endless possibilities. It could be divided into: First, a few pages confined to names and addresses—names of firms, names of books you want to read, names of publishers and magazines. You might devote several pages to general information, soils, exposures, water, temperatures, trees, ferns, hardy herbaceous stock, spring flowering bulbs, annuals, vegetables, pests, fertilizers and tools. Here you might paste in pictures, cuts from magazines and newspapers, if they apply to the subject, and garden designs could be here accumulated for future use—pictures of pergolas, hedges, walks, lily ponds or tools.

And then you could classify and paste up articles of all descriptions concerning all forms of plant life. Also save any instructive advertisements that you may chance to see. A loose-leaf book is the most practical because it can be increased or decreased or even rearranged at your will.

Such a book may be attractively covered in oilcloth, so that, should you forget and leave it in the open, it will not be hurt by anything short of a violent downpour of rain.

YOUR NAME WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Lynch" has come down to us from two main sources. It is frequently the modern form of the original Irish "O Loingsig," which may be translated "the descendant of the sailor." It is now one of the commonest of Irish family names. In many cases, however, it is of purely English origin, its source being the English dialect form "linch," which may be translated "ridge" and "sandhill," and which generally designates an unplowed ridge which forms a boundary between two fields. As an English name "Lynch" obviously indicates the place of residence of the persons who were first so called. Another form of this same name is "Link" (also spelled "Linke," "Linck" and "Lincke"). Finally, both "Lynch" and "Link" have become confused with "Ling." Thirteenth century English records bear the names of Emma de Linches, William de la Lynche and Simon de Lynche.

The family name "Ling" is found in the earliest English records, but is of Scandinavian origin. Its source is the Old Norse "lyng," which means "heath" and "heather," and which indicates an original place of residence. A certain John de Ling is mention in the Hundred Rolls. Many families bear this name because of having lived at one time in the village of Ling in County Somerset.

The family name "Garber" is of German origin. It is a modern form of the old Germanic personal name "Garibert," which may be translated "bright spear" or "splendid spear."

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

A Modern Problem.

One of the most dangerous elements in the increasing exclusiveness of the family group—especially in large cities—is the fact that it overcharges with emotion the relation of parent and child. It puts the child at the mercy of whatever weaknesses and faults of character his elders may possess.

In small communities and in the freer association of a day when it was not dangerous for a child to be out alone in the street, a great many influences were at work to offset the results of parental misection to other personalities.

A large number of brothers and sisters, the presence in the home of grandparents, aunts and uncles helped to stabilize the child's reaction to other personalities.

The pattern, for instance, of what a man should be was formed not only by the personality of the father but also by that of a grandparent or uncle or an older brother.

The child's emotional responses were not condition by the idiosyncrasies of one or two individuals.

The presence of many children in the household and free association with the children of the neighborhood kept the child from overestimating his own importance, from being spoiled, and from becoming the sole love object of his parents.

The typical modern child to a great degree has lost the stabilizing influences.

It is necessary to find substitutes to send him to nursery school, kindergarten and camp where association with friendly but impersonal adults and with many children of his own age will give him the poise and balance which often it is virtually impossible for him to acquire in any other way.

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The adverse periods are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m. and from 6:30 p. m. to 8 p. m.

The planetary aspects of January 9 are negative, and nothing of an important nature should be attempted. Only routine work can be done with perfect assurance. A feeling of depression will exist during the day, but, after sunset, conditions change and optimism will prevail.

Children born on this January 9 will be harbingers of contentment. Their nature will be sunny, and, although obedient and winning, they will always want to know "why," "when" and "how." As grown-ups they are assured of a large measure of success and happiness.

If you were born on a January 9, you have a strong, self-willed character and most of your failures will be attributable to the fact that you neither heeded advice nor signs. On the other hand, you will owe your successes to the indomitable purposefulness of your disposition. You are very observant and have learned more from what you have seen and heard, than from what you have read. Books do not attract you. Human contact, sightseeing and travel are your teachers, and you are an apt pupil. You rarely stop to wonder why certain conditions prevail. You immediately inquire the "why" and "wherefore" on the spot.

You possess dynamic energy, and this same spirit is shown in your play as it is in your work. Mediocrity is anathema to you. Excellence is your only desideratum. By aiming at what is oftimes beyond your reach, you attain a higher standard than if you aimed at what you might feel is strictly within your limitations. Responsibilities never scare you.

Your disposition is, at times, explosive. On the whole, however, you are a congenial companion, a good husband or wife, and a model parent. Association in business with partners would cramp your style, and it is better for you to go it on your own. Your horoscope reveals a dominating personality, but not so severe as to be forbidding.

Successful people born January 9:
Charles E. A. Gayarre, Southern historian.
Nathan S. Davis, physician and educator.
Alexander K. McClure, journalist.
Lizette W. Reese, poet.
Edward Howard Griggs, educator.
William Harvey, discoverer of circulation of blood.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

ONION RECIPES.
(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

Glazed Onions.

10 medium-sized onions
¼ cup sugar
2 tablespoons melted butter

Peel the onions and cook whole until fairly tender in salted boiling water from 20 to 30 minutes. Mix the sugar and butter together and spread over the sides and bottom of a baking dish or pan. Drain the onions and place them in the pan and bake in a moderate oven until brown, increasing the heat toward the last. Water cooks out of the onions and the browning process is rather slow. When finished, the onions should have a rich brown glaze.

Stuffed Onions.

Select rather large onions—the Spanish variety if they can be obtained, or large Bermudas. Allow from a half to a whole onion for each person to be served. Cut the onions in half. Parboil gently until fairly tender, taking care not to get them out of shape. Lift them out of the water with a skimmer. Arrange in a buttered pan or baking dish. Scoop out the onion centers and chop fine. Mix with about an equal quantity of buttered crumbs and a few chopped nut meats or a little minced cooked bacon or ham. Season the stuffing with salt and pepper. Fill the onions. Put in the bottom of the dish a few tablespoons of the water in which the onions were boiled to keep them from drying out too much. Bake until the stuffing is browned.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood—Mary Duncan, slender, dark and graceful, is giving the movies her best come-hither look these days despite some false starts, miscasting and offers to return to the stage.

MARY DUNCAN

She was on the stage for only seven minutes as the wickedly attractive Poppy in "The Shanghai Gesture," but she made a name for herself, although she had been acting for several years.

Then she came to Hollywood, hoping to repeat her success.

But Poppy had typed her as a "vamp," and a director convinced her that another role like it would only be a stepping stone to something better.

Later she was cast in similar parts, none of them important, and, unfortunately, none was in successful pictures.

Miss Duncan went back to the stage then, but her taste of the movies made her return for more.

She recently played an interesting characterization in "The Boudoir Diplomat," but her first opportunity to exhibit her dramatic talents will come when she plays opposite Robert Montgomery in "Among the Married."

New Idea in Politics.

The discovery that George Arliss made three political short talking pictures, impersonating the great English politician, Disraeli, now dead nearly 50 years, was learned when the actor returned here from a vacation in his homeland.

Arliss, a British citizen and a member of the Conservative party, like the statesman he portrayed on the stage and screen, was persuaded to make the pictures by former Premier Baldwin, present leader of that party.

In them Arliss, in the dress and make-up of Disraeli, delivers political talks that will be used throughout England when the next elections are held.

Comparison.

What a wide departure from the usual campaigns this is may be judged from an American counterpart of the idea which might call for Walter Huston, as Abraham Lincoln, to appear in that character on the screen, speaking for the benefit of the Republican party.

Such a plan here probably would be treated as a sacrilege to the memory of a national hero, but apparently England takes its politics more seriously than we do.

CATHOLIC U. BOWS TO FRANKLIN FIVE IN UPSET, 21-19

Big Ten Plans No Reduction In Sports

(This is another of Associated Press series of stories based on a survey of athletic conditions in colleges and universities.)

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Football, the liberal cousin of all college sports, had a fairly prosperous season during 1930 around the Western Conference so that but few of his dependents need curtail their immediate activities.

Here and there—notably at Iowa and Wisconsin—minor sports will be curtailed and long road trips abolished, but on most conference campuses the athletic program will move along on about the same plane that has been maintained the last few years.

Illinois, Northwestern and Michigan were the bell cows of the conference so far as receipts were concerned and all planned to carry through their minon sports programs without curtailment, except perhaps as regards long trips to various relay games.

Illinois Building Rink and Links.

Illinois, in addition to maintaining its minor sports program, will build a $325,000 ice skating rink and an 18-hole golf course at a cost of $40,000 this year. A fund for this purpose has been built up from football receipts.

Northwestern's football receipts were well above the budget requirements and the full program will be carried out, which will include an eastern trip for the wrestling squad and the usual spring training trip for the baseball team.

Michigan, although planning no large additions to its athletic plant, will carry on its minor sports program almost in its entirety, for this year at least. Fielding H. Yost, athletic director, said the program was being carefully scrutinized, however, with the thought that "possibly the number of games or contests should be limited as football and basket ball are limited at present."

Ohio State Receipts Off 20 Per Cent.

Ohio State football receipts fell off 20 per cent but despite this the 1931 sports program is being enlarged instead of diminished, a swimming team having been added to take advantage of a new natatorium.

Purdue also will continue a full sports program but it was made possibl only by the generosity of two of its alumni—George Ade and James Ross—who came to the rescue when diminished football receipts led to an announcement of a curtailment of track and baseball.

Wisconsin, where football receipts fell $30,000 below expectations and where only six major football games will be played next year as compared to seven in 1931, is maintaining all minor sports but on a budget $35,000 under 1930 and with a curtailed schedule of games. The spring baseball trip has been shortened and one less relay meet will be taken in.

Indian Will Play Games Away.

Indiana, Chicago and Minnesota will go along about as before, with the Hoosier school, located in a sparsely settled community, playing four of its seven major football games away from home next fall in the hope of increased revenues. Basket ball pays its own way at Indiana, one of the few schools where it is on a paying basis.

The most acute situation is at Iowa where the football team, playing only one conference game last fall, drew only 60,000 spectators at six home games as compared to 80,000 at four home games the year before. Back in good standing in the conference and with the probability of a more attractive schedule next fall Iowa can look forward to happier times but in the meantime the minor sport program has had to be drastically reduced.

The spring training trip of the baseball team has been canceled and the jaunts of the track team, always a feature of Iowa's program, to the Texas, Ohio and Kansas relays discontinued for this year at least. A reduced number of men will be taken on all trips.

Shuffleboard Takes Hold As Florida Winter Sport

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Shuffleboard enthusiasts will have plenty of room to play in Florida this winter.

The club at St. Petersburg has launched a building program to include twenty additional courts, which will give this city a total of 82 playing fields, according to President E. P. Wolfram.

When all the courts are completed 328 persons will be able to play at one time in St. Petersburg. Other Florida cities, including Miami, Palm Beach, Tampa, Lakeland, Winter Haven, Orlando, Daytona Beach and others, have also added new courts this year.

Thousands of persons play the game each year, Wolfram said, and added the enrollment in the St. Petersburg club is already far greater than last year with the season barely started.

CAGE VETS TO TRY AGAIN.

Norman, Okla., Jan. 8 (A.P.)—Coach Hugh V. McDermott, of the University of Oklahoma here, has seven veteran basket ball players around which to build a team to pull the Sooners out of the Big Six cellar, where they finished last year.

THREE BROTHERS BOX.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Three brothers are on the Raleigh High School boxing team. They are Jack, Al and Bill Dunnaway. Jack is in the 105-pound class, Bill in the 145-pound class and Al in the 125. Bill captained this year's football team.

FIGHT HINGES ON ELDER STRIBLING

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The heavyweights, confused and muddled in arguments, marked time today, waiting for the arrival of "Pa" Stribling before settling finally whether Max Schmeling will fight Stribling in Chicago, Detroit or Cleveland, or whether Stribling will tackle Jack Sharkey in New York.

Stribling is due tomorrow from Miami, Fla., and he and his fighting son, Bill, are committed definitely to a championship duel in Chicago early in June with the German, who was stripped of his title by the New York State Athletic Commission Tuesday.

Sharkey-Stribling Bout Aim of Carey.

William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, went to Boston today in an effort to sign Jack Sharkey to a contract for a match with Stribling here in June, a bout the New York commission said it would recognize as for the vacated title. Carey has little hope, however, of winning Stribling over to such a match.

Nate Lewis, matchmaker for the Chicago Stadium and the original $500,000 bidder for the Schmeling-Stribling match in Chicago, made little headway toward signing the match. It appeared that the Hearst Milk Fund, which has Schmeling under contract, will stage the match itself in the Midwest. Stribling already has come to terms with Lewis, but it appears that he will agree to any promoter Schmeling suggests.

Sharkey Would Battle Any Outstanding Heavy

Boston, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Jack Sharkey, heavyweight boxer, today declared his willingness to met Young Stribling, Max Schmeling or any other outstanding member of the heavy division. He notified the New York Athletic Commission, he said, of his readiness to sign for a fifteen-round bout with Stribling in New York.

The New York commission has stripped Schmeling of the heavyweight crown, which he won on a foul from Sharkey. Sharkey's action was prompted, he said, by the statement of the New York commission that they would recognize the winner of a Sharkey-Stribling bout as the world champion. Sharkey won a decision over Stribling at Miami, Fla., two years ago.

Hooper, V. P. I. Star, To Leave Hospital

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 8.—After spending approximately a month at Johns Hopkins Hospital where he was treated for a brain infection Henry V. (Bird) Hooper, football captain of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, will return home tomorrow.

Hooper, who was a patient of Dr. Walter E. Dandy, noted brain specialist, was brought to Baltimore following the annual football game with V. M. I. during which he was injured. Later he suffered a relapse which brought on a state of coma.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Hooper, and his sister, Miss Rosalie Hooper, accompanied him to Baltimore and remained with him during the illness.

"LINDY" MAY PLAY OUTFIELD.

New York, Jan 8 (A.P.).—Freddy Lindstrom, star third baseman of the New York Giants, will be switched to center field next season, according to Manager John McGraw, if Johnny Vergez, purchased from Oakland, can make good in Lindstrom's old post.

School Fives In Series Opening

Tech-Eastern and Buiness-Western Meet Today.

First Fray to Bring Clash of Prerace Favorites.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE annual high school basket ball series gets off with a roll of drums and an answering crash today at Tech High School's Gymnasium at 3:30 o'clock, when the admittedly two best teams—on paper or off—clash in the Eastern-Tech game, subsequently followed by the game between Western and Business.

The series promises to possess all the glamour of old, with perhaps a dash or two of upset spice to finish off the job. All the teams have been hit well below the belt by graduation. Only a few players are entering the games today with established reputations.

Tech must produce all of its notorious staying powers to retain the title it has held for two consecutive years. Perhaps more than ever, all things being considered, the Maroon and Gray will be pushed by Eastern, and maybe Western. But there is no attempt to slight Central and Business, whose opponents will know they have been through a battle after games against these latter two.

Eastern "Mystery" May Clear.

Some of the enigmas which have floated around Eastern's team this year—quite as impenetrable as dour Coach Guyon—promise to be cleared up in today's game. Eastern, incorporating several radical departures in the style of playing basket ball, should show most of its integral worth today against the smooth and consistent Techians.

Not incidentally, Eastern will present a team today which scales somewhat over 6 feet on the average. Great optimism is exuding from the Lincoln Park school over the way the substitutes have been playing in the preseason games. For a while this was thought to be one of the main faults in Eastern's make-up.

Tech Kept Under Cover.

Little has been seen of Tech in preseason workouts. Suffice to say though, that Coach Boyd has missed no bets in the constant practice the squad has been put through.

There promises to be no let-down in the second game, featuring Business and Western. Both are two-men teams, Western's contribution to the catch word being Buscher and Latona, while Business can boast of Lucas and Duryee, the latter a recent acquisition to the ranks of heavy scorers.

The series is assured good officiating by dint of the appointment of Orrel and Joe Mitchell, as referee and umpire, and Walter Haight, as official scorer.

St. John's Five Plays Wash. and Lee Tonight

Sunday the team will move on to Charlottesville to clash with the University of Virginia Cavaliers, on Monday. Ten players and the manager are in the party in addition to Coach Lentz. The players are McCartee and Hoff, forwards; Zeigler C. Fader and Carpenter, guards, and reserves, Wolanski Phil Lotz and Czenuskiak. Ruby Smith is manager.

Mobile and Little Rock Will Stay in League

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—An eight-club circuit for the Southern Baseball Association seemed to be in sight here today as directors approved purchase of the Little Rock Club by home town interests and instructed President John D. Martin to assist in drawing a contract for purchase of Jimmy Hamilton's Mobile interests. Troubles at Little Rock and Mobile had threatened to eliminate them and reduce the loop to six.

President Martin said that if the directors approve, control of the Mobile Club will pass to Byrd Douglas, Nashville attorney, with the City of Mobile contributing to the financing.

RUNNING 100 yards in 13 seconds is good time for most anybody even on two perfectly good legs. So much more remarkable then is the French officer's record on one leg—that is, one real leg. During the war he was given an artificial limb in place of one he lost in action, and he performed his astonishing feat during a track meet for wounded soldiers at Roehampton, France.

A lobster won't purr but he does like to be petted and, strange as it seems, he'll go into a trance if you pet him the right way. Try it once. Stroke him along his back toward his head. Keep it up until he becomes motionless. His muscles will become rigid and stay in whatever position you put them. Stand him on his head, or his tail, and he'll hold it for you—until the trance wears off.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Len Harvey, a first class fighting man from England, will find the short cut to middleweight honors open for him tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden.

Tom McArdle, Garden matchmaker, tonight announced that Gaston Lecadre, of France, would meet Jack Portney, Baltimore lightweight, in the opening ten. Portney was to have battled Louis (Kid) Kaplan, but Kaplan suffered an injured hand in training, McArdle said.

Daring Shots Score for Bennies

Sherman, Understein Lead in Defeat of Cardinals.

Tied at Half, 9 to 9; Conservative Play of C. U. in Vain.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

WITH a reputation to win—and just another ball game to lose—a hard-running, hard-shooting, hard-guarding Benjamin Franklin Basket Ball Team pulled the major upset of the young and tender season last night by defeating Catholic University by the precarious margin of 21-19. Played in C. U.'s zeppelin hangar, the always close game attracted a crow of near 1,000 people.

It was a squad of fighting men Coach Buckey DeBosky sent out on the floor against the favored Catholic University tossers. It proved to be a squad not only capable of forging ahead of C. U. but able to come from behind a slight deficit in the middle of the third quarter, when Hickey and Sheary put the Cardinals ahead by the score of 15-12.

Bennies Lead, 7-6, at End of Quarter.

This was the lone advantage C. U. ever held. From the opening whistle Benjamin Franklin, with Sherman and Understein performing Trojan work, was either tied for the lead—or a basket ahead. The first quarter ended 7-to-6 in favor of the Bennies. The half score showed 9 points for each team. The three-quarter post saw Benjamin Franklin leading 17-15.

John Sherman, with four baskets to his credit, was the outstanding man on the floor. His guarding of the speedy Johnny Oliver, and any other player who ventured in his circulating precinct, left nothing to be desired. His block play was also noteworthy.

Catholic took the game too lightly at the start and never clicked in good fashion. At that, though, the Cardinals displayed the better teamwork, the decision going to their opponents because they were willing to take a multitude of chances.

Spinelli and Sheary Cardinal Stars.

Spinelli and Sheary were the most effective of the Catholic aggregation, scoring 6 points each.

Catholic was not only hampered by the attitude of the Bennies, the all to win, nothing to lose state of mind, but persisted in its passing a little too much. An opportune potshot, from barely past midfloor frequently sent Benjamin Franklin ahead, but only in the dying seconds of the game would Catholic resort to this style of game.

Minnesota Legion In Fight for Boxing

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Minnesota members of the American Legion are behind a project to let down the bars on boxing now restricted to the three largest cities, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth.

The legionnaires are sponsoring a measure to be submitted to the State Legislature this month, repealing the old law and abolishing the old commission of three. A five-man commission is suggested.

Many of the smaller cities in the State have been putting on "bootleg" shows. The legion bill would continue the proviso that 10 per cent of the receipts of shows go to the State tuberculosis fund.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Six of the national football champions also play basket ball at Notre Dame.

GALLAUDET'S FIVE PLAYS AMERICAN

Bliss vs. Southeastern; Maryland U. and G. W. Away.

FOUR far-flung games make up the local college basket ball firmament today, with only two of the tussles within reasonable walking distance—Gallaudet vs. American at American, and Southeastern vs. Bliss at Silver Spring.

George Washington University's tossers, fresh from a mighty battle against the Navy on Wednesday, go up to Villanova today for another game which promises further to step up the tempo of Jimmy Pixlee's covey of sterling ball players. Villanova will have to show more power than it displayed last year against the 1930 edition of G. W.'s team to mold another victory.

The Pennsylvanians, in their two most important games this year, have defeated Duke by two points, and lost to the same team, also by two points Coach Pixlee, while far from loquacious over the merits of his present team, refers to the Navy game as a victory for G. W. and probably would not be very much surprised if the Colonials turn in a win tonight.

Maryland Battles Virginia Cadets.

Coach Shipley's Maryland University basketers drop down to Lexington for their biennial game tonight against the cadets of V. M. I. The Gaylorless Maryland five impressed Wednesday night, downing Gallaudet with the use of but two cylinders. A victory is looked forward to tonight, Maryland court teams being traditionally better than those of the Institute.

The real test for Maryland is tomorrow night when they face the W. and L. squad of Generals. The identical team which went through last season with the loss of but one game, is met also at Lexington.

Warm rivalry between Gallaudet and American promises to turn tonight's struggle between the two into a hotly contested battle. The two teams seem about even in caliber, with old Kid Experience casting slightly more favorable glances at Gallaudet.

Southeastern and Bliss, with standings in the Washington Collegiate Conference at stake, should mix matters tonight at Silver Spring in a manner suitable to followers of this enterprising league.

Sharpe, Center, Leads 1931 Alabama Eleven

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Joe Sharpe, of Mobile, center, was elected captain of the University of Alabama football team for 1931, at a gridiron banquet here last night. He starred in the Tide's 24-0 victory over Washington State New Year's Day in Rose Bowl.

Sports in Virginia Colleges Hit by Grid Revenue Loss

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Richmond News Leader today said minor sports in Virginia colleges would be affected as a result of a decline in revenue from football, which heretofore has been the chief financial support of other college athletic activities.

In a symposium conducted among all Virginia colleges and several in North Carolina, the News Leader says only one school reported an increase in football gate receipts, the others suffering a decrease varying from 3 to 40 per cent.

Several athletic directors said it was too late to curtail minor sports activities with the exception of freshman events, but some of these said schedules would be cut down for next year. A few believed the decline the result of business depression and others blamed bad weather. All were unanimous in the opinion that there was no decline in football interest.

"Our receipts for this year were off 40 per cent," said R. A. Smith, graduate manager of athletics at Washington and Lee University. "It is too late to curtail anything but freshman schedules. It will affect 1931-32 schedules seriously, I believe."

Randolph-Macon was the only college to report increased football receipts.

Schools reporting a loss in football receipts included University of Richmond, Williamb and Mary, V. P. I., University of Virginia, V. M. I., Hampden-Sidney, Davidson and North Carolina State College.

North Carolina State, Davidson, Virginia, V. P. I., V. M. I. and Hampden-Sidney said the winter and spring programs would not be curtailed. Director Miles, of V. P. I., asserting the school would "borrow money if necessary" to take care of the deficit.

JANUARY 9, 1906.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt will be entertained at dinner tonight by the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Shaw.

Many striking members of the Typographical Union have found work in eight-hour shops, it was announced today.

The corps of Washington correspondents resents the growing disposition of executive and administrative branches of the Government to curb the facilities of special representatives of the press and to criticise free exercise of their duty to comment upon public affairs.

President Roosevelt yesterday, in a special message transmitting the report of Secretary Taft on the famous Markel contract for feeding Panama Canal employes, scolded Congress roundly for criticizing those charged with construction of the big ditch.

Vice President and Mrs. Fairbanks entertained last night at dinner. Among the guests were Secretary and Mrs. Taft and Secretary Metcalf.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SICK PEOPLE AND HUNGER.

DR. E. I. SPRIGGS warns sick people against overeating. The warning is more needed by the family and friends than it is by the sick man. As a rule, when a man gets sick nature switches off the appetite. The sick man is willing to do without foods, but his family insists on having their say. They prepare engaging dishes, garnish them appealingly, and then feel hurt if the sick man does not respond. The sick man, grateful for good intentions and unwilling to disappoint, tries to do his duty.

In all illnesses which are scheduled to last less than two weeks the sick man will be better off if he is not tempted and admonished to eat. He should be given water to drink. In all probability some fruit juice will be needed to ward off symptoms of acidosis. He will first draw on his tissues for water. The next step will be to use up the digested food already within him somewhere along the road toward complete utilization. Next will come burning up of the great excess of glycogen stored in the liver and muscles. Next, the stored fat will be pulled out of its reservoirs and thrown into the furnace. These sources of supply are ample for all of the needs of the body, sick or well, active or inactive, for several days. Until they are used up, no demand is made on any cell or substance that is of any vital importance or, for that matter, of any greater service than just what they are called on to render during a period of fasting.

Meanwhile, the stomach and other organs of digestion are given a good rest. Any close observer knows that the heart is called on to work extra hard during stomach digestion. It does not quiet down until more than one hour after a meal. Fasting, or a diet of water and fruit juice only, spares the heart from the hard work of this period. Other vital organs will have a partial rest if the sick man refrains from eating for a few days.

The diet of the sick is very likely to include a nicely cooked egg, a soup and a tender chop. These are albuminous foods and throw work on the kidney. Sick people are often tempted with beef tea. This extract is not exactly easy on the organs. Tempting desserts or other sweets add to the load on the pancreas. Nicely seasoned garnishes, salads and such add something to the load on the liver.

Summing it up, the man who is to be sick but a few days will be better if he is allowed to follow his instinct and go without food. An illness such as typhoid fever, which lasts several weeks, is another story.

DOGS AND DISEASE.

Mrs. J. K. writes:

1. Is there any truth in the layman's belief that a dog carries the eggs of worms in its saliva, and can infest man with worm by licking him.

2. What is the physician's knowledge regarding the harm of young and old or of sick and well persons sleeping together? Which saps the vitality of the other?

REPLY.

1. There is.

2. Of this there is no proof. When people sleep together they are somewhat likely to catch each other's diseases. As a rule, sleeping is less comfortable and restful when two or more occupy the same bed.

SALES SINK HEAVILY AS STOCKS ADVANCE

BROKERS' LOANS DECLINE

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—An indolent and indifferent stock market squeezed higher today, thanks largely to a last minute rally in the steels and utilities.

Turnover, however, was the smallest since December 24, for neither the intermittent declines or advances attracted much of a following. Sales totaled 1,706,093 shares.

Small early recessions were recovered around noon when the results of the Berlin sugar conference were announced. The agreement, of course, made shorts in the sugar issues cover quickly and gains of 1 to 7 points, mostly in the preferred members of the group, ensued. But the rest of the market did little more than pick up its forenoon losses and trading lapsed into the dullest state seen in weeks. In the final 15 minutes professional traders gave the list its best flip of the day, with the result that small net gains were general.

U. S. Steel up 1 Point.

Buying of the steels, sent United States, Bethlehem, Vanadium and Ludlum a point higher, while Republic rallied more than 3. American Telephone, United Aircraft, American & Foreign Power, Consolidated Gas and Columbia Gas rose a point and American Water Works and International Telephone gained 2. Coppers, heavy all day apparently because of doubts concerning the stability of 10½-cent metal, made fair recoveries from the lows but closed with losses. Rails had to contend with profit taking and closed irregular, with changes narrow except in Lackawanna which sprinted 16 points.

Atlantic Sugar soared 5, Cuban American preferred and South Porto Rican preferred 7, American Beet preferred and Great Western preferred more than 4, while others developed less buoyancy.

Grains were not so fortunate. Forecasts of beneficial rains in Kansas and reports of good harvesting weather in Argentina sent new wheat futures off about a cent. It was announced that the stabilization corporation has extended cash buying to St. Louis, Minneapolis and the Southwest and Pacific Northwest as a move to check declines which were said to jeopardize the price structure. Corn also lost a cent under selling prompted by an estimate of larger Argentine exports and favorable weather.

Cotton Futures Gain.

Cotton closed unchanged to 5 points higher for the active months, although the quiet old future gained 75 cents a bale.

Suggestions for a large stabilization loan to China failed to bolster bar silver, which had the unusually large drop of 1¼ cents in the New York market. So uncertain did the situation seem dealers did not give a quotation until long after the usual time for its appearance. Far Eastern exchanges were again weak. The Canadian dollar sagged as $5,000,000 in gold was received from Montreal. European rates were also easy.

Federal Reserve brokers' loans resumed the long decline broken by the $6,000,000 advance a week ago, and dropped $47,000,000 to the new low of $1,879,000,000 in the week ended January 7, indicating that more weak holdings had been liquidated on the rising market. The Reserve Bank statement reflected adjustments following the year-end, with bill purchases off nearly $10,000,000, and the Government security portfolio off $71,000,000.

State's Proration Schedule Rapped

Sinclair Official Attacks Oklahoma's System as Destructive.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation feels that Oklahoma is being made the goat of the efforts to restrict crude oil production. An official of the corporation today confirmed reports that it is planning to appeal directly or through one of its subsidiaries to the Oklahoma Corporation Commission to have production quotas under the proration agreement advanced. Sinclair is one of the largest producers in the State.

While sympathetic to the efforts of the industry to achieve stability, he said, "we feel tht the present rigid administration is destructive o the Oklahoma crude oil market."

Under the administration of the commission, Oklahoma crude oil production has been cut from abot 637,000 barrels daily in January, 1930, to 465,000 barrels at the present time.

TURNOVER EXPANDS AS BONDS STILL GAIN

As In Stocks, Sugar Issues' Spurt Proves Feature of Market.

GERMAN GROUP CLIMBS

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The bond market had the most active session of the new year today and issues of all descriptions improved.

There was some shifting of demand which brought firmer prices in the industrials and slackening in the bidding for railroad bonds that have led the recovery from the five-year low level. There was no marked softness in the carrier group and recessions were limited to small fractions. Some of the less active legals were buoyant.

The broadening of the demand brought advances of a point or more in many industrials, and the inquiry for United States Governments and many foreign obligations was strong.

One of the features was the response of the bedraggled sugar group to the announcement that the Chadbourne committee had obtained the support of German sugar beet interests in restricting production. Gains ranged as high as 5 points. American Beet Sugar 6s and Camaguey 7s rose 4, Cuba Cane Products 6s 2, Warner Sugar 7s 8 and Sugar Oriente 7s 8. Steel and oil companies' bonds were higher.

Trading in United States Governments expanded and the entire group advanced to close to the 1930 high level. Turnover in three issues Liberty fourth 4¼s and Treasury 4¼s and 4s was unusually large.

German government 5½s were heavily accumulated and advanced 1¼ points net. Their buoyancy influenced a better inquiry for other issues in the German group which were 1 to 2 points higher. Latin-American obligations and Italian loans were other strong spots in the foreign list.

Offerings will be made tomorrow of $13,000,000 Texas & Pacific Railway Co. general and refunding 5s at 98½.

New York Bar Silver At 28¾ Cents an Ounce

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Bar silver in New York today suffered one of the sharpest breaks in several years, dropping 1¼ cents to a new historical low of 28¾ cents an ounce. The New York market was unsettled by weakness of the metal in London and the resulting lack of business delayed announcement of a quotation in the local market several hours.

Judge Confirms Sale Of Chicago & Alton

Chicago, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Sale of the Chicago & Alton Railroad at public auction for $23,000,000 was confirmed today by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter.

He denied protesting stockholders the right to enter an intervening petition.

Acacia Employes Reassured.

Confident that this year will mark a steady advance in business and prove a forerunner of prosperity's return, the Acacia Mutual Life Association, of this city, has given assurance to its employes that no curtailment either in working force or in salaries is contemplated.

In a memorandum to Acacia employes, William Montgomery, president, has set forth the policy the association plans to pursue. President Montgomery's letter says that "no employe of Acacia need have any concern either as to the permanency of his or her position or reduction in salary, as it is not contemplated that the force will be either decreased or the salaries reduced during the coming year."

"It is undoubtedly true," the Acacia chief executive continues, "that we could make a considerable reduction in the office force without any material effect upon the efficiency of the work; nevertheless by doing work that could easily have been postponed, by doing special jobs that there was no hurry whatsoever about, and by shifting the force around, we have been able to keep every one busy, and we will continue to do so as long as their work is done efficiently.

"The indications are that business will materially improve in 1931. We are confident of the ultimate prosperity of the business of this country as well as the business of our own association and, in that thought, the executive committee feels that every efficient employe should be retained so that we will be ready to transact satisfactorily the big increase in business which we are sure is not very far ahead."

Curb Review

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Active buying of some of the utilities lifted the curb market moderately higher in quiet trading today.

The curb drifted indecisively during most of the day, but firmed in the last hour, and trading picked up, making total transfers for the day of 455,900 shares, or only 25,100 less than yesterday's.

The Electric Bond & Share issues were conspicuously strong in the last hour. Electric Bond & Share closed a point higher. United Gas rose a point to 9⅜, the best gain in some time for this low-priced issue. American Superpower closed fractionally higher, and its preferred issues rallied further, the second preferred advancing 5 points. Among other utilities, Associated Gas A moved up ½, and Middle West Utilities, 1 point.

In the industrials, Tubize Chatillon bounded up 3 points to 6½. Courtauld's, however, sagged a point to a new low at 8. Stromberg Carlson gained 2; Cuneo Press, 3, and Jefferson Electric, 5, in light trading. Deere lost a point; Fajardo Sugar mounted 7, in a few odd lots, in sympathy with sugars on the big board.

Oils were irregular. Gulf dropped 2, then regained half. Vacuum rose 3, and Cities Service and most of the Standards were about steady. In the mines Newmont rose 2 and Shattuck Denn, 1. Investment trusts were mostly firm. Vick Financial sold up a point.

Cotton Textile Industry Improving, Says Sloan

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The cotton textile industry has entered the new year on a much sounder basis than a year ago with sales and shipments generally above actual production, George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, said today. He pointed out that stocks, too, were lower than on January 1, 1930, and even below the levels of two years ago.

"Signs of encouragement among automobile manufacturers point to improved demand for raw materials entering into their finished products among which are many millions of yards of cotton sheetings, drills and similar fabrics used in the lining and as pyroxylin coated fabric in upholstery and tops," he said.

Oklahoma 'Stripper' Oil Problem Still Studied

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Directors of the American Petroleum Intsitute at an all-day session today, were unable to find a solution for the "stripper" oil well situation in Oklahoma and Kansas which has been intensified by withdrawal of Prairie Oil & Gas Co., principal buyer of independent producers.

A committee appointed by the institute has been working in Tulsa, but although the directors discussed the whole problem here today, the subject was referred back to the committee. They have been asked to get the exact production and location of the oil, those figures being necessary for the directors to work out an early agreement.

$100,000,000 in Bonds Authorized by Rail Line

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Stockholders of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railroad today authorized the directors to issue up to $100,000,000 in new bonds as part of a program for readjusting the company's finances. Daniel Upthegrove, president, said the new bonds would enable the road to "modernize its mortgages."

The new bonds, he said, will be used to retire about $21,000,000 of old issues which mature in 1932.

BANKER DISCUSSES BUSINESS OUTLOOK

CERTAIN REVIVAL SEEN

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Paul M. Warburg, international banker, predicted today that "a few years hence the level at which some of our securities sell today will look as incomprehensibly low as the prices paid for the same securities seemed unreasonably high long before the crash occurred in October, 1929."

Mr. Warburg, one of the organizers of the Federal Reserve system, making his annual report and address to the directorates of the Manhattan Co., of which he is chairman, and its banking affiliates, discussed the causes and lessons of the depression.

Wall street recalled that Mr. Warburg had been one of the comparatively small group of leading bankers which was frankly concerned over the boom in security prices several months before the crash of the autumn of 1929.

"Comparatively brief periods of underproduction in a country containing over 120,000,000 temperamentally enthusiastic customers must bring about a certain revival of business activity," he said today. He did not attempt to forecast the date of the depression's end, however.

In his talk he stressed a contention that America's tariff policy and her attitude toward interallied and reparation payments should be guided by a realization that her prosperity, peace and prosperity depended upon the peace and prosperity of other countries.

"It is deeply to be deplored," he said, "that when * * * the Bank for International Settlements was created, our Government saw fit to prevent our Federal Reserve banks from delegating their representatives to serve on the Bank for International Settlements board along with the presidents and representatives of other central banks. * * *

"Our international policies seem, in the last analysis, to be fashioned by senators of State-wide views, who indulge in the nationalistic illusion that our country can still maintain for itself a position of privileged isolation governed solely by consideration of its own domestic interests."

Surplus for the year is $491,188, and the previous year $77,216,699.

FEDERAL EMPLOYE FEDERATION BACKS HALF-HOLIDAY BILL

Executive Council Holds Cost of Short Week Negligible.

NEW SCHEDULE SEEN STEP TO EFFICIENCY

Present Personnel Could Absorb Added Duties, Is Assertion.

Enactment of the Saturday half-holiday bill was asked of Congress yesterday by the executive council of the National Federation of Federal Employes at a meeting in the Labor Building, on B street southwest, near the Capitol.

Cost of the Saturday half-holiday the year round would be negligible, the council said, taking direct issue with the estimate of the Bureau of Efficiency that the half-holiday would cost $17,000,000 a year to provide for necessary additional employes.

Held Aid to Efficiency.

The present personnel of the Government service, the council said, "could sufficiently absorb the duties now incumbent upon them even though they were required to work half a day less."

"Shortening of the work week for the Government service would be a definite step toward increasing the economy and efficiency of transacting the public business," Luther C. Steward, president of the federation, said in the name of the council.

"We look to the United States Government to exert its leadership in applying what is virtually a universal personnel policy. There is no doubt in my mind that it will cost no more to operate the Federal service on a shorter working week schedule. How can it be explained? Simply by the added efficiency such a schedule would promote.

Five-Day Week Predicted.

"While we have as our immediate objective the five and one-half-day week our organization is not losing sight of the fact that the five-day week for Federal employes is coming. It is our ultimate goal one that we feel certain is not so far distant."

Defeat of the Wood amendment prohibiting any increases for Federal employes next year and reinsertion in the annual appropriation bills the estimates for partially eliminating discrepancies in underaverage salaries was discussed at the meeting.

The council session is attended by the nine vice presidents of the federation from all over the country. The meeting will continue today.

Beck, with Paul Calvin Embry and Carl B. Davis, last summer kidnaped and robbed Gilbert Hyatt, jr., Mount Vernon Bank messenger, of $4,000 of the bank's money. Embry was sentenced to twelve years in the penitentiary, Davis to seven, and Beck received a sentence of three years, which was suspended.

Underhill, of Massachusetts, chairman of the accounts committee, is expected to report favorably to the House today a measure providing that amount for the fiscal relations committee.

The House is expected to approve the appropriation. The money was requested by Mr. Mapes and his colleagues mainly to pay for the hire of an independent tax expert who would study the tax structure of the District and comparable cities and give the committee the benefit of his study.

'MOTHER' IS CHOSEN BY KIT CARSON POST

Widow of Former Commander Honored for Giving Use of Home to Body.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Members of the Kit Carson Post, No. 2, G. A. R., yesterday honored the one who saved for them a meeting place, after the Government's park development caused their hall at 1412 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, to be torn down.

Mrs. Isabel McElroy, widow of Col. John McElroy, who was commander of the post for seventeen years, was designated "Mother of the Post," and given the title "Comrade Isabel," by the Union veterans.

Before Col. McElroy died, he expressed the wish that if his Civil War comrades should ever find themselves without a meeting place, that his residence at 1412 Sixteenth street northwest, should be thrown open to them.

Accordingly, when changes inevitable to the growth of Washington, made the post homeless, Mrs. McElroy remembered the colonel's wish and invited his old friends to gather at her home. Others, including several organizations, offered the Civil War veterans meeting places, but they chose to gather the first Thursday of every month at the home of their late commander.

Yesterday they gathered to give his widow a vote of thanks, and at the annual election officers created a new position in the officers' list especially for her.

ANOTHER CUT SEEN IN ELECTRIC RATES BY UTILITIES BOARD

Commission Asks Bride if It Should Petition Court Now to Modify Decree.

LETTER CITES OPINION IN MEAT PACKER CASE

Corporation Counsel May Leave Matter With W. A. Roberts, Assistant.

Further reductions in electric light and power rates in the District loomed nearer yesterday when the Public Utilities Commission sent Corporation Counsel William W. Bride a letter asking whether it could petition the District Supreme Court at once to modify the consent decree under which these rates are determined as a result of the opinion delivered in the meat packers' case on a similar decree.

Attention was first called to significance of Justice Jennings Bailey's opinion in the latter case as related to the electric rate decree in The Post yesterday.

The Utilities Commission in its letter of inquiry quotes excerpts of the court's opinion, several of which appeared in The Post, and asks its advice on what course should be taken and as soon as convenient.

Statement in Letter.

"If it is held by you that this ruling of Mr. Justice Bailey will be controlling that the commission can petition the court for such modifications without reference to the other party of the consent decree," the letter stated, "the commission would like to have such action initiated at the earliest possible date and it will be prepared, after some little further study, to indicate the modifications which it believes should be sought."

Mr. Bride stated yesterday, however, that because of the pressure of business relating to the congressional hearings on District legislation this week and next it might be a week before he could reach an opinion on the case. On the other hand, he said, he might leave the matter in the hands of William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel for the Utilities Commission, to determine.

Held Up by Disagreement.

Action to seek modification of the consent decree has been held up partly because of disagreement as to what should be the proper legal steps to take. If the opinion of Justice Bailey, who is also the author of the electric rate consent decree, is held as applicable to the latter, the Supreme Court may be called upon to alter the document without first seeking the agreement of the Potomac Electric Power Co.

Mr. Bride had formerly announced that he was willing to confer with counsel for the power company if he thought it would facilitate the result sought. Officials of the utility organization have contended that the consent decree can not be modified without their sanction.

Under the present working of the consent decree the Potomac Electric Co. is earning more than 10 per cent on its base rate value, whereas the decree sets 7½ per cent as a fair rate of return.

Paint Is Smeared on Automobile.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE YEAR IN REVIEW.

NINETEEN-THIRTY, you were not,
If I say so, very hot:
Moments, yes, you may have had—
Some were good but more were bad,
And we're thankful, in the main,
That you can not come again.

• • • • •

You were just another year
Leaving prophets spent and broken,
Wishing they had never spoken.

• • • • •

Yet, despite your deeds repelling
You saw some things worth the telling;
You beheld two Frenchmen hop
Here from gay Paree, nonstop;
You saw Gandhi in his nightie
Stir a government most mighty,
Making salt in little dishes
Much against King George's wishes.

• • • • •

In your reign it can be reckoned
Came a little Lindy Second;
And the Jones boy, Robert Tyre
To the movies did aspire;
Pictures, too, got Tilden (Bill);
Notre Dame got Mister Brill;
Harvard gave the works to Yale,
Lipton crossed just for the sail;
Hoover found a shirt of hair
Most annoying underwear;

• • • • •

H. L. MENCKEN, he got married,
Byrd across the Pole got carried;
Lucas got a bitter panning,
Lindsay lost to Bishop Manning;
Sinclair Lewis, who wrote "Babbitt"
Won a prize—and did he grab it!
Mussolini, bands a-tooting,
Spent the year with much saluting;
And Cornelius Mack of Philly
Made one Gabby Street look silly.

• • • • •

Our disarmament commission
Spent three months in Lunnon wishin'
They could stop world wars from brewing
But reported little doing;
Russians staged a trial for treason
On the radio all season;

• • • • •

In a country called Roumania
Carol gave his Queen a painia;
And in Spain Alfonso wondered
Every time the cannons thundered.

• • • • •

Germany got lots of action
Through the so-called Hitler faction
And in China there was shooting
And the customary looting;
South Americans kept ducking
Bombs the other side kept chucking
And in Cuba, long so happy,
There were street fights rather snappy.

• • • • •

IN New York a man felt slighted
If he had not been indicted
And a judge felt quite neglected
Unless with some crime connected;
It was really quite appalling
Just to watch the jurists falling;
And a guy "Legs" Diamond, dapper
Got drilled thru his bedroom wrapper;

• • • • •

Aimee's mother flayed her daughter,
Farmers ran quite short of water;
Edison—his custom yearly—
Picked a boy who's smart, or nearly;
At the polls in manner hearty
Voters socked the Grand Old Party;
Even Cross won in Connecticut,
Which was quite a breach of etikut.

• • • • •

Schmeling won the heavy crown
By his skill at falling down;
In Chicago's stress and storm
Thompson lost his "veriform;"
Old Floyd Gibbons, swift and merry,
Landis put the ban on Shires
And the White House had three fires;
Out West in the summer's heat
Legge went crazy with the wheat;
Amos-Andy waxed regusted—
And a lot of banks went busted.

• • • • •

Down in Washington, by golly!
Alice smiled and spoke to Dolly.
And to show she bore no malice
Dolly smiled and spoke to Alice;
Upsets of this sort were many—
Al Smith won a hole from Kenny,
Saratoga saw Jim Dandy
Win a race and thirty grand-y;
But Cal Coolidge, former prexy,
Sprang the check-and-double-check-sey;
He gave to his cobbler, Lucey,
No five-cent cigars quite juicy;
But one hundred dollars gave him—
(Lucey swooned, but they may save him).

• • • • •

All in all last year, O brother,
Wasn't quite like any other.

JANUARY BLUES.

Of all life's tragic moments
The bleakest one for me
Is when the ashman carries
Away our Christmas tree.

Memorial to Logan To Undergo Repairs

Post Staff Photo.

The statue of Gen. John A. Logan on a prancing steed at Logan Circle is being prepared for dismantling by the Public Buildings and Parks Commission. After strengthening it will be replaced on the pedestal.

Officials Act to Prevent Equestrian Statue From Falling.

Taking an object lesson from the tumble of Gen. Nathanael Greene from his pedestal in Stanton Park last June, the Public Buildings and Public Parks Commission made a careful examination of the statues under its care and found them all to be safely erected except one, that of Gen. John A. Logan, which stands majestically in the center of the circle named in his honor at Thirteenth and P streets northwest.

Rather than have Gen. Logan bury his head and shoulders in the green sward of the park and suffer such humiliation as did the memorial to Gen. Greene, Lieut. F. B. Butler issued orders to gently remove the general and strengthen his fastenings.

The overhauling will be accomplished in the park and the statue will probably be restored to its former position in a few weeks. The work was erected in 1901.

ARMY INSTRUCTORS HERE MAY REMAIN

Kramer Does Not Expect to Lose Services Should Number Be Cut.

LAUDS WORK IN SCHOOLS

Recommendation of the War Department that the number of retired Army officers acting as instructors to high school cadets, and R. O. T. C. organizations throughout the country, be reduced is not expected to affect schools in the District of Columbia, it was learned yesterday.

Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent of schools, who is in charge of cadets in the white schools, said that if the military instructors here were eliminated the Board of Education would be asked to employ other instructors. The military instructors are furnished by the War Department, but the general character of the cadet work is completely within the control of school officials, Mr. Kramer explained.

"Our experience with the War Department has been most happy, and we feel that we have gained considerably by this relation," Mr. Kramer said. "Col. Craigie and the other officers who have charge of instruction are the finest type of men, and it would be a great loss if they were removed."

Mr. Kramer does not believe any reduction in military instructors will be made in Washington. The War Department has recommended to Congress a decrease of 48 in the total of 149 retired officers who are serving as instructors throughout the country.

The Washington Cadet Corps has been functioning for more than 45 years; it is interwoven with the scholastic life of the students and is considered the finest vehicle in the schools for the development of character and teaching citizenship, Mr. Kramer pointed out.

Kiwanians Install Officers for 1931

Merritt O. Chance Takes Post as President of Body.

Merritt O. Chance was installed as president of the Kiwanis Club for 1931 yesterday at the weekly meeting of the club at the Washington Hotel. Installation ceremonies were under the direction of John J. Boobar and Roe Fulkerson, past presidents of the organization.

Other officers who were installed included Eugene R. Woodson, first vice President; Edwin F. Hill, second vice president; Edgar Morris, District trustee, and George H. Winslow, secretary and treasurer.

James B. Edmunds, retiring president, presented the president's button to Mr. Chance, while Mr. Chance gave a past president's button to Mr. Edmunds. A. B. Vanvoorhees, assistant manager of the Mayflower Hotel, asked any of the members who could do so to donate old clothing to give several needy persons who are being fed by the bread line at the hotel.

CHEST CHIEFS TOLD OF INCREASED NEED

MUST EXCEED 1930 SUM

Unemployment, the city's growth, improved service, greater operating expense and unrepeatable gifts were cited as some of the reasons for increased subscriptions to the 1931 Community Chest at a meeting of the group solicitation unit at Hotel Hamilton yesterday. Division chairmen and section chiefs received final instructions for their organization set-up in preparation for the drive which will begin January 26, lasting through a period of ten days.

In the absence of E. C. Graham, chairman of the unit, Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, presided, urging each worker to redouble the efforts of last year because the Chest needs are proportionately greater.

Mr. Street Confident.

"Chest reports from other cities which have oversubscribed their goals have given us much encouragement in this difficult year, and I am confident that Washington will also finish in the front rank," Mr. Street said. Edward E. Colladay, secretary, outlined solicitation plans.

C. Leslie McCrae told the workers that "the Chest proposition is primarily one of salesmanship. Introduce sound selling methods into your solicitation and you can not help but succeed," he said.

Joseph D. Kaufman, chairman of the speakers' unit, advocated close cooperation between the keymen and the speaker assigned to their district.

Division chairmen, of whom there are twenty, reported on progress to date. Some divisions are entirely recruited as to personnel and the others are making satisfactory headway. The organization set-up is expected to be completed by Tuesday, January 18, leaders said.

Holder of 'Exclusive' Tag Gets 'Ha-Ha' From Police

A firm belief that unlettered automobile license tags reflect influence with District authorities and consequent immunity from such annoyances as pink slips from police was shattered yesterday, for at least one motorist.

While a few tardy car owners were making vain effort to get the unlettered license plates, all of which now have been distributd, a driver of a coupe bearing such a tag left his automobile parked at the Fourteenth street entrance to the District Building within the white lines plainly marked "No Parking."

To his dismay, when he returned a few minutes later he found a pink ticket sticking in his windshield. With an obvious air of disillusionment he went to the First Precinct Station to deposit collateral.
